LITTLE AMERICA, Antarctica, Dec. 4.—The Byrd geological party is now at the foot of the Queen Maud Range, trying to find a way to the key points of geological interest.

Dr. Lawrence Gould, leader of the party, sent back word to the base that he had tried to ascend Liv's Glacier [up which Commander Byrd flew on his way to the South Pole], but was stopped by crevasses and precipices of ice, and that he intended to head to the eastward and try to ascend to the Polar Plateau by way of the Axel Heiberg Glacier [the course of Byrd's return flight].

In his messages Dr. Gould says:

"Dec. 1.—We stood by on polar flight until plane landed and then tried to raise the base in order to be first to send you our felicitations. Many thanks for things dropped from plane, especially photographs, which will be of great value.

"Broke camp after your flight and made twenty-three miles. Yesterday, by great effort, we drove thirty-five nautical miles (about forty statute miles) and are now camped at foot of Liv Glacier in the very shadow of Mount Nansen.

Rested on Only Two Days.

"Since leaving Little America have had but two days' rest. I have been up every morning at 6 or earlier and as a rule we have traveled until 9 at night.

"We have been too tired after long day's trek to turn hand generator of radio to tell you much about it.

"The last week has especially been hard, with continuous wind from southeast or ten miles, with heavy, blinding drift.

"The two things that have especially made trip possible are splendid sledges built by Strom and Balchen and the fact that we have traveled all the way on skis. Latter fact probably saved us yesterday, for we crossed countless crevasses.

"When Freddie [F. E. Crockett, dog driver and radioman with the party] sends you this Thorne, O'Brien and I will be somewhere up Liv Glacier. Expect to spend a few days in this locality and then call at your cache as we head eastward.

"Distances are even more deceptive here than in a desert, and Carmen Land is much further away than is suggested by Amundsen's chart. The mountains are all I had hoped for, and I look forward toward the coming weeks as the best ones I have ever had.

"Have had perfect cooperation of men with me and we are bound to accomplish much. I am again singing."

Liv Glacier Balked Efforts.

The next message was sent Dec. 2 and said:

"Find things here done on much larger scale than we anticipated. The mountains that hold the key to geology are far behind the foothills and we must ascend the Plateau to get at them.

"Found Liv Glacier frightfully crevassed and, after seeing great ice falls ahead, have decided to try to ascend by way of Axel Heiberg Glacier. Will therefore be grateful for any information you can give us.

"We leave this place in the morning, headed eastward. We have called this first mountain camp 'Camp Cyclone Haines' because the wind blows so hard." [W. C. Haines is meteorologist with the Expedition.]

Commander Byrd is sending information to Dr. Gould, gained from the photographs made on the polar flight, which will help him to get around the worst of the crevasses and also give him many valuable hints as to the best way to get up Axel Heiberg Glacier.

This is a new means of cooperation in the Antarctic, something of inestimable value to men on the trail and which has never before been available. The information gained from the photographs in a few hours could never be learned by men on foot, as they would see only a small part of the broken terrain over which they were moving and might miss a safe and comparatively

Ford Taking Back All Men; Expects Record Output Soon

DETROIT, Dec. 4 (AP).—The Ford Motor Company, expecting the biggest production in its history, plans to re-employ within a few days all men temporarily laid off, according to information given out late tonight.

The announcement was given to The Dearborn Press for publication in the weekly newspaper of Henry Ford's home city tomorrow.

Frequent reports in the last few weeks, none of them as yet authenticated by the Ford Company, have been that Ford was to make a new model car soon. Some reports had it that the new car was to have a six-cylinder motor.

LIVINGSTON SLATED TO LOSE LEADERSHIP

Insurgent Group Claims to Control 28 of the 46 Votes in Executive Committee.

WASHINGTON BACKING SEEN

A movement is well under way among Republicans in Brooklyn which will culminate before many days in the ousting of Jacob A. Livingston from the leadership of the Kings County Republican organization. With one brief lapse—in 1921 and 1922—Mr. Livingston has held the post since 1912. This information came to light yesterday despite a determined effort on the part of all concerned to keep the move secret.

Those opposed to continuing Mr. Livingston in his present position contend they control 28 of the 46 votes in the executive committee of the Kings County Republican Committee, of which he is chairman. Under the rules of the Kings County Republican organization this position carries with it the party leadership in the county. It is understood that a special meeting of the executive committee will be called next week, at which a resolution will be introduced and acted upon, deposing Mr. Livingston, unless he should anticipate hostile action by an earlier resignation from his leadership.

That the movement to oust Mr. Livingston, if not inspired and engineered by, had received aid and impetus from Washington, was the opinion of prominent Republicans who should know. The inference seemed to be pretty clear from the fact that the culminating stage of the insurgency against Mr. Livingston was timed to coincide with reports from Washington that two Federal officeholders who hold their jobs as a result of his exertions on their behalf would be dropped by the Hoover Administration in the near future. One of these is United States Collector of Internal Revenue for the Eastern District Warren G. Price, who has held that office since 1926. The other is United States Marshal Jesse D. Moore. Through patronage in their departments, Price and Moore between them control half a dozen votes on the Executive Committee.

Fail to Agree on Successor.

According to the best information available last night, those engaged in the anti-Livingston movement have not as yet been able to agree upon any one to succeed him. In the meantime, however, Kings County Republicans have learned that Meier Steinbrink, a prominent Brooklyn lawyer who was very active in the pre-convention movement for the nomination of President Hoover, would assume the rôle of dispensing Federal patronage in Kings County. In fact, he is already credited with functioning in this capacity, since it is understood that Mor-

COURT TO HEAR PLEA TO VOID INDICTMENT OF M'MANUS TODAY

Counsel Announces Move After Judge Says State Failed to Link Pistol to Defendant.

NOTT DISCUSSES EVIDENCE

MRS. FARRY AIDS DEFENSE

Fails to Identify Defendant—Meehan Says Rothstein Had Revolver Night He Was Shot.

A motion to dismiss the indictment charging George A. McManus with the murder of Arnold Rothstein will be made today by James D. C. Murray, attorney for the defense. The plea will be made on the ground that the State has failed to make out a case against the accused man.

Announcement of his intention was made by Mr. Murray yesterday afternoon after Assistant District Attorney George N. Brothers had said the State would rest its case today and the trial judge, Charles C. Nott Jr., had suggested a flaw in the prosecution's chain of circumstantial evidence. Mr. Brothers declared that all of the evidence against the defendant had been introduced except the testimony of a small-arms expert on the alleged murder weapon.

Bringing his case to the last chapter, Mr. Brothers had called Mrs. Bridget Farry and James Meehan to the stand. The former chambermaid of the Park Central Hotel, where the State says Rothstein received his death wound, denied that McManus had been the "Mac" she had seen in the room where the State charges the shooting took place. Meehan testified that Rothstein went to the hotel with a revolver exactly like the alleged murder weapon.

Arms Expert to Testify.

The prosecution will offer the expert testimony on the revolver this morning, although Judge Nott, in adjourning the trial yesterday, made it quite clear that he felt the District Attorney had failed utterly to connect the revolver with McManus. Nevertheless, said District Attorney Banton, the proof would be offered and the effort to have the indictment thrown out would be fought.

It was when Mrs. Farry, gathering the folds of a vivid green gown about her, stepped down from the stand as the last witness of the day that Mr. Brothers and Assistant District Attorney James McDonald moved to the bench of Judge Nott and conferred. They talked to the court for fifteen minutes and then resumed their seats at the prosecution table.

"The witnesses who remain to be called by the State," said Judge Nott, "are police officers who will give testimony on the alleged flight of the defendant, and pistol experts who will give testimony on the slug taken from the body of the deceased.

Discusses Alleged Flight.

"If the defense denies the flight of the defendant the State can put in its evidence on this point, through the police officers, on rebuttal. It now appears, however, sufficiently clear that this defendant was absent from his home between Nov. 4 and Nov. 27. Unless this absence is denied there does not seem to be any reason for the testimony of the police officers, since testimony on his absence has already been introduced.

"Now as to the pistol experts. To be very frank with you, I am at a loss to see that you can get very far even if you prove that the bullet that was found in the deceased was discharged from a revolver which was found in the middle of Seventh Avenue. There is no doubt that the deceased was shot by a bullet from some gun.

"This is absolutely sure. Now if this gun that was found in Seventh

Hoover Trades Fish Stories With Fellow-Expert, Pinchot

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4 (AP).—Deep-sea fishing yarns were exchanged at the White House today by two distinguished fishermen who knew what they were talking about.

They were President Hoover and Gifford Pinchot, former Governor of Pennsylvania, who sat for fifteen or twenty minutes in the Executive's private office swapping stories.

Mr. Pinchot has just returned from an expedition to the South Sea Islands, and he regaled the President with the alluring enjoyment that awaits the deep-sea fisherman in that far-off area.

In return, Mr. Hoover gave the former Governor some inside information on how to catch the large fish that frequent the waters off the coast of Lower California.

After his election, Mr. Hoover halted his voyage to the South American countries off Lower California for deep-sea fishing. This pastime is enjoyed immensely by the President, and his friends would not be surprised if he tried some more before he leaves office.

VARE PUTS HIS CASE BEFORE THE SENATE

Saying Nomination and Election Were "Honest," He Argues Cost Was Moderate.

DECISION SET FOR TODAY

Reed Delays Vote to Unseat His Fellow-Pennsylvanian as Committee Rules Out Wilson.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—William S. Vare of Pennsylvania, for a few hours today had a seat in the Senate, a seat but one removed from the chair in which for so many years sat Boies Penrose, who was bossing Philadelphia and most of Pennsylvania when Mr. Vare was a novice in the political game.

Mr. Vare, who on the face of the returns was elected a Senator in November, 1926, was guided by his physician, Dr. J. J. Shaw, as he slowly dragged his way into the chamber. His left side is half paralyzed, the left leg he drags behind him, and the hand on that side he cannot lift.

The right to appear in his own defense had been granted by the Senate to Mr. Vare and, in view of his enfeebled state from long illness, even his political enemies were liberal in their tribute to the "grit" of the man as he argued against the plea, embodied in the Norris resolution, to deny him a seat on the ground that fraud and corruption tainted his nomination on the Republican ticket.

In the meantime, the Committee on Privileges and Elections, which has had before it the contest of William B. Wilson, his Democratic opponent, for Mr. Vare's seat, made ready to report when the Senate convenes at 10:30 o'clock tomorrow morning. Mr. Wilson will not have the seat, the committee deciding unanimously that he was not elected.

Elections Committee Decision.

The Republicans on the committee will report that Mr. Vare was elected. The Democrats will submit a report that, while Mr. Wilson was not elected, the facts are that fraud so tainted the contest that the seat should be vacated, and that will be their recommendation.

The Senators who voted Mr. Vare elected are Shortridge of California, the chairman; Waterman of Colorado, Moses of New Hampshire, Glenn of Illinois, Hastings of Delaware, Stelwer of Oregon and Watson of Indiana. The minority report will be by Senators Caraway of Arkansas, George of Georgia, Bratton of New Mexico and Connally of Texas.

All indications are that the votes on the Norris resolution and on the committee report, in whatever order is decided by the Senate, will be had before adjournment tomorrow. That Mr. Vare will fail by a substantial majority to win his seat is considered a foregone conclusion.

Senator Norris made a strong effort to get a vote at once on his resolution. He assailed at length the primary and election of 1926 in Pennsylvania. Senator Reed of Pennsylvania objected, insisting that the Elections Committee report be on hand before the chamber acted. He forced the postponement by stating that he would talk until adjournment, if necessary.

For five hours the Senate debated the case. Through part of the time, Mr. Vare remained in the seat accorded him in the front row of the Republican reservation. Senator Norris was speaking when, a few minutes past noon, Mr. Vare entered.

Galleries Crowded for Debate.

Senator Fess of Ohio was presiding. There was a full attendance of Senators and the visitors' galleries were crowded.

In the Executive gallery was Mrs. William Kipp, a daughter of Mr.

Stimson's Reply to Russia.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—In a sharp rejoinder to Maxim Litvinoff, Acting Commissar of Foreign Affairs for Russia, Secretary of State Stimson denied today that the appeal made by the United States to Russia and China for peace in Manchuria in the name of the general pact for the renunciation of war, was prompted by "unfriendly motives."

It was a recognized rule in international relations, Mr. Stimson asserted, that one nation could call to the attention of another its obligations or dangers to peace without being considered unfriendly.

The United States, he added, is making its appeal regarding the Kellogg treaty as a covenant which has "profoundly modified the attitude of the world toward peace," and "this government intends to shape its own policy accordingly."

That Russia and China were composing their difficulties over the Chinese Eastern Railway by direct negotiation, he maintained, was evidence that world opinion is a live factor which can be promptly mobilized in behalf of peace.

Stimson Feeling Strong.

The response of the Secretary of State to the declaration of M. Litvinoff that Russia could not look upon the American appeal for peace as a friendly act, was made in the form of a public statement which Mr. Stimson read to newspaper correspondents this afternoon. Its strong phrasing was, if possible, accentuated by the force with which he read it, emphasizing the leading points and showing feeling throughout the reading.

The statement by Secretary Stimson read:

Between co-signatories of the pact of Paris it can never be rightly thought unfriendly that one nation calls to the attention of another its obligations or the dan-

PRESIDENT FORECASTS LARGE SURPLUS; ASKS $3,830,445,231 IN BUDGET FOR 1931; MELLON URGES CONTINUANCE OF TAX CUTS

Secretary Mellon Holds Maintenance of Surpluses Will Justify Permanent Revision of Tax Rates

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—In advocating in his speech over the radio tonight a downward and more or less permanent revision of tax rates, Secretary Mellon said:

The treasury estimates that for the next fiscal year, that is, for the twelve months ending June 30 next, there will be a surplus of $226,000,000 of receipts above expenditures, and for the fiscal year 1931 a surplus of $123,000,000. A surplus may be recurring or temporary. In the one case, either through expanding revenues or reduced expenditures, assured receipts may have reached the point where they so exceed normal expenditures as to create recurring surpluses.

Such a situation justifies a revision, more or less permanently, of our tax laws with a view to modifying tax rates downward.

In the second case, the surplus may be of temporary character, arising from an unusual increase in receipts or decrease in expenditures; or the conditions, while not extraordinary, may not have existed for a sufficient period of time to permit a definite conclusion as to their permanency. Such a surplus obviously calls for different treatment.

This is particularly true of a revenue system which places its chief reliance on one form of taxation, as we do on the income tax, which is subject to sweeping variations depending on a variety of circumstances, but principally on the upward and downward fluctuations of business.

MESSAGE CITES DEBT SLASH

Says Treasury Surplus in June Will Amount to $225,581,534.

WITH $122,788,966 IN 1931

Total Expenditures to Mount Above $4,000,000,000 for the First Time Since 1921.

WARNS COSTS ARE RISING

Unnecessary Outlays Will Imperil Tax Reduction After Next Year, He Adds.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—President Hoover transmitted his first budget message to Congress today, placing estimated expenditures for the fiscal year 1931, exclusive of postal expenditures payable from postal revenues, at $4,102,988,700, as compared with an estimate of $4,028,661,900 in 1930, and actual expenditures of $3,848,463,189 in 1929. He placed the surplus at the end of the fiscal year 1930, on June 30 next, at $225,581,534, and that for 1931 at $122,788,966.

The President included in his message an estimate of appropriations Congress would be asked to make for 1931, as compared with appropriations for 1930. These estimates, which are always lower than the actual expenses of the government, and are subject to requests for supplemental appropriations, placed the total for 1931, exclusive of postal expenditures payable out of postal receipts, at $3,830,445,231.96, and for 1930 at $3,978,141,651.26. They included an appropriation of $180,000,000 from the revolving fund of the Farm Board for 1930, but no comparable item for 1931.

The President's message showed that during the current fiscal year and in 1931 total expenditures of the government payable out of the treasury would go above $4,000,000,000 for the first time since 1921, when they totaled $5,538,040,000. This will be due, it was pointed out, to estimates that $75,000,000 is to be provided for the Federal Farm Board in 1930 and $200,000,000 in 1931.

Tax Reduction Pressed.

Postal expenditures, payable out of postal receipts, were put at $760,470,577 in 1931 and $734,235,725 in 1930. This operation is handled independently of the treasury by the Postoffice Department.

The President reiterated his recommendation for a $160,000,000 tax reduction on incomes payable in the calendar year 1930, and called attention to the fact that amounts set aside by law for debt reduction will, for the first time in 1931, exceed the interest charges on the debt. He pictured the financial condition of the government as sound, but warned, in view of the growing expenses, against any unnecessary outlay which would threaten the budget surplus, or work to make impossible a continuation of the tax-reduction program after 1930.

The message stated that provision had been made for carrying out the fifteen-cruiser and the five-year aviation programs. It asked for relatively small increases in appropriations for the Department of Justice and the State Department to expand the work of carrying out foreign relations and law enforcement. However, no large increases were asked by any department, the greatest, about $16,000,000, being for the navy.

Dry Forces Ask More Money.

A total of $15,200,000 was asked for the Prohibition Bureau in 1931, as compared with $13,925,000 in 1930, the additional money to be used for increased personnel. For the Coast Guard, which assists the bureau in prohibition enforcement, an increase of $2,208,969 was asked. Of this, $1,230,000 is to be used for reconditioning twelve destroyers to replace twelve old ones now in use, $800,000 for five fast off-shore boats, $20,000 for ten high-speed picket boats and $320,000 for new seaplanes.

The exact figures for revenues, expenditures and surplus, as given by the President in the estimates made today, are as follows:

Revenue	$4,248,383,234	$4,359,727,666
Expenditure	4,023,681,900	4,102,938,700
Surplus	224,581,534	122,788,966

The estimates of expenditures include $75,000,000 from the revolving fund of the Farm Board for 1930 and $200,000,000 for 1931. The postal deficit is estimated at $34,000,000 in 1930 and $73,500,000 in 1931.

In connection with these estimates, however, there should be taken into

BUSINESS LEADERS GATHER FOR PARLEY

TO FORM NATIONAL COUNCIL

Raskob, in Interview, Says Industry Is Sound and Predicts Revival in Spring.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Big men of big business are arriving in Washington tonight by scores for the conference to be held here tomorrow to further President Hoover's program of stimulating and stabilizing the country's commerce and industry.

More than 400 will attend the conference, which will assemble tomorrow morning in the auditorium of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

President Hoover will deliver an address, which will be broadcast over a nation-wide hook-up, and speeches will be made by Secretary Lamont, Julius Klein, Assistant Secretary of Commerce, and Julius H. Barnes, chairman of the Board of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

Assistant Secretary Klein will review the business situation, pointing out the elements of its strength and weakness. William Butterworth, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, will preside. Thirty-two important trade groups will present reports as to conditions in their particular businesses and throughout the country.

A statement from the national chamber today said:

"The conference probably will take steps looking to the setting up of the necessary continuing organization to cooperate with the Department of Commerce on the one side, and the various trade groups on the other, with a view to maintaining business activity at normal balance."

Committee of 25 Proposed.

The intention is to form a committee of about twenty-five persons to undertake to carry out the proposal for a continuing organization.

The thirty-two trade groups represented will embrace 250 organiza-

TREASURY REPORT VOICES OPTIMISM

WARNS ON BRANCH BANKING

Citing Profits of $2,000,000,000 in Sale of Capital Assets, He Pictures Bright Future.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Advocating a policy for the future of giving to taxpayers the benefit of surplus revenues instead of applying them to debt reduction, Secretary Mellon of the Treasury made his annual report to Congress today for the fiscal year, 1929, and presented an optimistic picture of governmental finances.

He estimated the surplus at the end of the fiscal year 1930 at $226,581,534 and for the year 1931 at $122,788,966. He added that he believed a reduction of $160,000,000 in taxes paid by individuals and corporations in the calendar year 1930, which he recommended, could safely be made at this time.

"The estimated expenditures for 1930 and 1931 include, respectively, $630,000,000 and $685,000,000 for debt retirement, chargeable against ordinary receipts," said Mr. Mellon. "These amounts will increase from year to year and are adequate to retire our public debt at a reasonably rapid rate and in accordance with our well-established national policy.

"The Treasury Department believes, therefore, that the taxpayers should receive the benefit of any prospective surplus in the form of tax reduction."

Possibility of Future Tax Cuts.

It was in relation to such a policy, the Secretary indicated, that he advocated providing for tax reduction through a joint resolution of Congress rather than by a complete overhauling of the revenue law.

The report contained the proposal already introduced in the House to reduce the normal tax on corporations and personal incomes by 1 per cent in tax payments to be made next year.

Whether this reduction, in its present form or with some variations, could be continued in the following year so as to turn back surplus revenues to the taxpayers would depend upon whether a surplus sufficient to grant such relief without creating an actual deficit was in prospect, Secretary Mellon said.

In his general review of the unusually prosperous condition of business in 1929, a condition which he said had continued into 1929, and in the estimate of income taxes to be received in the fiscal years 1930 and 1931, he drew an encouraging picture of developments, despite the recent falls in security values.

Gain in Corporation Earnings.

Figures for the calendar year 1928 showed that corporation earnings in that year had exceeded those of 1927 by about 11 per cent, and that "all reports indicate that their 1929 income will exceed that of 1928."

The problem before the Treasury of making estimates beyond the fiscal year 1930, Mr. Mellon went on, was difficult because of the necessity of attempting to determine to what extent the decline of security values would affect future revenues from personal taxes.

There had been an extraordinary increase of $230,320,000 in the current income taxes from individuals, due chiefly to profits taken on the sale of capital assets, principally in stock market transactions in 1928, and had it not been for this unex-

Photograph Radioed to England Brings Arrest; Identifies Bank Aide Wanted in $60,000 Fraud

A radio photograph flashed across the Atlantic Ocean yesterday enabled Scotland Yard detectives, working with private operatives, to identify and arrest C. P. B. Westergaard, former head of the foreign exchange department of the Chatham Phenix National Bank and Trust Company at Harwich, England.

Westergaard has been a fugitive from justice since he left New York last October after having obtained $60,000 from the Chase National Bank, it is alleged, by the use of forged transfer orders dated Oct. 12 and 16. He was indicted yesterday by the Federal grand jury here.

H. A. Crowe, head of the criminal division of the William J. Burns International Detective Agency, said that so far as he knew there had been no previous use of the radio photographic service between New York and England for criminal identification.

"We learned that Westergaard, shortly before he left New York, had obtained a passport from the Norwegian Legation in Washington, under the name of Christian Pederson, Crowe said. "The passport was made out for use in any country, for the next two years. Eventually we traced Westergaard to the Mount Royal Hotel in Canada. He purchased $50,000 worth of Canadian Government bonds in Montreal, and on Nov. 15, four days later, he sailed for Liverpool on the Duchess of Richmond."

During the ocean voyage the fugitive made the acquaintance of a young English woman and her mother. The Burns men learned that he often visited them at their hotel in London. Later they traced him to Harwich.

"Then my men were up against it," said Crowe. "They were certain they had the right man, but they had no way of proving it to Scotland Yard. Since Westergaard had no criminal record in New York we could not send them fingerprints, but we suddenly hit on the idea of sending his photograph across to London by the Radio Corporation of America service."

A few days ago the fugitive's likeness was flashed across the sea. Armed with this the Burns men went to Scotland Yard and proved that they had the right man.

Lindbergh Flies West to Hunt Mail Pilot; Fifteen Airplanes to Aid Search for Nelson

Special to The New York Times.

CLEVELAND, Dec. 4.—Fifteen airplanes, piloted by some of the nation's finest fliers, including Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh, will take off tomorrow morning in a search for Thomas P. Nelson, mail pilot, who has been missing since Monday.

The search, as organized late today by Lester D. Seymour, general manager of the National Air Transport, probably will be the greatest ever undertaken for a missing pilot in this territory.

A $500 reward offered late today by Lester D. Seymour, general manager of the N. A. T., was not needed to spur local pilots on to their best efforts toward locating the missing flier.

Phil Love, another famous flier, who has had the St. Louis air mail route, arrived at the airport late today. Love is a former flying colleague of Nelson and Colonel Lindbergh.

Colonel Lindbergh hopped off for Cleveland from the Curtiss Airport at Valley Stream, L. I., just before midnight to join the squadron of pilots who are searching for the lost mail flier, Nelson.

Last night Colonel Lindbergh telephoned the field asking that his Falcon be prepared for leaving early this morning. He had kept in touch with the search for two days by frequent telephone conversations with the field manager at Hadley Field, N. J. Fliers who had come in from fruitless skirmishing over the mountains between New Jersey and Cleveland had said that weather conditions were bad for searching from the air. Yesterday, however, the weather cleared somewhat and Lindbergh decided to go. Nelson is a friend of the Colonel's, and the latter has been much concerned.

MEADVILLE, Pa., Dec. 4 (AP).—State highway patrolmen will search southwest of Cochranton near the Mercer County line tomorrow for Nelson, the missing air mail pilot, following reports by three residents that they heard a plane and a crash early Monday morning.

Soviet Foreign Head Regrets Lack of Envoy Here—Press Assails American Move.

MOSCOW, Dec. 4.—Somewhat unexpectedly as a Bolshevist orator, Acting Foreign Minister Litvinof took a Latin quotation, "Audi alteram partem" (hear the other side), as a text tonight in his reply to Secretary Stimson's "belated and uncalled-for intervention in the Manchurian affair," as the Soviet press terms it.

M. Litvinof, before the entire diplomatic corps, members of the foreign press and of the Central Executive Committee of the Communist party, spoke two hours, covering the whole range of Soviet foreign relations, but he devoted his principal attention to the Far Eastern situation and to Anglo-Russian relations, both of which he discussed quite freely, with an occasional flash of sarcasm which aroused laughter and applause.

Sees Effort to Interfere.

Without exactly charging the American Secretary with deliberately waiting until the Moscow-Mukden negotiations were in progress before taking a step which "a genuine desire for peace might have prompted much earlier, even the first week after the Chinese broke the letter and spirit of the Kellogg pact by violent and unauthorized seizure of the Chinese Eastern Railway and arbitrary measures against Soviet citizens," M. Litvinof followed the line of the Izvestiya editorial of this morning in suggesting a desire on the part of certain Western powers to interfere in a crisis which "it is now hoped is on a fair road to settlement."

After recapitulating the whole progress of the dispute between the Soviet and China, he said it ill became foreigners who had oppressed China in the past, whose armed forces still were encamped on Chinese soil and whose gunboats were anchored in Chinese ports to cast stones at the Soviet, which had abandoned its extraterritorial rights and even now did not occupy a foot of Chinese territory, despite extreme provocation. Perhaps Mr. Stimson, M. Litvinof said, did not know that.

But, unfortunately, he continued, there was no Soviet envoy at Washington to inform him. But why judge by Nanking's version alone? M. Litvinof asked. Had Mr. Stimson consulted Mukden before he sent his intervention note or did he get his information about Manchuria from the American railroad adviser (J. J. Mantell), whose sovietophobia was notorious?

In his comment about France and England, particularly in a sarcastic reference to alleged British fear of Soviet propaganda, M. Litvinof struck the same aggressive note, but on the whole his speech was less novel and sensational than was expected by the diplomatic corps. He concluded with a patriotic reference to "our Far Eastern troops, who are the answer of the Red Army to foreign aggression." This was greeted by thunderous applause.

Soviet Press Backs Litvinof.

Comment in the Soviet press on the Far Eastern situation follows closely the line of M. Litvinof's replies to the American, French and British communications. Izvestiya, however, emphasizes the point that the United States and France had personal reasons for their "uncalled for interference" to a greater degree than Britain, and adds it is significant that three out of five powers approached by Secretary Stimson had declined to participate.

Soviet opinion generally appears convinced that the American, French and British notes were inspired by a desire to hamper direct negotiations between the Soviet and Mukden. In contrast with the recent apathy of the public regarding the Manchurian affair "the man in the street" today shows keen interest in the Foreign Commissariat's three communiqués, which were featured on the front pages of all newspapers.

"That will teach Americans not to meddle," said a burly workman in a street car. Russians always talk in street cars, which become a sort of ambulant debating society in moments of national excitement. "If they are so crazy about peace as they pretend to be, how come they do nothing till the very moment they see we are fixing things up with this Changland guy."

His speech was greeted with a murmur of approval, but an old woman of peasant appearance intervened.

"Americans are good people," she said. "We would have died without them in Samara Province in the hunger year, and my son knows it. He is a commander in the Red Army now, but he says he would never fight Americans."

There was a ripple of interest along the car benches. A debate had begun, and the Russians adore debates. The workman wrinkled his nose disdainfully. "Fill a peasant's belly and God and the devil may kill each other," he said. Then added hastily: "The Americans hate us. They won't recognize our Union. They sent soldiers to fight us before, but Lenin threw them out."

Says Those Were Old Days.

The old woman called up reinforcements. "Those were the old days," she said. "But now it's different. My daughter works in the grain trust and she says Americans have recognized us and send thousands and thousands of tractors and hundreds and hundreds of 'specs' (technicians) and machines and money. Do you think Americans are fools?" she continued witheringly.

The workman took up the challenge:

"I am no specs—nor a Red Army commander neither—but this thing is as plain as a drumkard's red nose. Americans are not fools, Mamushka (little mother), you are right about that. They are worse—they are enemies. What do you think they waited for—till we had started to talk with Changland—unless they were trying to spoil it?"

Rumanian Fire Troop Arrested; In Saloon as Station Burned

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUCHAREST, Dec. 4.—Because they were too busy drinking in a nearby saloon to interest themselves in a fire which burned down their own fire station, the entire fire brigade of Caracal has been arrested.

Several villagers who labored hard but in vain to save the building were badly burned.

CHINESE MUTINY TAKES SERIOUS TURN

LINK WITH REVOLT FEARED

Some See Connection With Canton Rebellion—Stimson Note Stiffens Mukden Attitude.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 4.—Foreign reports received here reveal the nature of the troop mutiny at Pukow, which is more serious than had been reported, and possibly has a political connection with the Canton situation, where the mutinous troops had been ordered to participate in the anti-rebel campaign.

It is reported that an entire army parently by prearrangement, revolted Monday night and disarmed the garrison at Pukow, which is two miles from Nanking across the river.

The mutineers guarded the telephone and telegraph communications with Nanking to prevent the news being flashed across the river, and systematically looted Pukow all night, raiding all shops and government offices, including the Finance Ministry branch, forcing the safes and stealing valuables and thousands of dollars in cash.

They then proceeded to the railway, where they looted the premises, including a trainload of comforts collected by Mrs. Chiang Kai-shek at Shanghai for the troops on the Honan front, and fired the railway shed. The fire, which at first threatened the entire premises, was extinguished by the railway staff.

The mutineers also seized all rolling stock, including ten new locomotives recently delivered by a foreign firm, and went north, compelling the drivers to operate them. As they proceeded north they seized other rolling stock, including two armored cars, preventing the possibility of immediate pursuit.

Presently the mutineers concentrated at Chuchow, forty miles from Pukow, where they are likely to be joined by other Anhwei troops, and as General Shi Hyu-san, chairman of the Anhwei Government, and provincial leader disappeared simultaneously from his Nanking hotel, there are doubts as to whether it was really a mutiny.

Nanking promptly dispatched the loyal Third Division to suppress the mutineers, but no clashes have been reported yet.

Mukden Stiffens Attitude.

Since the dispatch by the powers of notes reminding China and Russia of their obligations under the Kellogg pact in the Sino-Russian dispute—a step of which Mukden had foreknowledge—Mukden's attitude has stiffened.

Meanwhile Nanking maintains a discreet silence, striving energetically to dispel the impression that Mukden undertook independent negotiations. This aspect of the situation explains the State Department's assertion in reply to Russia's criticism that it was not officially informed by China of any negotiations, the reason apparently being that while the note was addressed to Nanking as the Government, Mukden independently initiated negotiations without referring to Nanking, which maintains only a shadowy influence in Manchuria.

MUKDEN FINDS TERMS OF REDS UNACCEPTABLE

Tentative Agreement in Rail Dispute Repudiated by Chang's Headquarters.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MUKDEN, Dec. 4.—Terms for the settlement of the Manchurian dispute, tentatively accepted yesterday, have proved unacceptable to the authorities here, it is stated tonight, objection being taken to the Soviet's proposal that M. Emshanoff and M. Elsmont, manager and assistant manager of the Chinese Eastern Railway, should be employed on the railway in other capacities.

The Chinese authorities here, who state they are desirous of restoring relations on a permanently friendly basis, contend that the retention of these men is not in the interest of peace, and therefore they cannot see their way to agree to their presence on the railway.

By waiving this point, it is said, Russia can secure immediately a peaceful settlement of the conflict. Russia, it is understood, will appoint M. Ivanoff as manager, a position he held a few years ago.

Tsai Yun-sheng and Li Shao-keng, the Mukden Government's delegates to the Nikolsk conference, returned to Mukden about midnight tonight and reported immediately to a special session of the political council the terms that they had tentatively agreed upon at Nikolsk.

TURK ASSAILS HOOVER PLAN

Deputy Sees Selfish Motives In Food Ship Immunity Scheme.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Dec. 4.—Deputy Zeki Mesgoul of Adrianople, writing in the Millieti this morning, attacks President Hoover's proposal regarding immunity for food ships in war time.

"By a brilliant gesture having a humanitarian appearance the United States is trying to put her commerce on a well-based guarantee even during a war when America is neutral," he writes. "During the World War she protested blockade, but when she became a combatant she helped to blockade Germany.

"Are the European nations going to let America, which is a great power in blockades, influence their affairs whether she is in a war or not?"

KELLOGG PACT MOVE INTERESTS EUROPE

FEEL REDS HAVE REMINDER

Though Soviet Reply Is Considered Impolite, Diplomats See Stimson Note as Salutary.

By EDWIN L. JAMES.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—The first attempt to use the Kellogg pact to prevent war has aroused the keenest interest in all chancelleries of Europe, and attention is keen despite the lack of enthusiasm in some quarters.

Although Moscow's reply expressing surprise at certain powers intervening in an affair which was none of their business, and expressing surprise that Washington dares to give advice to a government it does not recognize, might be characterized from one point of view as discouraging, as well as impolite, yet the fact remains that the Soviets have been reminded of their obligations under the anti-war pact, and it is now equally sure that they cannot easily forget them.

But the most interesting lesson drawn from this first experience is the development that in applying the Kellogg pact the signatories may find themselves up against the same difficulty as members of the League of Nations in applying Article XVI of the Covenant calling for sanctions. And it may be added that America has not failed repeatedly to call attention to those League difficulties.

The main trouble that the League would face would be in obtaining a unanimity of the members of the Council excluding those directly concerned in the dispute. That has always loomed up as a great trouble, but now the same trouble arises under the Kellogg pact.

While England, France and Italy heeded the Washington tocsin call to action, Japan and Germany would not heed. For they declined the honor of calling Russia and China to attention. Tokio feared that the moment was not ripe for such action, especially since direct negotiations were under way, and Berlin could not see its way clear to intervene in view of Germany's special position as a protector of Russian interests in China and Chinese interests in Russia.

Yet Moscow's attention and Nanking's attention was called to the Kellogg pact. And so the question legitimately arises as to whether the anti-war pact may not in effect present greater elasticity than the League covenant.

Under the covenant nothing can be done without unanimity, whereas under the Kellogg pact without unanimity something was done. What the incident may indicate as to the difficulty eventually of designating the aggressor under the Kellogg pact may form another chapter.

If Moscow intends to settle the dispute peaceably with China, it might well be that M. Litvinoff wishes Soviet Russia to get the credit for giving the world an example of how not to fight, though tempted.

Diplomats here who know China think no harm, and possibly good, should come from Washington's initiative, unless it should serve to stiffen the Chinese in a manner to interfere with direct negotiations. The latest dispatches from Nanking indicate that the danger is not entirely imaginary.

RED HORDE RAVAGES SOUTHERN KIANGSI

AMOY, China, Dec. 4 (AP).—Belated information coming from Kanchow, Kiangsi Province, stated today that a Communist army, which in reality was a bandit horde that in recent months has been ravishing and looting the countryside south of Fukien, Northeast Kwangtung Province, now is operating in the southern half of Kiangsi.

It was reported that the outlaws entered Kanchow last Sunday, and participated in an orgy of murder and looting, slaying in two days about 100 Chinese officials and members of the gentry.

An American Catholic mission there which has eighteen nuns and priests was reported to be attempting to communicate with authorities outside the area seeking protection. Due to meager information, their situation and which authorities they appealed to were not determined.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 4 (AP).—The Shanghai headquarters of the Lazarus Mission, which is represented at Kanchow, received a telegram from its Kanchow branch Nov. 30 saying, "Reds have captured the cities about Kanchow and the situation is serious." Headquarters of the mission are at Germantown, Pa.

"Government troops are leaving the area," continued the telegram from the mission, "and we are unprotected. Appeal to the Nationalist Government at Nanking to prevent the troops from leaving. Ask the assistance of the American and French authorities."

The telegram, sent by Bishop John A. O'Shea, has been forwarded to the American Legation in Peking, which requested the Nationalist Government's Foreign Office at Nanking to maintain sufficient troops at Kanchow to protect the missionaries. The Nationalist Government has not replied to this request. Local headquarters of the mission have been seeking to communicate with Kanchow, but thus far have been unsuccessful.

A letter from the Kanchow mission dated Nov. 15 said:

"Conditions are uncertain. At Shing-kuo, fifty miles from Kanchow, the Reds are having a glorious holiday of looting and killing, establishing a Red government. Nobody dares molest them."

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 4 (AP).—Fourteen American St. Vincentian priests and eight American Sisters of Charity are engaged in missionary work in the vicariate of Kanchow, China.

No direct word has been received at St. Vincent's Seminary, in Germantown, where all the priests in the disturbed area studied. The Very Rev. Frederick J. Maune, provincial of the Eastern province of the congregation, said today that the missionaries were on the most cordial relations with the Nationalist Government and that there friends here, while concerned, were not unduly alarmed.

JAPANESE PAPER HITS NOTE.

Jiji Shimpo Sees Abuse of Pact, but Government Is Sympathetic.

TOKIO, Dec. 4 (AP).—The Japanese newspaper Jipi Shimpo editorially asserted today that invocation of the Kellogg anti-war pact by the powers under present circumstances surrounding the Manchurian situation must be regarded as an abuse of that treaty and is likely to harm its dignity and validity.

"Intervention of the four powers at the present juncture of negotiations is likely to be more harmful than beneficial," said the newspaper, adding the opinion that the United States, Great Britain, France and Italy acted without sufficient consideration of the Chinese domestic situation or the probable effect on the direct peace negotiations under way between Mukden and Moscow.

The paper Hochi Shimbun approved the Japanese Government's policy of aloofness and neutrality in view of Japan's special relations both with China and Russia, but believed the powers' declaration beneficial.

Officially, though Japan stood alone among the five powers consulted concerning issuance of declarations calling to the attention of the two nations their obligations under the Kellogg pact, Tokio's determination to remain aloof stood unaltered today.

It was explained that Tokio sympathetically understood the American purposes and desires that the integrity of the anti-war pact be upheld, but Tokio's interpretation of the Manchurian situation and her proximity thereto compelled her to refrain from action likely to be misinterpreted by one or both of the parties in the dispute.

LORDS DISAPPROVE SOVIET RELATIONS

Defeat MacDonald Government, 43 to 21, on Resumption of Diplomatic Exchanges.

THOMSON GIVES ASSURANCE

Says Propaganda Will Not Be Permitted, but Cites Loss of Trade With Russia Since 1926.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—The MacDonald Government was defeated in the House of Lords today over its policy of resuming diplomatic relations with Russia without adequate guarantees being given that Great Britain would not be subjected to Communist propaganda.

The defeat is not taken into much account, but it gave Lord Birkenhead an opportunity to hold up the United States as an example of a country which could increase its trade with Soviet Russia without according it diplomatic recognition, and he quoted long extracts from speeches of leaders of past administrations to the effect that the Soviet régime was held by the United States to be "the negation of every principle of honor and good faith."

Lord Thomson, Air Minister, as the government spokesman, was placed in a position where he was forced to make a declaration that if propaganda continues either by the Russian Government or the Third International here or elsewhere within the British Empire the new Soviet envoy would be sent home again.

"I will read a statement which makes our position as clear as daylight," Lord Thomson said, under pressure from Viscount Brentford, who was anxious to know whether the government would use the "free hand" which it still professes to have.

"His Majesty's Government have shown in the past that they will not tolerate propaganda and have no intention of tolerating it in the future," was Lord Thomson's considered statement.

He explained that the policy of the government was to resume diplomatic relations with the least possible delay and at the same time to safeguard British interests not only in Britain but throughout the empire. "We want to do everything to contribute to the maintenance of world peace and to expand British trade," he said, giving figures to show that British trade with the Soviet had fallen to $24,000,000, a drop of 75 per cent since diplomatic relations were broken off by the Tory Government in 1926.

He held that Great Britain had nothing to fear from Communist propaganda, saying: "We rely most utterly on the common sense of the British people," and supported his argument with the assertion that the communist party here is now one-quarter of its former size and its membership is diminishing. Russian trade had grown with the United States, he said, because the Bolsheviki had never forgiven Britain for fighting them in 1919-20 nor forgotten how the Americans had fed their starving people.

The Archbishop of Canterbury, Dr. Cosmo Gordon Lang, intervened in the debate to say that he favored having some direct channel of protest against Soviet oppression of ministers of religion, but "deliberately refrained" from pronouncing any opinion as to whether diplomatic relations should be resumed.

Both Lord Reading, one of the stalwarts of the Liberal party, and Viscount Cecil of Chelwood supported the government, Lord Cecil declaring that the Bolshevist propaganda was "utterly futile."

Here Lord Melchett asked:

"Are you aware of the Bombay strike, in which 100 were killed, and also that a good deal of the trouble in China, Egypt and Palestine and the general strike here was due to Bolshevist propaganda?"

Lord Birkenhead sarcastically remarked that the government speeches had convinced him that Russian propaganda was "either wholly innocuous or a positive benefit to Britain."

"I am not so sure we ought not to subsidize it," he added.

By a vote of 43 to 21 the Lords carried a motion against the government that diplomatic recognition of the Soviet at the moment is undesirable.

SOVIET PACT REPLY SCORED IN BERLIN

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Dec. 4.—A dearth of even a few kind words for China continues to characterize German press comment on the Russo-Chinese episode, and its latest aspect, as reflected in Moscow's reaction to intervention of the Kellogg pact signatories, suggests to Kreuz Zeitung that the action of the United States and other powers had enabled the Russians to give their waning prestige a coat of fresh paint.

To Lokal Anzeiger Moscow's reply suggests a diplomatic rebuff to the intervening powers, which the latter must silently put up with and which only emphasizes what was to be avoided—admission that the League of Nations and the Kellogg pact both missed fire. The Russo-Chinese conflict, in the view of Kreuz Zeitung, suggested in its incipiency an excellent opportunity to demonstrate to an inquisitive public just how in this new era of peace a threatening world conflict could be nipped in the bud by bringing an offender to his knees through application of economic and financial blockades and, if necessary, joint military punitive expeditions.

The Socialist Vorwaerts says:

"The Soviet's impertinent reply to the United States Government indicates Moscow's painful embarrassment at being reminded of her treaty obligations to submit her controversies to peaceful arbitration, instead of seeking their solution through force of arms.

"That Washington is not entitled to remind Moscow of her treaty responsibilities merely because of the absence of formal diplomatic relations of both countries is a shallow pretext on the part of the Soviet, as she not only signed the Kellogg pact but deposited her ratification of it at Washington. The Moscow Government, therefore, has no right to interpose protests if the United States now reminds her that she is obliged to carry out the provisions which she signed along with fifty-five other powers.

"Up to the present only the Soviet's insolent reply to America has been published in Moscow, by which procedure that government obviously desires to show off as a strong man for the benefit of its political followers. It is probable that the replies to the British and French Governments were composed in a more accommodating tone, although their purport be the same as the reply to Washington."

As a result of the diplomatic procedure by China, an enhancement of the Soviet sphere of influence in Manchuria may be reckoned with and the agreement reached at Nikolsk-Ussarik is, therefore, fraught with all sorts of eventualities in the nature of overt acts on both sides, the Tageblatt believes. Discussing the Soviet's reply to the United States the Tageblatt assumes that this was dictated by the Soviet's reliance on Japan, which shares the Russian view that the present controversy concerns only the two parties involved.

"The Soviet Government appeared to be in greater hurry than any other of the signatory powers to ratify the Kellogg pact," the Tageblatt says. "It thus knew full well it was concluding a pact with a government with which it was not maintaining official relations. How then can it consistently take umbrage with American initiative which obviously was dictated by the contents of this pact?

"This highly singular conception will only serve to amplify the unfavorable impression of the Soviet's rejection of the arguments addressed by America, England and France in the name of the Kellogg pact to the Moscow Government."

Inventor Writes Approval of the Capper-Kelly Measure.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Thomas A. Edison has written a letter, received today by Representative Kelly of Pennsylvania, approving the Capper-Kelly fair trade bill.

"Fair competition between manufacturers is a good thing and will inevitably result in fair prices to the public," the inventor wrote.

"The competition developed by the price-cutting methods of certain retailers is harmful to the manufacturer, destructive to the legitimate dealer and of no lasting benefit to the small portion of the public temporarily affected by it. I heartily approve of the Capper-Kelly bill."

UNFRIENDLY MOTIVE DENIED BY STIMSON

gers to peace which from time to time arise.

As far back as The Hague convention of 1899, the nations of the world agreed that strangers to a dispute, on their own initiative, could make suggestions looking for peace between the States which were at variance and that the exercise of that right is not to be regarded by the parties in conflict as an unfriendly act. This was reaffirmed again in 1907 and has been the recognized rule ever since.

Message Not Unfriendly.

The message of the American Government was sent not from unfriendly motives, but because this government regards the Pact of Paris as a covenant which has profoundly modified the attitude of the world toward peace and because this government intends to shape its own policy accordingly.

In the language of the joint statement issued by the President of the United States and the Prime Minister of Great Britain on Oct. 10 last, "both our governments resolve to accept the peace pact not only as a declaration of good intentions but as a positive obligation to direct national policy in accordance with its pledge."

The present declaration of the authorities of Russia that they are now proceeding with direct negotiations which will make possible settlement of the conflict is not the least significant evidence to show that the public opinion of the world is a live factor which can be promptly mobilized and which has become a factor of prime importance in the solution of the problems and controversies which may arise between nations.

Although Mr. Stimson would not enter into a discussion of the charge of M. Litvinoff that the United States knew Russia and China were composing their difficulties before the appeal was made to them in behalf of peace, it was denied at the State Department that such was the case.

The communications to Russia and China were dispatched last Saturday night, and the latest official information on the Manchurian situation at that time was to the effect that Russian planes were continuing their bombing operations.

Moreover, the report said, it had been unable to obtain confirmation of rumors that Mukden was prepared to establish the status quo ante of the Chinese Eastern as a condition precedent to direct negotiations with Russia.

Secretary Stimson stated that he would not transmit his statement to M. Litvinoff, being satisfied the latter would receive the text through the press. He also expressed the hope that the whole Manchurian situation was a closed incident.

Although when the State Department closed today neither the Russian or Chinese reply to the appeal for peace had been received, the text of the Chinese reply was received in press dispatches late this afternoon. Beyond the comment that it appeared to be friendly in tone, officials would not discuss it.

Nor had any official word been received to confirm earlier press reports that Russia and China had reached a settlement through a compromise over official personnel for the administration of the Chinese Eastern.

The Chinese Legation late this afternoon delivered a note to the State Department, the contents of which were not revealed, beyond that it was not the reply to Secretary Stimson's communication of Saturday night. It is understood the note delivered today was an explanation of China's recent attitude in Manchuria, and that it holds the Russians responsible for the untoward developments there.

Soviet Note Surprises.

Although officials had expected an irritating reply from Russia because of the general attitude of the Soviet Government that all nations are hostile to it, they were not prepared for the sharpness of the rejoinder through the characterization of the American move as not a friendly act.

Notwithstanding the tone of the Russian reply, it was felt that the forceful steps the United States had taken to mobilize world opinion in behalf of peace had had a salutary effect on the direct negotiations between Russia and China.

For months the two governments have attempted sporadically to resolve their difficulty and there was every prospect, in the opinion here, of weeks more of fruitless negotiation when the appeal was made. This, it is believed, may have induced both sides to agree to the compromise settlement reported in press dispatches last night from the Far East.

It is generally accepted that the attitude taken by Russia has lessened greatly its chances of diplomatic recognition by the United States, but this was a subject Secretary Stimson would not discuss.

Quite apart from such questions of detail as Russian recognition and the appropriateness of the appeal made by the United States in the Manchurian crisis, Washington officials believed the American Government has by its course taken a long step forward in its position as a world power.

It cannot, for example, in diplomatic opinion here, fail to take action in the future in similar emergencies without advertising to the world a conspicuous omission.

Four Countries Join Us.

That other nations have not been deterred by the official reaction of Russia was demonstrated today when word was received from four governments that they were taking similar action to the United States. Full cooperation was promised by Mexico, Cuba and Panama, while the Netherlands moved immediately to appeal to China for peace in the name of the Kellogg treaty.

It will not take this action with reference to Russia, it explained, because of its lack of diplomatic relations with the Soviet Government.

The Mexican Government informed Ambassador Morrow that it "was in entire accord with the principles expressed" by the United States, "quite willing to issue a statement relative to its attitude in the Russo-Chinese conflict," and would "send a communication to both the Chinese and Russian Governments."

In addition it instructed its diplomatic representatives in Central America "to communicate to the governments of those countries the attitude of the Mexican Government."

Considerable interest was manifested in the prompt action of the Caribbean countries and the fact that Mexico was also urging Central American countries to support the anti-war treaty.

These are the nations with which the United States has closest relations in Latin America, and they are keenly alive to the advantages of international peace.

While it is recognized that in the event of domestic disturbances they might invoke the treaty against the landing of American marines and bluejackets for the protection of foreign nationals and properties, the fact remains that the United States sent forces to Nicaragua in the recent revolution only upon the invitation of that country.

President Hoover, in his message to Congress yesterday, mentioned the desirability of returning the marines from such countries as Nicaragua, Haiti and China, but held out no immediate prospect of such a move.

Nanking Sends Replies.

SHANGHAI, Dec. 4 (AP).—The Nationalist Government's foreign official at Nanking announced tonight that identical replies had been dispatched to Washington and London to notes of the American and British Governments concerning China's obligations as a signatory of the Kellogg anti-war pact.

The Foreign Office stated that the reply sent to Washington said: "Throughout the present dispute with Soviet Russia, the Nationalist Government has maintained a peaceful attitude, refraining from adopting hostile military actions except for self protection, as established facts attest.

"Being a co-signatory to the treaty for renunciation of war, the Nationalist Government circularized other signatories of the pact Aug. 8, 1929, declaring that China would, apart from measures of self-protection and defense of territorial sovereignty against external invasions, faithfully abide by the pact's Article II, and that she was ready at any time within reasonable limits to negotiate with the Soviet Government for settlement of the present dispute.

"The Nationalist Government has always reposed implicit confidence in the aforesaid treaty and has desisted from acting contrary to its spirit. It will continue to adhere to its reiterated policy."

LE TEMPS SCORES RED REPLY.

Paris Paper Calls Statement From Moscow "a Piece of Insolence."

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 4.—It is as "a piece of insolence without precedent" that the Paris Temps tonight characterizes Moscow's reply to the initiative taken by the Washington State Department and approved by other signatories to the Kellogg pact in calling the attention of the Russian and Chinese Governments to their obligations under the pact.

"Every one will see by this reply," Le Temps says, "that it is simply a waste of time and trouble to expect Russia to join in the international life of the world and to renew diplomatic relations with the present governments. Even consideration of the need of credits abroad has had no influence before the revolutionary passion of the writers of this reply.

"Moscow interprets the pact just as she wishes, and even while manifestly violating the pact and carrying war into foreign territory, it dares to proclaim that only the Soviet Union practices a policy of peace and respects its signed word. Such an attitude will edify all those who might have had confidence that the signature of the Soviet Government on an international treaty had any moral value."

LLOYD GEORGE WARNS OF DANGER IN ARMS

"Chariot of Peace Can't Advance on Road Cluttered With Cannon," He Declares.

SCORES LEAGUE OF NATIONS

He Calls It an Oratorical Forum —Holds Disarmament Commission Has Done Nothing.

ASSAILS TRAINED RESERVES

Liberal Leader Tells Commons Facts About Them Are Obscured—He Sees Reliance on Force.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—David Lloyd George delivered a slashing attack in the House of Commons today against the existence of vast armaments in Europe and America and suggested naval limitation was futile unless accompanied by a reduction of war materials and the trained reserves maintained since the war.

With flashes of his old fire, Mr. Lloyd George charged that Allied nations had trampled on the solemn obligations of the League covenant and the Treaty of Versailles—especially on the disarmament pledge which accompaned the disarmament of Germany in 1919. The League of Nations, he declared, was an oratorical forum "quite in danger of being run by flap-doodlers" and its disarmament commission was "the greatest farce." Then, using the words of President Hoover for a text, Mr. Lloyd George asserted "the chariot of peace cannot advance along a road cluttered with cannon."

Scores Trained Reserves.

So impressed was the House with Mr. Lloyd George's speech that it approved a resolution calling for an eventual treaty which would reduce naval, military and air armaments, including war material and personnel, and also providing for the coordination of the British defense forces.

Mr. Lloyd George was bitter in his criticism of the League of Nations, whose covenant he signed and whose earliest meetings he attended.

"Only one statesman, President Hoover, has had the courage to point out that there may be another war in this generation, and he drew particular attention to the important quesion of reserves," Mr. Lloyd George said.

"Every time I and my friends have tried to point out the facts concerning the world's reserves of trained men, statistics, carefully cooled in the League of Nations, are hurled at our heads simply giving the peace establishments, which mean nothing and which are covered up by verbiage which obscures all the vital facts about reserves and the great mass of equipment behind them."

Using Britain as an example, Mr. Lloyd George said she had 127 heavy guns before the war and manufactured 11,000. She had 3,000 machine guns at the beginning of the war and manufactured 240,000 and she also manufactured 5,000,000 rifles, the majority of which were still in existence. He quoted Mr. Hoover in saying there were 10,000,000 more men trained to war than in 1914.

Attacks League Commission.

"There is a commission sitting at Geneva," continued Mr. Lloyd George, "but it has done absolutely nothing. Great meetings of the League of Nations are held with eloquent speeches in favor of peace, disarmament and arbitration. We cannot settle this great question merely by perorations. I am not against perorations—in their proper place. Rhetoric is the gasoline, but we must also have the machine. At Geneva it is all gasoline and no machine. The result is it all goes up in the air and there is nothing but the perfume. When one passes through Geneva it fills the air and chokes one, but nothing is done.

"Armaments and the cost of armaments are going up. The nations are showing they are not relying on arbitration or pacts. They are still in the same mood and are relying on force."

Mr. Lloyd George paid a tribute to Signor Mussolini for saying Italy would be willing to accept any figures, however, low, providing they were not exceeded by any other European Continental power.

"If every one approached the matter in that spirit something could be done," Mr. Lloyd George added.

He deplored the rejection of the Russian disarmament proposals, for he said, "until Russia disarms we will never get disarmament in Central Europe."

Wants General Navy Accord.

Sir Samuel Hoare, Air Minister in the Baldwin Cabinet, agreed with Mr. Lloyd George that "the growth of air armaments is the greatest of all dangers." He cited the air expenditure of the United States—"a country obviously immune from air attack"—as having "risen by no less than 125 per cent." As a matter of practical politics, however, Sir Samuel suggested it was better to begin with the simpler aspects of the problem.

Albert V. Alexander, First Lord of the Admiralty, wound up the debate for the government with a somewhat non-committal answer, expressing the hope that the five-power naval conference would lead to substantial reductions.

"It would be a very grave mistake if we entered the conference giving the impression it would be all right if we just got agreement among two or three parties," said Mr. Alexander.

COST OF OUR ARMY STIRS FRENCH GIBES

Hoover's Message to Congress Called Friendly, but War Costs Arouse Comment.

By P. J. PHILIP.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 4.—President Hoover's message to Congress, especially that part dealing with the growing cost to the United States of its system of national defense, has been read with much interest in France.

A contrast is made between the increase in expenditure in the United States, while in France, since the war, army service has been reduced to one year, and, although a new navy is being created, the naval budget this year is still 18 per cent below what it was in 1914. It is only in expenditures for the air force that there has been any increase.

At the London naval conference the French Government will lay on the table a full and open statement of what it thinks it needs for national defense, and will assert that it is building against no one and engaging in no naval race. All that it is building is for the legitimate needs of defense.

Contrasting this keeping down of expenditure with the increase which has taken place in the United States budget, Le Temps says this evening:

"These figures merit attention, for it is only necessary to regard what the Americans consider an indispensable minimum for their security to appreciate at full value the spontaneous sacrifices which France has made. And yet there are people in the world who, even now, are seeking to resurrect the legend that French militarism and imperialism is the last obstacle to disarmament and the consolidation of peace."

Note is also taken, with satisfaction, of the pacific spirit of the President's message.

"It is clearly apparent," says Le Temps, "that America is entering the London conference with the hope of reaching a reduction of armaments and not merely their limitation."

Pierre Bernus, who, in the Journal des Debats, criticized severely the twelfth-hour intervention of the powers in the Russia-Manchuria quarrel, is somewhat caustic in his comment on the Presidential message.

"Perhaps," he says, "Mr. Hoover exaggerates somewhat in affirming that the Kellogg pact has raised the moral tone of the world. It would scarcely seem so. He expresses hope that the naval conference will be crowned with success, but this hope will scarcely be shared everywhere in view of the poor preparation which has been made for the conference.

"It will be noted, too, that Mr. Hoover recognizes that the military expenditures of the United States exceed those of any other country in the world. Would it not be possible for America to effect some reduction before it tries to lay down the law for other countries, which, while much more exposed to danger, yet spend much less on armies and fleets? If President Hoover were to do so, it would prove the United States has no imperialistic, dominative designs. But he doesn't seem to have thought of that."

THE HAGUE PREPARES FOR SECOND PARLEY

Queen's Residence to Receive Young Plan Conference—It Will Convene Jan. 3.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

THE HAGUE, Dec. 4.—Queen Wilhelmina's residence is being prepared to receive in January the second Hague conference on the Young plan. The hall of the first Chamber of Parliament probably will not be available for meetings. The second Chamber will not meet during the first part of January and it is probable that its rooms will this time be used.

For the press the same arrangements will be made as during last August in the old Knight's Hall. As the hotels at the bathing resort of Scheveningen are closed in the Winter the question of housing the delegates and journalists is very difficult.

Several hotels have already been fully booked by official delegations, which are very numerous. The French, for instance, intend to bring thirty or forty in their party, among them Foreign Minister Briand and Finance Minister Cheron.

THE HAGUE, Dec. 4 (AP).—The Dutch Government today received a communication from Premier Jaspar of Belgium, president of The Hague Reparations Conference, stating that he proposes to convene the second conference on Jan. 3.

GERRY TO BUY PAPER.

Former Rhode Island Senator Will Get Providence Tribune.

Special to The New York Times.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Dec. 4.—Former Senator Peter G. Gerry, owner of The Providence News, announced today the pending purchase of The Evening Tribune.

It is expected that The Tribune, which has a morning and evening Associated Press membership, will be consolidated with The News, which is an evening paper founded in 1907.

Mr. Gerry will oppose Senator Metcalf in the next election.

FRENCH NAVY NOTE DELIVERED TO ITALY

MINISTERS VARY ON WANTS

Navy Department Sees 800,000 Tons Necessary for Defense—Reich Cruisers a Factor.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 4.—In a note which was handed to the Italian Ambassador, Count Manzoni, this morning, M. Briand set forth in outline the attitude which France will adopt at the London naval conference. He added to his written statement verbal explanations. This was the first real step taken toward reaching some preliminary agreement with Italy before the conference begins. In view of the facts that the French position is as it is and that the Italian position as set forth in the Italian note of last week is entirely different, it is perhaps a very great deal to expect that there will be any substantial progress made in these preliminary conversations unless some new idea is put forward in the meanwhile.

Sees Parity Issue Dangerous.

France, it is believed, explained in the note which was handed over today that she considered it inadvisable and dangerous to begin discussion on the question of parity and took the position that each nation should have the right to build according to its needs, but that each should make public its intentions and justify its claims. France has, indeed, taken up again the form of settlement which was proposed in the Anglo-French accord of last year, against which there was such an outcry. In that accord, France's needs were admitted and it was agreed that each country should give the other full information as to its building program.

That is still the French position. It is, of course, in complete contradiction to the Italian claim for parity with France, but as France has now 550,000 tons against Italy's 260,000 it is considered here entirely impossible, even if it were desirable, that any suggestion of parity can be seriously entertained.

The French note is, it is understood, somewhat in the nature of an inquiry as to the extent of Italy's needs and there is perfect confidence here that if the issue between the two countries is to be judged on that basis it will be easily obvious to every one that a country with such widely separated coasts as France and such a widespread colonial empire, has greater justification for a strong defense navy than has the Mediterranean peninsula. Spain has indeed as much right to ask for parity as has Italy.

Ministers Differ on Needs.

In France itself, however, the question of how great the needs are for defense is not entirely or easily settled. There are daily arguments going on between the Naval Department and other Ministries. The Ministry of Marine, for instance, asserts that France needs 130,000 tons of submarines for the real defense of her coasts and communications. One argument in support of this is that the defense of the coast was formerly in the hands of the army. Fortresses were established everywhere, and it was the military who were charged with the task of resisting invasion from the sea. Now most of the fortresses have been abandoned on account of the cost of upkeep and the change in the situation due to modern artillery. The coast defense has become entirely a charge of the small submarine.

The ambition of the Navy Department is to have a navy of between 800,000 and 900,000 tons, which alone is considered sufficient for appropriate defense. The other Ministries, however, have also their word to say, and it will not be only what the Admirals want that will decide the French statement of needs.

In the whole situation the French give importance to the new German cruisers, which are certainly a new factor to be considered. They have been discussing the total suppression of capital ships, but it is now believed they will incline rather toward the idea of a limitation of tonnage.

Active conversations, it is understood, are being conducted with both British and American naval experts with a view to a proper preparation for the conference, and it is stated that from the French side these conversations have proved very satisfactory, the French view obtaining immediate appreciation.

Hoover's Warning Stressed.

ROME, Dec. 4 (AP).—President Hoover's warning that if the London naval conference failed a huge outlay would be necessary for naval armament was displayed prominently today in the Italian press, which devoted considerable space to summaries of the Presidential message to Congress.

While the morning papers did not comment directly upon the President's message, there was an indication of the prevalent sentiment in the attention given to certain of its details, as that on possible naval expenditures.

The Popolo di Roma showed some irritation that Franco-Italian conversations apparently are lagging and declared the fault was not Italy's. The newspaper said Italy needed cruisers about as greatly as England due to the necessity of importing most of her foodstuffs and the length of the Italian coast line to defend.

HURLEY PLAN FAILS TO AROUSE BRITISH

They Hold Such Private Proposals of No Great Merit as Issue Lies With Government.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec 4.—There is little or no reaction here to Edward N. Hurley's suggestion that the industrialists of the world should combine to refuse essential war materials to nations which go to war.

It is felt here that such proposals from private citizens have no great merit because such action would have to be under the aegis of the governments for the simple reason that in time of war or of danger of war private citizens could not act except in agreement with the wishes of their governments.

Should the American Government make such a proposal it would undoubtedly be received with the greatest interest. But it is remarked here that Mr. Hurley's suggestion is in some respects analogous to the economic boycott plans of the League of Nations with which the American Government has rather consistently refused to have anything to do.

Churches Plan Harlem Campaign.

The Harlem League of the Greater New York Federation of Churches gave a luncheon yesterday at the Belmont, to discuss plans to extend the League's work among the negroes of Harlem. "There are 100,000 people in Harlem who are without church affiliations," said Paul E. Baker, secretary of the league. "If our plans to build the great Harlem of the future are to succeed, then these people must first be Christianized." Other speakers included Dr. William B. Millar, Dr. H. F. LaFlamme, Horatio S. Hill, Clarence H. Kelsey and Mrs. E. P. Roberts.

BRITISH STRESS RISE IN ARMS COST HERE

Hoover's Figures Are Displayed as Partly Explaining America's Interest in Disarmament.

OUTLAY HELD A HOME ISSUE

America Is Mentioned as the Only Nation Spending Much More on Arms Than Before War.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—That part of President Hoover's speech outlining the national defense expenditures of the United States has received great prominence in the London press. While there is very little comment, the facts and figures as given by the President are presented as explaining in part the great interest Washington shows in disarmament work.

However, in semiofficial quarters it is mentioned that the United States is the only nation which today is spending a great deal more on armaments than before the World War. It is mentioned that the British Navy in 1913 totaled 2,200,000 tons and represented 32 per cent of the world's total naval forces, whereas today it totals 1,379,000 tons and represents 25 per cent of the world's war fleets. The American Navy in 1913 totaled 844,000 tons, representing 12 per cent of the world's total warship tonnage, whereas today it stands at 1,261,000 tons, representing 24.6 per cent of the world total.

British Lay Stress on Needs.

In other words, while the British fleet has been reduced as to its total tonnage by nearly 50 per cent, the American fleet has been increased about 50 per cent. Naturally, it is added, this costs money.

There is no disposition to say this means America is responsible for any naval races now going on, and it is emphasized that England seeks only the warships she needs and is not disturbed about the American forces. "For many months past, spokesmen for the British Government have kept to this line of explanation of their position.

The figures given by President Hoover indicate the United States spends on national defense about three-fourth of what the Continent of Europe spends, excluding Russia. The League of Nations compilations indicate a total annual cost for European nations, excepting Russia, of about $1,100,000,000, whereas America is spending this year $783,000,000, Britain's expenditure on national defense this year will be some $580,000,000.

Taking the population of the continent of Europe as 300,000,000, it is apparent that the per capita expenditure on national defense in the United States is higher than in Europe. It is lower than in Britain, if one takes the population of the British Isles, but doubtless the British would argue their expenditure is partly on behalf of the large population in their colonies and dominions. In any event, it can be established that Europe is spending about the same as before the war on armaments, whereas America is spending about three times as much.

Cost Seen as Domestic Issue.

There will doubtless come forth in the Continental press, criticisms about this expenditure by the nation which is leading the world toward disarmament, and those critics will not bother about differentials in cost. But it should be said that in London the line of comment runs that the United States is the best judge of what it needs for self defense, although here and there one hears mention of the ending of all wars by the Kellogg pact. In Britain there exists an idea that America's increased armament expenditure represents a national policy which Britain should abstain from criticizing.

BYRD'S TRAIL PARTY BALKED BY ICE PASS

easy path while taking a difficult one only a short distance away.

From the air the inequalities in the surface and the bridged and open crevasses are revealed, so that the photographs act as a chart for the men winding their way through the otherwise perplexing surface of the glaciers.

The last two days' marches to the mountains made by Dr. Gould's party were unusually long and rank with some of the best sledging trips made.

The men are now in a position where, if their dogs do not give out, they will be able to trail fast with light loads, and cover a considerable territory, although, as Dr. Gould indicates, he is finding the distances between the points he wishes to reach much greater than anticipated.

The sleds of which he speaks were made the past Winter by Sverre Strom and Bernt Balchen, their uprights and crosspieces deftly carved out by hand knives. The sleds are lashed with rawhide and are very flexible. Some weighed fifty and some sixty pounds. They are works of art, graceful and strong, modeled after the sledges used for hundreds of years by the Vikings and their descendants.

GERMANS PRAISE BYRD OVER BERLIN RADIO

Dr. Orlovius Declares He Was Not Chasing Records—Koehl Condemns Gran's Criticism.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Dec. 4.—While lecturing for a half hour before a microphone at Berlin's broadcasting station on Commander Byrd's South Pole flight, Dr. Heinz Orlovius, of the Lufthansa press department, paid a high tribute to the Commander as a "serious explorer with a great sense of responsibility and seriousness who was neither chasing records nor hunting sensations."

Dr. Orlovius gave vivid descriptions of the many efforts to reach both poles and pointed out that thirty-five years ago the Swedish scientist Andrée tried to reach the North Pole in a balloon and lost his life, as others have done.

He declared that 800,000,000 marks had been spent on expeditions to reach the North Pole, and said that the only man who reached the North Pole on foot was the American citizen Peary.

"An American again was the first man to cross not only the North Pole in an airplane but the South Pole as well, with his three daring companions," Dr. Orlovius continued. "Whether Commander Byrd missed the Pole by a few inches or feet does not matter, because it is only of scientific value. But the man who crossed both Poles and thus spanned the globe north and south is the greatest pioneer of aviation in the coming generations, because future traffic will undoubtedly lead via the North Pole, which is the shortest route between Berlin and Alaska, or England and Tokio.

"As to the pioneer work for coming generations, it is no Utopian dream that within one or two centuries the arctic regions will be the world's greatest pasture and meat reserve, the same as Alaska is to a great extent for America today.

"Humanity will not rest until the northern borders of America, Asia and Europe meet, and while commercial exploration appears impossible, the idea that some day this sixth hemisphere will be a paradise for colonization does not appear fantastic."

Dr. Orlovius concluded, after quoting the closing passages of Commander Byrd's book, that "Byrd is also a pioneer for world peace."

Captain Hermann Koehl, the transatlantic flier, denounced Major Gran's accusations directed against Commander Byrd, whom Captain Koehl met in the United States and whom he said he knows as sincere, honest and reliable. He does not doubt that Commander Byrd, who conquered the North Pole and the Atlantic with the same great machine, reached the South Pole.

He also condemned Major Gran's statement that the Byrd expedition had not been carefully prepared and stressed the point that eighteen months' preparations are more than sufficient and that the expedition was perfectly equipped with all necessary equipment and instruments.

Captain Koehl has sent to Commander Byrd and his daring companions his best greetings and congratulations and he hopes that these greetings will reach them in the silent Antarctic regions.

AMUNDSEN AIDE COMMENTS.

Wisting, Who Went to South Pole, Says Area Should Be Norway's.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COPENHAGEN, Dec. 4.—The Extrabladet publishes, in a Stockholm cable dispatch, an interview with the Norwegian Captain Oscar Wisting, who, as a member of Roald Amundsen's Antarctic expedition of 1911-12, was one of the four men whom Captain Amundsen took with him to the South Pole.

Asked what he thought about Commander Byrd's statement that he had to force his plane to cross high mountains before he reached the Pole, Captain Wisting answered:

"I think Byrd followed a course more to the west than Amundsen's expedition did. Although the weather was brilliant, we observed no mountains [illegible] degrees 10 minutes, and naturally not at the Pole itself.

"Byrd may, however, very well have observed mountains, as he was flying, while Amundsen's expedition wandered on foot. Byrd may also have seen Amundsen's depots."

Captain Wisting finally asserted that the South Polar Plateau must belong to Norway, whose explorers first set foot on that territory, but he expressed the opinion that England might claim the country around the routes taken by the Scott and Shackleton parties.

Commander Byrd crossed the Queen Maud Mountains, the most difficult parts of his flight both to and from the South Pole, at between 85 and 86 south latitude. Byrd reported seeing mountains rising from the plateau between 86 and 87 south, but at such a distance to the west of Amundsen's route that they might not have been sighted by a party afoot. From 85 south to the Pole, Byrd, as Captain Wisting says was the case with the Amundsen party, near whose route the Commander flew, found the plateau a level plain.

TELLS OF BYRD'S BACKING.

Gibbons Over Radio Replies to Criticism Accredited to Major Gran.

Floyd Gibbons, newspaper correspondent and author, speaking last night over the radio from station WEAF, gave a talk on American scientific explorations and the discoveries of Commander Byrd, replying to statements accredited to Major Trygave Gran, Norwegian explorer, who had been quoted as saying that Americans were only explorers as soon as sufficient money was collected, not needing scientific experience or years of preparation.

Mr. Gibbons said that by the usual American system of financing such expeditions as that of Byrd in the Antarctic, exploration was not a hobby of the idle, but was the result of support by persons in every walk of life who were interested in scientific progress. He said that European explorers and scientists as well received the respect, good-will and financial backing of this country.

Commander Byrd's flight to the North Pole, as filmed by him, will be shown at the Film Guild Cinema, 52 West Eighth Street, beginning on Saturday next, it was announced yesterday. The film will be shown in addition to the theatre's regular program.

New Zealander Joining Byrd.

WELLINGTON, N. Z., Dec. 4 (AP).—R. J. Orbell, wireless expert of Auckland, has accepted an invitation to join the Byrd Antarctic Expedition. He will sail aboard the supply ship Eleanor Bolling probably next week.

Norway Congratulates Byrd.

OSLO, Norway, Dec. 4 (AP).—Premier Mowinckel today telegraphed a message for transmission to Commander Byrd, saying "The Norwegian Government wishes to congratulate you and Balchen most heartily on your brilliant achievement."

A Message to EXECUTIVES

Due to internal changes beyond his control—or ours—a member of our organization will be available shortly. And because we know the man and his abilities we are anxious to locate him.

He is young in age (35) but old in experience—having held the positions of Assistant Treasurer and Comptroller, with entire management of large accounting departments and clerical forces. Obviously, he is well versed in modern accounting methods and modern office management.

He is a hard worker—the kind who leads his assistants who learn to like him and who give him the utmost co-operation. For such a man we are seeking a position. A letter addressed to Vice-President, Box P304, New York Times will arrange an interview.

STIMSON AND STAFF TO SAIL ON BREMEN

German Ship Is Compromise Between Less Speedy American and British Liners.

PARTY LEAVES ON JAN. 10

Australian Delegate Will Start Next Week for London Parley on Navy Cuts Jan. 21.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—The American delegation to the London naval conference will sail from New York on Jan. 11 on the North German Lloyd steamer Bremen, the speediest liner in the world.

Acceptance of bookings on that steamer represents a compromise between going on an American or a British ship. Originally it had been planned to sail on the Olympic of the White Star Line, which will leave New York just after midnight of the night of Jan. 10, but this was abandoned in favor of an American ship, if sailing arrangements could be made.

In negotiations with the United States Lines Secretary Stimson found that the sailing of the cabin ship George Washington could be delayed from Jan. 8 to Jan. 10, but that the scheduled sailing of the Leviathan on Jan. 18 could not be advanced earlier than Jan. 15. This sailing would get the delegation to London too late. The sailing of the George Washington on Jan. 10 would be in time for the delegation to reach London before the opening of the conference on Jan. 21. It is assumed some other unsatisfactory features led to consideration of this ship being abandoned.

The delegation, in addition to the seven principal delegates headed by Secretary Stimson, will include naval advisers, technical aides from the State Department, attachés, clerks and stenographers. It will number about forty.

Australian Off Next Week.

Wireless to The New York Times.

CANBERRA, Australia, Dec. 5.—J. E. Fenton, Minister of Customs in the new Labor Cabinet, will leave for London next week to be the Australian delegate at the five-power naval conference, it was announced by Prime Minister Scullin today.

"Australia's position at the conference," said Mr. Scullin, "probably will follow mainly the lines of the British policy. Practical steps toward disarmament, which would relieve the people of existing burdens and prevent the imposition of new ones and will find a ready response from Australia."

Mr. Fenton entered the Federal Parliament in 1903 as member for a Melbourne constituency and for several years was a member of the Federal Public Works Committee. He was also Labor whip in Parliament for a long time.

EXPERTS DISAGREE ON ALIENS' TREATY

World Parley Ends at Paris Today Without Settling Rights to Be Given to Foreigners.

Special Cable to The New York Times.

PARIS, Dec. 4.—The first international conference on the treatment of foreigners will break up tomorrow, one month after it opened here, without accomplishing its chief aim—the conclusion of a convention outlining the general governmental control of alien residents and alien business interests.

This diplomatic conference, organized by the League of Nations, began here on Nov. 5, and forty countries, including six non-members of the League, sent delegates. The United States and Russia sent unofficial observers and the International Chamber of Commerce was also represented an in advisory capacity.

A draft convention was submitted to the conference, article by article, for discussion and approval. Three weeks ago it was discovered two of the most important articles in the proposed pact were contradictory and committees were appointed to revise the language. These were articles VI and XXIX. The former granted sweeping liberties to the foreigner, but the latter was so worded that it could be interpreted as nullifying the benefits and contradicting the spirit of the convention.

Article XXIX read:

"The provisions of the present convention shall in no way affect the freedom of the high contracting parties as regards the admission of foreigners or the police measures which the parties may take in regard to them."

Thus it appeared all the nations would sign the convention with their fingers crossed, because they would not be bound to extend the privileges to foreigners promised in the preceding articles if they happened to contravene immigration laws or police regulations.

Other contradictions were then found in Articles VII, VIII and IX, dealing with the proposed treatment of foreign business interests, professions and manual labor. The committees charged with the revision and reshaping of these articles at first disagreed and when they finally presented the redrafted clauses the main body of delegates voted against the adoption of the disputed articles in their new form.

Similarly, all efforts to solve the knotty problems in Articles XIII and XIV, dealing with the taxation of foreign business interests, failed. It is felt by the delegates, however, that the discussion of general principles for the treatment of foreigners has been of great value and that every one was in agreement on the greater part of the text of the draft convention.

A motion by the Italian delegate, Signor de Michelis, that a second conference be held in Vienna next year to pick up the work from the point where the present meeting left off, will be voted on tomorrow at the closing session.

NO PLAN ON SOUTH'S DEBTS

Britain Won't Renew Requests Now for Civil War Refunding.

Wireless to The New York Times.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—The government announced in the House of Commons today that it would not reopen the old controversy over the debts of the Confederate States of America to British bondholders.

"While it has not been possible to obtain reliable information on the subject, the total amount owed is approximately $75,200,000, not including interest," replied G. H. Guillett, Secretary of the Department of Overseas Trade, in answer to a Labor member's question.

"His Majesty's Government does not consider that any useful purpose would be served by addressing representations to the United States Government on these debts at the present time," he said.

FRENCH ASK FACTS ON THE WORLD BANK

Chamber Committee Designates Deputy to Question Briand on Lack of Sanctions.

Special Cable to The New York Times.

PARIS, Dec. 4.—The question of sanctions in event of Germany's failure to carry out the provisions of the Young plan, which was raised by the failure to include this question in the World Bank agreements, was taken up by the Chamber of Deputies Foreign Affairs committee today.

Deputy Guernier was delegated to obtain further information from Foreign Minister Briand, who spoke to the committee last week. M. Guernier was instructed particularly to ask whether the sanctions provided in the Treaty of Versailles would still be operative after the Young plan was effective and, if not, precisely what sanctions, if any, had been adopted to replace them.

It will be remembered that there was an effort to introduce these into the agreements signed by the banking experts at Baden-Baden, but the text of the deed of trust between the bank and creditor powers reveals no mention whatever of sanctions. In the minds of at least some framers of the Young plan, the Versailles sanctions would be allowed to lapse, since it was regarded among the bankers that default by Germany would have such disastrous effect upon her credit that no other sanction would be necessary.

This view, as indicated by today's meeting of the Chamber committee, will not quickly win the approval of the French Chamber, where, in the hands of the Nationalist opposition, this relinquishment of sanctions might even be used to bring about rejection of the entire Young plan. At any rate there are grave doubts whether the Chamber's ratification can be obtained for the Young plan, unless sanctions, in some way or other, are included in some international understanding. This is one of the proposals which will certainly be put before the jurists who meet in Brussels next week to outline the Young plan treaties.

The Chamber committee, in addition, will ask M. Briand for more details as to the powers to be accorded to the international bank. They want assurances that French political sovereignty will be protected from the influence of the world finance body and also desire full details of guarantees that commercialization and mobilization, which to a certain extent have been experimented on under previous plans, will be more satisfactory under the Young plan.

M. Briand appeared today before the Senate Foreign Affairs Committee, discussing in a general way all the problems raised by application of the Young plan and evacuation of the Rhineland, and problems to be settled at The Hague conference in January.

BOYS AVERT SCHOOL FIRE.

Give Alarm and 3,000 Brooklyn Pupils March to Street in Safety.

Because of quick action by two small boys in Public School 43, at 95 Boerum Street, Brooklyn, a fire in a classroom was quickly extinguished yesterday morning and the 3,000 pupils in the school were marched to the street.

The two boys, Albert Lodato, 9 years old, of 136 Scholes Street, and James Tranchida, 12, of 140 Scholes Street, had remained in room 47 to clean the blackboards during recess. When they discovered smoke and flames coming from a waste basket under the teacher's desk, Albert ran into the hallway and set off the fire alarm. James hurried into an adjoining room and told a teacher.

PALESTINE BRITONS CRITICIZE INQUIRY

Taking of Mufti's Testimony at His House Called Blow to Prestige.

ARABS DECLARED UNITED

Moslem Leader Says He Induced Editor to Stop Publishing Anti-Jewish Propaganda.

By JOSEPH M. LEVY.

Special Cable to The New York Times.

JERUSALEM, Dec. 4.—The Moslem Grand Mufti, Haj Amin al-Husseini, testified again today before the Inquiry Commission at the offices of the Moslem Supreme Council, of which he is president. The Mufti claimed an old Turkish prerogative of the heads of religious communities in law court cases, exempting them from appearance in the courts and requiring the judges to go to their abodes for their testimony.

The European communities here, particularly the British, highly resent the commission's consent to this procedure, asserting that the Inquiry Commission is not an ordinary legal court, to which the Turkish tradition is applicable, but is a British Parliamentary body which is charged by the British Government to investigate the causes of the recent riots.

This complaisance strongly affects British prestige in the entire East, it is argued.

This feeling is shared by all of the press representatives, particularly because for the first time since the commission has been sitting in Palestine the newspaper men have been barred from attending the hearings.

When cross-examining today Sir Boyd Mehriman, counsel for the Jews, tried to bring out that many Arab newspapers in the country were opposed to the Mufti, the Moslem leader said that since the riots of Aug. 23 "all newspapers have united to fight the danger."

"Zionist Protocols" Again Cited.

The notorious "Elders of Zion Protocols," which William Stoker, counsel for the Arabs, wanted to produce as evidence on the first day, despite warnings of Chairman Shaw several times that they were forgeries, again became an issue when Sir Boyd asked the Mufti why he had the book in front of him.

Mention of the protocols led to a discussion as to why quotations from it were published in a certain Arab newspaper earlier this year. This newspaper is said to be the organ of and to be subsidized by the Moslem Supreme Council, but the Mufti denied this. He nevertheless agreed that he had asked the editor of this newspaper to discontinue publishing these excerpts at the request of the High Commissioner.

Among the most important points insisted upon by Sir Boyd was whether the Moslem religious congress which was held on Nov. 8, 1925, soon after the intensification of the Wailing Wall issue, was intended to influence Moslem opinion and obtain permanency of the Mufti tenure. As president of the Moslem Supreme Council the Mufti denied this.

Sir Boyd tried to show that the Wailing Wall enclosure, as well as its immediate vicinity, were not as sacred as the Moslems contend, as stated by the Mufti in yesterday's testimony, because asses are allowed to pass and smoking is not prohibited in front of the Wall. To this question the Mufti evaded a direct answer, saying:

"The Mosque area is more sacred in that places nearer to the Mosque are proportionately holier."

Moslem Meeting Recalled.

Sir Boyd then referred to a meeting of the committee for safeguarding the Mosque Alaqsa and Holy Places held on Aug. 2, 1929, at which members upheld their oath to protect Alaqsa and the Holy Places. He asked the Mufti what was the motive in holding this meeting, and the Mufti replied that, in his opinion, the meeting was a result of the Zurich Congress, which he alleged wanted to abolish the White Paper regarding the Wailing Wall, in which the status quo was defined.

In the course of the testimony Sir Boyd elicited that removal of the Zawi (a Moslem hospice) closer to the Wall from the old premises and the additional noise of singing and dancing during the performance of zikre ceremonies were intended to disturb the Jewish worshipers at the Wall.

The Mufti was also cross-examined by Mr. Preedy, the government counsel, on several points relating to the government, and then re-examined by Mr. Stoker, thus completing the evidence of the chief Moslem witness.

Tomorrow the commission will resume the ordinary sessions on its own premises and the Arabs will continue their case.

School Drops Boy for Asking Prince of Wales's Autograph

Wireless to The New York Times.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—Geoffrey Gill, 15, has been suspended from the Leyton County High School because he asked the Prince of Wales for his autograph when the latter visited the school last week. It is understood that the Prince patted the youth on the back and said, "I am very sorry, old man, I can't do it, because if I do I shall have to do it for the rest of the school."

Young Gill, who was a scholarship student of high standing, said that he had been dared to do it by his classmates. His father has written to the Prince requesting him to inform the headmaster as to whether or not he was annoyed by the incident, which the headmaster characterized as "a gross breach of discipline and a grave impropriety to his Royal Highness."

WESTARP RESIGNS NATIONALIST POST

Quits as Party Chairman in the Reichstag, 8 More Deputies Joining 6 Secessionists.

Wireless to The New York Times.

BERLIN, Dec. 4.—Following the resignation yesterday from the Nationalist Party and its Reichstag faction of six Deputies, Count Westarp today resigned his chairmanship of the party delegation after such leading members as Professor Otto Hoetzsch, former Minister of the Interior Walter von Keudell, Reinhard Momm, and Franz Behrens, president of the National Workers' Union, all old party members, had joined the secessionists.

It is believed that within forty-eight hours the fourteen Reichstag members who have thus far resigned from the party will write in an independent group to constitute the nucleus for a regeneration and extension of the Nationalist Party into a great conservative people's party.

The new group comprises hand and brain workers, such as agrarians and peasants who at last felt that their economical situation can only be improved if the wave of anti-Republican agitation recedes, and some industrialists who seek an understanding with labor. Other Nationalist Deputies are expected to join the new group after they have been able to confer with their constituents during the week-end and it is likely to number at least twenty.

TAX REDUCTION SPEEDED IN HOUSE

MILLS ADVOCATES MOVE

Representative Ramseyer Opposes Proposal, Saying It May Mean a Deficit.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—The administration's joint resolution for a reduction in tax rates on incomes for this year, introduced in the House of Representatives on Monday, will be brought up on the floor of the House tomorrow and, from all indications, will be well on its way toward passage before the day is done.

The resolution was reported favorably today by the Ways and Means Committee after Under Secretary of the Treasury Ogden Mills had appeared to express the treasury's support of the $160,000,000 reduction.

Only one voice was raised in opposition, that Representative C. William Ramseyer, Republican of Iowa, who gave notice later that he would file a minority report and oppose the measure from the floor.

Passage of the resolution in the House was considered a foregone conclusion, although Mr. Ramseyer was said to be marshaling some opposition designed to keep it from being "pushed through" in such short order. On the other hand, party leaders on both sides are understood to have agreed to it.

Mills Before the Committee.

Income taxes accounted for more than two-thirds of the tax revenue of the government for the fiscal year 1929, ended last June 30, Mr. Mills told the committee. His statement embodied many of the findings included in the report of Secretary Mellon, as presented to Congress today, and which reiterated recommendations by the department that were included in the Hawley bill.

"The revenue bill introduced by Chairman Hawley and now before this committee for consideration has the approval of the Treasury Department," Mr. Mills said. "Its terms are so simple as to require no explanation.

"It provides that the normal tax on the taxable incomes of individuals for the calendar year 1929 shall be reduced from 1½ per cent to one-half of 1 per cent for the first $4,000 of taxable income; from 3 per cent to 2 per cent on the second $4,000 of taxable income, and from 5 per cent to 4 per cent on the balance of taxable income; and that the tax on the taxable incomes of corporations for the calendar year 1929 shall be reduced from 12 per cent to 11 per cent."

All of these rates would be effective next year on incomes reported for 1929. The Treasury, estimating that the tax reduction will be about $160,000,000, said $90,000,000 would be in corporation income taxes and $70,000,000 in personal incomes.

The reduction was made on the basis of apparent budget surpluses of $226,000,000 in the fiscal year of 1930, Mr. Mills said, and $123,000,000 in 1931, which are expected despite the inclusion of $630,000,000 and $635,000,000 for 1930 and 1931, respectively, for debt retirement.

"These figures, to be sure," Mr. Mills added, "do not indicate a very large margin of safety in budgets of over $4,000,000,000, but the tax reduction of $160,000,000 which will result from the enactment of this bill is divided approximately equally between the two fiscal years.

"Looked at from that standpoint, the margin of safety is reasonably adequate. The Treasury Department feels, therefore, that the taxpayers should receive the benefit of these prospective surpluses in the form of tax reduction.

"For the calendar year 1927, when the tax rate was 13½ per cent, all corporations reporting net income reported a net income (including tax-exempt interest) before all taxes, of $10,934,031,563. They paid in taxes other than income tax $1,543,516,930, and reported income tax of $1,131,000,000, making a total of $2,674,000,000.

"In other words, 24.46 per cent of their net income was taken by taxes. In the same year these corporations paid about $5,786,000,000 in cash dividends, which was 52.92 per cent of their net income. For every dollar paid in dividends 46 cents were paid in taxes. If all corporations be included—that is to say, corporations reporting a deficit as well as those reporting net income—the percentage of net income paid in taxes is 24.84 per cent."

"Representative John N. Garner of Texas, ranking Democratic member of the committee, questioned Mr. Mills about the policy of the present administration as to expenditures.

"It was the policy of President Coolidge to economize as much as possible on appropriations, spend as little as he could and then turn the surplus back to the treasury," the Democrat said.

"Now, I understand it to be the policy of this administration to spend it as fast as possible. What effect will that have on the surplus?"

"I haven't noticed any change in policy," Mr. Mills replied, "but you know as well as I, Mr. Garner, that however much we spend on appropriations authorized for 1930, we are going to have a surplus of $226,000,000."

"That's true," smiled Mr. Garner. "I just wanted to show the difference in the policy of the two administrations."

In his questioning of the under-Secretary, Representative Ramseyer made it plain that he would oppose the resolution. He told Mr. Mills that he was opposing it on the same ground on which the Treasury Department opposed the debenture plan in the farm relief bill.

Later, on the floor of the house, Mr. Ramseyer warned the house against a reaction to the Senate's inactivity by "pushing through" such important measures. In his opinion, he said, such a reduction as proposed would "run us into the red."

"We are not only faced with the usual problem of determining the business trend during the current calendar year and of forecasting the business trend during the coming calendar year, but we are confronted with the difficult proble mof determining what effect the precipitous decline of security values recently witnessed will have on the profits from security transactions, which unquestionably yielded a very large income in 1928 and for the first eight months of the calendar year 1929.

"The pending measure solves the problem of giving the taxpayer the benefit of the surplus which seems reasonably certain in the fiscal year 1930 withotu running too great a risk of incurring a deficit during the fiscal year 1931."

Dinner to Jack Dempsey Tonight.

Jack Dempsey will be guest of honor at a beefsteak dinner at "Dinty" Moore's tonight, in honor of his forthcoming appearance at the Palace Theatre. The dinner will be given by the Palace Theatre management, and sporting and dramatic writers will make up most of the attendance. Gene Tunney and William Muldoon have also been invited.

PRESENT TAX RATES AND THOSE PROPOSED.

The tables show a comparison of the total tax payable under the present law and under the new rates suggested upon a single person and upon a married person without dependents. It is assumed that all income not in excess of $10,000 is earned income, and, in addition, that one-fourth of the income in excess of $10,000, until the limit of $30,000 earned income is reached, is also earned. The total net income is assumed to be all the income received, and the comparison does not include income in part consisting of dividends or capital gains or interest upon government bonds. The comparison covers the total tax, normal and surtax. The normal tax rates suggested are one-half of 1 per cent on the first $4,000 taxable, 2 per cent on the next $4,000 and 4 per cent on the remainder of the taxable net income.

SAYS HOOVER MOVE AVERTED WAGE CUTS

Hunt Tells Taylor Society Here President Blocked Reduction in 1921 as Well as Recently.

ECONOMIST HAILS PARLEYS

"A More Significant Experiment in the Technique of Balance Could Not Be Devised," Mitchell Says.

President Hoover's attempt to organize the economic forces of the country to check any threatened decline in business at the outset was characterized as a significant experiment toward industrial equilibrium by Dr. Wesley C. Mitchell in an address last night at a meeting of the Taylor Society held at the Hotel Pennsylvania. Dr. Mitchell is director of the National Bureau of Economic Research.

The Taylor Society, an international group for the promotion of the science of administration and management, began its sessions yesterday and will conclude them tomorrow evening.

"I recognize that a step of great technical interest is being tried at this moment on a national scale," Dr. Mitchell said. "While a business cycle is passing over from the phase of expansion to the phase of contraction, the President of the United States is organizing the economic forces of the country to check the threatened decline at the start, if possible. A more significant experiment in the technique of balance could not be devised than the one which is being performed before our very eyes."

Edward E. Hunt, secretary of the President's conference on unemployment, who was chairman at the afternoon meeting yesterday, disclosed two items of "secret economic history" to the audience. He said that when the war ended, the "foremost economist" in the United States, who was consulted by the administration, proposed a policy of wage reduction as the one to inaugurate by business. When the 1921 conference on unemployment was called, said Mr. Hunt, Secretary Hoover enunciated as the first policy to be adopted the maintenance of wage rates.

Mr. Hunt also asserted that the first thing President Hoover did on summoning the recent conference on industrial conditions was to insist upon the maintenance of wage rates.

Dr. Leo Wolman of the new School for Social Research spoke on "Industrial Balance and Equilibrium." He stressed the possibility that sooner or later mass production industries would slacken and the existing industrial economy would have to look elsewhere for a new stimulus.

Robert W. Burgess, chief statistician of the Western Electric Company, led a discussion of "Recent Economic Changes." Others speaking on this topic were C. B. Hamlin of the Irving Trust Company, George Soule of The New Republic, Royal Meeker, formerly of the U. S. Department of Labor, and Norman Lombard.

BOOST DELAWARE BUSINESS

Leaders Confer With Governor—Utilities to Spend $10,408,000.

Special to The New York Times.

DOVER, Del., Dec. 4.—Governor Buck this evening expressed himself as much gratified with the conference he had here today with bankers, agriculturists, labor interests and the heads of the general utilities throughout the State.

The object of the conference was to obtain a survey of the financial and industrial situation in Delaware in keeping with the program of President Hoover.

The bankers gave assurance that the banking systems throughout the State were safe and sound, and said that comparatively few accounts had been seriously affected by the stock market crash, and that the banks had made very few loans that were not fully protected.

Thomas W. Wilson, representing the general utilities, spoke optimistically of the outlook for electrical and gas utilities. He gave the amount of contemplated expenditures for the next year as over $10,408,000, over a million more than was spent by the utilities in 1929.

The labor interests advocated many improvements in the State, including the Delaware River bridge to New Jersey, a new Federal building in Wilmington, and more roads and schools.

CONFER WITH MILLS ON NEW POSTOFFICE

Merchants' Committeemen in Washington Seek Quick Action on Federal Building Here.

BELIEVE FIGHT NEARLY WON

100 Civic Organizations Asked to Attend Meeting Here Dec. 13 to Publicly Endorse Project.

A committee of the Merchants' Association went to Washington yesterday to confer this morning with Under-Secretary of the Treasury Ogden Mills in the hope of adjusting the differences between Federal and New York City officials concerning the removal of the old Postoffice Building from City Hall Park and the provision of suitable facilities elsewhere downtown for the Federal courts and postoffice.

Lincoln Cromwell, first vice president of the association, headed the committee. He was accompanied by William C. Breed of the board of directors of the association, William Fellowes Morgan Jr. and S. C. Mead, secretary of the association. Mr. Mills, according to the association's announcement, has expressed his desire to discuss the matter with them.

Willis H. Booth, president of the association, announced simultaneously with the departure of the committee that he had invited approximately 100 civic and commercial organizations to a public meeting in the assembly room of the association on Dec. 13 "to promote an expression of public opinion of sufficient vigor to convince public officials of the desirability of beginning these improvements speedily."

Before leaving for Washington Mr. Cromwell said:

"The Merchants' Association believes that the time has come when the differences between the city authorities and the Federal officials at Washington, which are interfering with the removal of the old postoffice from City Hall Park and the erection of an adequate Federal court house, can be ironed out. It is in the hope of finding a satisfactory solution of the problem that the association, following a number of conferences with representatives of the City Administration, with the Committee on the New Federal Court House of the Bar Association and with others interested in this subject, is sending a committee to Washington today for a conference tomorrow with Mr. Ogden L. Mills and perhaps other officials of the Treasury and Postoffice Departments."

SEJM TO MEET TODAY AFTER LONG INACTION

Leader Maintains Precautions, but Polish Deputies Do Not Expect New Armed Invasion.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

WARSAW, Dec. 4.—Polish politics never seemed calmer than on the eve of the meeting of the Sejm called for tomorrow after its long inactivity resulting from the refusal of its Marshal, Ignacy Daszynski, to have it sit while armed officers were in the building on Oct. 31. The most recent Ministerial speeches on the Constitution have contributed greatly to the pacification.

M. Daszynski, who, after the visit of the officers, gave the Sejm guard special instructions and took other precautions against strangers intruding, is maintaining all these extraordinary regulations for tomorrow, although Deputies say that no trouble is expected.

Instead of the fiery speech which Marshal Pilsudski had prepared for the October meeting, a speech of at least two hours' duration by the Finance Minister, M. Matuszewski, is expected. A motion of non-confidence against the government will not be voted before the end of the budgetary debate, which will take a few weeks.

A meeting is to be held in one of the biggest halls in Warsaw at which representatives of three parties—the pro-government bloc, the National Opposition and the Socialist Opposition—will state their respective parties' views on the proposed constitutional changes.

Vare. Directly in front of her sat Mrs. Gifford Pinchot, whose husband and former Senator Pepper were Mr. Vare's opponents for the nomination, for which more than $785,000 was spent in Mr. Vare's interest.

Senator Norris cut short his speech as the 62-year-old Pennsylvanian came in through the door on the Democratic side. Accompanying him were Dr. Shaw and Senator Reed.

Mr. Vare took a place next to that of Senator Johnson of California, at the desk of Senator Norbeck of South Dakota. Both are going to vote to unseat Vare. Mr. Johnson leaned over and shook hands.

Senators Watson, the majority leader; Bingham of Connecticut, Greene of Vermont, Moses of New Hampshire, and Copeland of New York left their seats and also shook hands with Mr. Vare. Senator Reed was recognized and informed the Senate that Mr. Vare was in the chamber and would have something to say in his own behalf.

Vare Speaks With Difficulty.

Slowly Mr. Vare rose to his feet. Dr. Shaw opened his spectacle case for him, and Mr. Vare, with evident difficulty, read his plea.

In a halting voice he told the Senate that in recent months he had "trembled on the very edge of eternity," that the fact that he was able to come and make his defense was the result of the prayers of his family and his friends.

He had never in all the years he had been in politics stolen an election, he asserted. He insisted that he had been regularly, legally and honestly elected a Senator. He wanted the office, and the Senate, he said, would not be playing square if it denied him the place.

Since the convening of the Seventieth Congress in December, 1927, the Senate, said Mr. Vare, had denied him a seat and by so doing disregarded the sovereign rights of Pennsylvania. He was asking for a "fair and impartial" consideration of his case.

He was unjustly charged, he continued, with a grave offense against the laws of the land, a charge that had grieved him greatly and which he believed had aggravated his "bodily afflictions."

He had always tried to lead an upright life, politically as well as socially. He never asked any man or woman to do an illegal act in any election and had never participated in any "political juggling."

"I never stole an election," Mr. Vare exclaimed, turning to look straight at Senator Norris, who sat some distance behind him, as he said it.

"I never asked any one," Mr. Vare continued as he again faced to the front, "to make a false return or to change any election records to decide a close contest in my favor. I would never countenance such actions and I always used my influence against such practices.

"Unfortunately, few of you men had an opportunity to read the charges made against me and study the reports made in this case.

He Calls Accusations Unfair.

"Irrespective of the great constitutional question involved, I do not believe there is one man here today who could conscientiously vote against me if he knew the facts and realized how unfair and unjust my accusers have been in attempting to twist mere clerical irregularities and technicalities into acts of political fraud and conspiracy.

"I believe I can truthfully say that the same charges could be brought against every one elected to public office if the ballots and election records were examined by his political enemies and a report made based on their inferences and theories, without any consideration of the truth of facts or legal proof.

"There is only one report before you concerning my election, and that is based on an incomplete survey of election records made by paid investigators who for years had been employed by my political enemies in Philadelphia. The man who is responsible for that report of your special investigating committee was paid $10,000 to do the job.

"The report, for which he alone is responsible and which your committee accepted in good faith, is not an impartial statement of facts with which this body usually deals, but it is a fabrication of the wildest theories, inference and imagination, unaccompanied by any proof and under no circumstances can be substantiated.

"In fact, I am informed by my attorneys who have studied a condensed report of the tabulator of the subcommittee of the Committee on Privileges and Elections, furnished to both Mr. Wilson and myself, that the charges are proved to be absolutely false.

"One of the charges was that there were 2,018 persons voted in Philadelphia who were not registered. The facts are that all but thirty-three of these 2,018 persons were duly and legally registered. Why, they even charge that in 40 per cent of the election districts the election boards were comprised of only enrolled Republicans, and yet that is entirely legal, as the law does not require minority representation on election boards.

"In fact, there are many districts in Philadelphia where the entire enrolment is Republican, just as, I suppose, there are districts in other counties in Pennsylvania and in other States where the electorate are entirely of the Democratic faith. In many districts in the South thousands of Democratic votes are cast and not one Republican vote. Why? There are no Republicans there. How could they vote in those districts?

"These are just some typical examples of the unfairness of these conclusions which my political enemies have tried to have you believe were facts.

"Is my election or my right to a seat in this Senate to be judged and decided upon such a report? Are you, with whom I have been associated all these years in Congress, to pass judgment on me without giving me my day in court?

"I prefer to believe not one of you wants to do an unfair thing—surely, party prejudice and self-interest will not allow you to condemn any one on false testimony.

"I challenge any man on the floor of this Senate to point to a single bit of evidence of any fraud or conspiracy practiced by myself or any of my friends in my behalf in the three-cornered primary when I won the Republican nomination over former Senator Pepper and the then Governor Gifford Pinchot.

"Not one voice was raised against that primary in Pennsylvania until the question of expenditures was brought in as an issue.

Expenses of Primary Campaign.

"It is true the primary campaign cost a considerable sum of money. The ticket which I had the honor to head also had candidates for Governor, Lieutenant Governor, Secretary of Internal Affairs, Congressmen, members of the State Legislature and the State committee. There was a bitter struggle for Governorship and control of the State committee. The expenditures of the ticket on which I was the candidate were about one-third of those of my principal opponent.

"Am I to be condemned because, without a newspaper, with the State organization and county organizations against me and my friends, we were compelled to spend one-third of what our principal opponents spent in bringing the issues of the campaign to the 4,000,000 voters of the State?

"In Pennsylvania we don't have one dominant industry and one easy way to reach all people. In the Middle West almost every one speaks English, ready English. They are all interested in agriculture. One folder, in plain English, would reach their chief interest.

"But in Pennsylvania we had to reach steel workers around Pittsburgh, miners around Scranton, farmers around Lancaster, and workers, miners and farmers in all other sections of the State. Some read English; some must have discussions in Lithuanian and Polish, each in the language he knows. This multiplies expenses.

"There are Senators sitting on this floor today whose election last November cost more per vote, more per capita and more per voting district than the expenditures of the Vare-Beidleman ticket in the Pennsylvania primary in 1926.

"In the Pennsylvania campaign the expenditures now charged to me alone, instead of to all candidates banded with me, were $1.30 per vote, $61.75 per thousand of population and $91.68 per voting district. Those of the Pepper-Fisher State ticket were $3.50 per vote, $187.74 per thousand population and $210.59 per voting district. There were 1,451,557 votes cast in that primary and the expenditures of my ticket represented 54 cents per vote."

In Nevada the cost per vote in the last election, Mr. Vare added, was $4.46, and in Montana $3.59, and such costs were also greater in New York. Also he asserted that Republican expenditures in twenty-four States and Democratic expenses in nineteen States in the last election were greater per capita than in the election in which he was a candidate.

Argues for Rights of His State.

"This matter," concluded Mr. Vare, "vitally concerns the rights of the people of a sovereign State who by a majority of nearly 200,000 votes selected me as its representative in the Senate. The trust that they reposed in me I cannot betray, even in view of the lasting injury it may mean to my health in the years to come.

"The denial of my right here means more than an obscure right of one to a seat in this Senate; it also vitally concerns the right of the entire people of the United States to have their Constitution maintained and enforced in its integrity. The framers of the Constitution believed that each State's right to be represented in the Senate on terms of equality by citizens of their own choice would remain inviolate; and it was never questioned until now that, when a Senator-elect presents, as I have done, the authenticated credentials of his State, he should be denied the oath of office if he possesses the qualifications prescribed in the Constitution.

"I respectfully submit that you may deny me my just rights in this matter, but it cannot be done without a violation of a basic principle of that Constitution.

"I fervently wish that my strength permitted me to participate further in the decision of this momentous question. But I am sure that the members of the Senate, without respect to party and in view of my prolonged illness, will fully understand that I must now commit my case and the cause of my State to my friends in the Senate."

He Hears Reed Argue for Him.

Mr. Vare remained to listen to Senator Reed, who held the floor for two hours in his effort in Mr. Vare's behalf.

"You are lynching Vare," said Mr. Reed, "without waiting to hear his side."

The people of Pennsylvania elected Mr. Vare a Senator when they knew all about the primary expenditures, he added. They and not the Senate should decide who was to represent Pennsylvania in Congress.

Mr. Reed referred to "nullification" of the Fourteenth and Fifteenth Amendments in the Southern States, and so did Senator Fess of Ohio, who followed him. This brought Senator Glass of Virginia to his feet.

If either Mr. Reed or Mr. Fess had evidence of any kind that either of the Virginia Senators were elected by improper or illegal methods, it was their duty, under their oath, to prefer charges; no other course under such circumstances would be honorable, said Senator Glass.

Senator Blease of South Carolina was the only Democrat to speak for Mr. Vare. He said it was a situation where the South could not afford to vote to nullify the action of a sovereign State. Every Democrat, he asserted, should vote to seat Mr. Vare.

SOUCEK UP SIX MILES; FINDS 100-MILE WIND

Prevailing Westerly Breeze Would Double Pilot's Speed Eastward, Record Holder Says.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Westerly winds with velocities ranging from 60 to 100 miles an hour, which would almost double the speed of airplanes flying at these heights eastward across the continent, were encountered above 30,000 feet today by Lieutenant Apollo Soucek, American altitude record holder, in a test flight above Anacostia Naval Air Station here.

Lieutenant Soucek made the flight to test the reconstructed Wasp motor in his Wright Apache fighting plane and a new supply of oxygen, which he will use in an attempt he will make soon to break the world altitude record of 41,795 feet held by Willie Neunhofen, German flier.

Taking off without barographs or other equipment necessary for a record flight, Lieutenant Soucek soon soared to above 30,000 feet, the highest altitude made during the flight being 34,000 feet. At these altitudes, Lieutenant Soucek was flying above a level of haze which prevented him from keeping within sight of the air station. In attempting to maintain his position by keeping within sight of the rays of the sun as reflected from the surface of the Potomac River, Lieutenant Soucek was carried northward to a point over Baltimore.

In attempting to make the return flight to the capital he encountered the high westerly wind.

"The wind was blowing at a rate which I estimated to be fully 100 miles an hour," Lieutenant Soucek said. "Even with my plane turning up 150 miles an hour, I had difficulties bucking this wind back to the air station. I am certain these winds prevail at velocities of as great as sixty miles an hour and that they attain even greater velocities at some times.

"Such winds would be of inestimable value to aircraft flying across the continent eastward, if flying could be maintained at these levels, as they would almost double the speed of most commercial planes, and thus reduce the flying time for such a trip to the same degree."

GIRL AT TRIAL TELLS OF KILLING M'HALE

Alice Corbett Says She Shot to Frighten Off Advances of Jersey City Policeman.

WIDOW OF VICTIM AIDS HER

Woman Supports Tale of Dead Man's Violent Disposition—Alienists Describe Defendant's Fear.

Alice Corbett, 16-year-old servant, described yesterday to a jury of four women and eight men in the Court of Over and Terminer in Jersey City how on Aug. 18 last she shot and killed her employer, George McHale, a policeman, after, she said, he had forced his attentions upon her.

Mrs. Hazel McHale, widow of the slain man, partly corroborated the girl's story.

The girl described how she was taken from an orphan asylum when 12 years old to help Mrs. McHale with the housework. For her services, she testified, she received 50 cents every two weeks.

Once during the day, when asked if she knew why she was in the court room, she became hysterical and screamed "to be hanged." A recess was called while she was led away by a matron. When she grew calmer the trial was resumed.

On the day of the shooting, Alice said, she returned with the McHale children from a motion picture theatre and found McHale busy writing her a note. In it he instructed her to have his supper ready, lay out his clothes, draw the water for his bath and shine his shoes, as he was planning to go out that evening. Mrs. McHale, she said, was not at home.

McHale, Alice said, seized her and dragged her into a bedroom, but she managed to free herself and ran to the kitchen, where she found his service revolver. With intent to frighten McHale, she said, she placed one cartridge in the pistol, returned to the bedroom and pointing it in the direction of the patrolman, who was stretched out on the bed, pulled the trigger. Then, she said, she fled to the home of Mrs. Grace M. Mitchell, McHale's sister-in-law, and told her what she had done.

Dr. David H. Orgel, a psychiatrist, of 65 Park Avenue, and Arthur F. Payne, a psychologist, of the same address, both testified that the girl was suffering from a "psychic trauma" and an "anxiety neurosis with convulsions" at the time she shot McHale.

Justice Sutherland Much Better.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4 (AP).—Justice Sutherland of the United States Supreme Court, who has been in a Baltimore hospital for several days, is reported much improved by the special treatment he has received for a slight stomach ailment. As his presence on the bench is not considered imperative just now, he has decided to remain in the hospital for the rest of the present week. While in the hospital he has been giving attention to court work by examining briefs and other papers sent to him.

timer W. Byers, who was sworn in as a United States judge for the Eastern District on Monday, and the recently appointed United States attorney, Howard N. Ameli, both received their appointments on the recommendation of Mr. Steinbrink.

It was learned last night that Mr. Livingston, who has been informed of what is awaiting him, had received until the end of this week to decide whether to resign or to have his day in court. Many Republicans of prominence had expected the Kings County leader to tender his resignation yesterday; others expressed a belief that it would be forthcoming today. Mr. Livingston, when questioned regarding this, said that he had no intention of resigning, and some of his activities yesterday led prominent party men to believe that his statement could be accepted at its face value. He has never shown himself a quitter when confronted with a fight, which, in this instance, would be waged with his political life as the stake.

Mr. Livingston for the last sixteen years has been one of the Republican members of the Board of Elections. It was learned last night that there was no intention on the part of the opposition to disturb him in the tenure of this office. His term will expire at the end of the year, and the Republican County Committee of Kings at a meeting this month must recommend a successor to the Board of Aldermen, which ratifies the choice of the county committees. When the Kings County Republican Committee meets it will, unless present plans undergo a change, recommend the re-election of Commissioner Livingston to the position he now holds on the board.

Movement Brewing Some Time.

The insurgent movement in the executive committee against Mr. Livingston has been brewing for some time; in fact, there has almost continuously since he attained the position of its chairman been a strong element in the membership opposed to him. The fact that this element has been divided has kept him in power. On this occasion the opponents of Mr. Livingston only awaited word from Washington that Mr. Price, who owes his position to the leader, would not be continued in his position by the Hoover Administration, to make ready to strike the blow which they expect will bring about his political downfall.

This word came on Tuesday evening. At the same time strong intimations were received from Washington that Mr. Moore, United States Marshal, Republican leader of the Thirteenth Assembly District in Kings and another Livingston appointee was slated to go. Through patronage the heads of both these departments control between them six votes on the executive committee which under normal conditions would be cast in favor of continuing Livingston in power. It was not made clear last night in the opposition camp whether the 28 votes claimed by the opponents took or did not take into account votes that could be pried loose from Livingston on the strength of the reports from Washington.

One prominent anti-Livingston leader, who asked that his name be not used, said that the report from Washington had been expected. He denied, however, that the power to deal summarily with Mr. Livingston by vote in the executive committee was dependent upon the ousting of Internal Revenue Collector Price, who is credited with the control of five votes on the committee. He clearly indicated that the anti-Livingston element had a majority of the votes, even leaving those controlled by Price out of account.

The perennial political foes of Commissioner Livingston, Transit Commissioner Charles C. Lockwood, who is chairman of the Kings County Republican Committee, and Frederick J. H. Kracke, United States Appraiser of Customs, both declined to make any comment on the report that the Kings County leader was about to be dethroned. One of the followers of County Chairman Lockwood, Major Walter Corwin, the newly elected leader of the Seventeenth Assembly District in Brooklyn, was mentioned as the man who probably would succeed Commissioner Livingston as executive chairman. Last night, however, it was learned authoritatively that no one occupying the position of district leader is likely to be picked for the place at the head of the executive committee.

It is regarded as probable that the choice will rest largely with Meier Steinbrink, should he be willing to assume the full responsibility. It was indicated, however, that in all probability leaders of the warring factions would be called into conference before a choice is made.

Busy With Census.

Mr. Livingston kept very busy yesterday on patronage matters related to next year's Federal Census. With his recommendations for five positions as census supervisors already forwarded to Washington with the endorsement of Republican National Committeeman Charles D. Hilles and Chairman William J. Maier of the Republican State Committee, Mr. Livingston a week ago sent a circular letter to all the Republican district leaders urging them to prepare their lists of candidates for some 1,000 positions as enumerators. With most of the answers already at hand, he was having compiled yesterday his own list to be forwarded to Washington, subject to the approval of Messrs. Hilles and Maier which he could be assured of receiving only in the event that he remained as leader.

Mr. Livingston, however, found time to pay a visit to National Committeeman Hilles at the latter's office in William Street. What occurred at the conference could not be learned last night but it appeared that the result of the talk gave no pleasure or satisfaction to the Kings County Republican chieftain. When asked earlier whether he intended to offer his resignation, he replied, "Nothing to it."

Mr. Livingston insisted that his failure to obtain the reappointment of Internal Revenue Collector Price would not affect his standing in the executive committee, nor did he consider it particularly significant that the Hoover Administration denied a reappointment to a Coolidge appointee.

Lockwood Declined Post.

It was learned on unquestionable authority yesterday that the leadership had been offered repeatedly to Transit Commissioner Charles C. Lockwood, who had declined to accept this new post of responsibility. In the event of his consent the chairmanship of both the county committee and the executive committee would have been in the same hand, an unusual condition in the storm-swept Republican organization in Kings County.

Mr. Steinbrink paid a visit to Chairman Maier of the Republican State Committee on Tuesday, when they had a long talk, in the course of which, it is understood, the Brooklyn situation was discussed in detail. Chairman Maier would not say last night whether the matter of census patronage had been brought up by Mr. Steinbrink and whether any request had been made upon him to withhold his approval from the recommendations Mr. Livingston was busy getting ready yesterday.

Collector Price to Retire.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Warren G. Price, Internal Revenue Collector, First New York District (Brooklyn and Long Island), whose term expires about the first of next year, will not be reappointed, it became known tonight.

Commissioner of Internal Revenue Lucas denied that his resignation had been asked for, but confirmed the report that he would not serve another term. His successor has not been decided upon, but may be selected within a few days.

DEADLOCK STANDS OVER QUEENS CONDUITS

Harvey Insists He Is Bound by Hilly Ruling on Installation of Manholes.

Any hope of an early breaking of the deadlock between the authorities of Queens Borough and the New York and Queens Electric Light and Power Company over the installation of manhole transformers in the streets of Long Island City, which has resulted in the laying off of 1,600 workers of the electric company, seemed to have been abandoned yesterday.

Both Borough President Harvey and Commissioner of Public Works Halleran declared that they were bound by the ruling concerning the installation of the manholes made by Corporation Counsel Hilly on July 11. The only recourse appeared to be the Board of Estimate, and H. L. Snyder, vice president of the electric company, said that any decision to appeal to the board would be subject to the discretion of the company's directors.

The company's plan has been to install the conduits one-third inside the curb line and two-thirds in the street. Owners of the property have the right, according to city officials, to extend vault space underground to the curb line.

Borough President Harvey said yesterday that he believed the company plan was a good one and that the borough government joined with the company in its desire to take the transformers from the poles and place them underground. As the matter stood, however, he said, the installations would be an infringement on private property, and to permit them would be to run the danger of damage suits by property owners.

LOENING ORGANIZES AIR RESEARCH PLANT

Engineer Quits Plane Building Field to Seek Improvements in Aircraft Construction.

CAPITAL IS $1,000,000

Plans Experiments to Make Flying Easier and Safer and Thus Aid Aviation Industry.

Grover Loening, pioneer engineer and designer of planes and amphibians and founder with his brother of the Loening Aeronautical Engineering Corporation, announced yesterday that he had resigned as consulting engineer and director of the Keystone Aircraft Corporation and director of the Curtiss Wright Corporation to start a venture of his own. The former Loening company was merged with the Keystone corporation last year, and both companies are now a part of the Curtiss Wright Corporation.

Mr. Loening has now formed the Grover Loening Company, of which he is president and chief engineer, capitalized at $1,000,000, the full amount of which is paid in. He intends to specialize in the development of new and advanced designs in aircraft under contract for both the government and private manufacturing companies. A new laboratory and plant for building his experimental planes has been established at 305 East Forty-sixth Street, Manhattan, and is now in operation. Work is being centred on several new developments in the aircraft field, which are held secret at present.

Since he relinquished active direction of the Loening Company more than a year ago, Mr. Loening has spent much of his time flying. He has flown more than fifty different types of planes during the year, both here and abroad, and his decision to start what is essentially a plant devoted to experimentation is based on his personal observations during the year.

"One trouble with the industry as I see it today," the designer said yesterday, "is the fact that the companies have to pay so much attention to production that they do not have enough time for research and experiment. These large corporations are interested in sales and production of the type of plane we have today. It is my belief that much remains to be done in the experimental field. Planes must be made safer, lighter and faster. They must be made easier to operate. These are some of the problems that will engage me."

Starting as an assistant engineer to Orville Wright in 1913, Mr. Loening has devoted the intervening years to aviation. His company, the Loening Aeronautical Engineering Corporation, established in 1918 with a capital of $25,000, was sold last year for several millions. In 1920 he wone the Collier Trophy for the development of the Loening Air Yacht. His next development was the Loening amphibian, more than 200 models of which are now flying for the government, commercial companies and private individuals.

Mr. Loening is an adherent of the single motor aircraft field, and his new planes will be built around that idea.

"Speed and safety, ease of control and especially speed is what we need," he said yesterday. "It is my belief that the plane can be made which one can learn to fly in several days instead of several months. When that time comes this country will provide a market for a million instead of 10,000 planes."

TWO PLANTS INCREASE PRICE OF NEWSPRINT

The American Newspaper Publishers's Association announced yesterday, according to the Associated Press, it had received notification from two Canadian paper companies that their price for newsprint would be increased from $55 to $60 per ton for 1930.

The two companies, the St. Maurice Valley Paper Company and the Abitibi Power & Paper Company, Ltd., said in their letters of notification, however, that to publishers who would sign a three-year contract at the new price, they would offer a discount of $5 per ton for the first six months of next year.

The St. Maurice Valley concern's announcement said the increase had been decided upon for 1930, while the Abitibi company's statement said the increased price would be in effect for three years. The latter company's statement on the discount question said:

"Recognizing the temporary effect on the business of its customers that may follow the recent financial disturbance, the company will allow a discount of $5 per ton from this price during the first six months of 1930 to all customers accepting the three-year contract."

The announcement by the St. Maurice Valley concern made the same offer and gave the same reason for it.

For some time some provincial officials in Canada have been in favor of an increase in the price of newsprint. Their efforts resulted recently in a call for an emergency convention of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association. At the convention, which is to be held in New York Dec. 9, the publishers are expected to draw up an official protest against Canadian officials' attempts to increase the price.

TRIES TO WRECK EXPRESS.

Youth Is Arrested for Rolling a Boulder on New Haven Track.

EAST LYME, Conn., Dec. 4 (AP).—In desperate need of $500, Sedrick Kennett, aged 23, confessed today, according to the police, that he rolled a huge boulder on the tracks of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad last night as part of an attempt to wreck the Bar Harbor Express and rob its passengers.

The express, carrying several hundred passengers asleep in Pullmans, passed the point a few minutes earlier than Kennett had anticipated, but a fast freight, unable to come to a complete stop, struck the boulder, damaging the engine. None of the crew was injured.

Police arrested the youth near the scene of the accident this morning as he was walking along the tracks.

Middle Age is the Dangerous Age

If you doubt it, consider these figures:

Loss in Expectation of Life at Certain Ages

Age	1921	1927	Loss
37	32.86	31.47	1.39 years
67	11.50	10.60	.90 "

The increased mortality at these ages would indicate some undue or increasing strain in our modern mode of existence, or a lessening resistance to disease. To meet this critical period successfully, certain principles of living should be followed.

Exercise

As middle age approaches, there is a tendency among most men and women to decreased physical exertion and increased nervous activity, the latter a result of the growing demands of business, professional, social or domestic life.

After 35, strenuous, competitive exercise, such as tennis, football, boxing and wrestling, should be followed with great caution, as the strain on the heart and circulation may be injurious.

The habit of regular outdoor exercise should be fully established. Walking, rowing, swimming, hunting and fishing are all outdoor sports that can be followed into old age and are usually automatically self-regulated so that overexertion or undue fatigue is not likely to occur. Billiards is an excellent indoor form of exercise and very helpful to the man in middle age.

Diet

As middle age advances, the consumption of meat, all flesh foods and salt should be decreased, and that of fruit and vegetables, especially those of bulky character and low food value (such as spinach, lettuce, tomatoes, carrots, turnips, watercress, celery, parsnips) should be increased. The leafy vegetables are valuable for their vitamines. Constipation should be combated by proper diet, exercise, and the regular use of water between meals, especially before breakfast.

Mental Hygiene

The habit of system and order in business methods; the avoidance of nervous worry over trifles; the facility of playing and following some hobby aside from business, and thus avoiding a lopsided use of the brain functions; courage, poise, self-control—all of these are almost magical in their protective influence during the perilous middle period. For this is when men and women break down more frequently from the cumulative effects of pin pricks of worry and nerve strain rather than from the sword thrusts of heavy cares and troubles.

Periodic Health Examinations

Important as a thorough physical examination is at all periods of life, it is perhaps more vitally important at middle age than at any other time. By frequent health examinations, minor defects that would otherwise develop into full-fledged diseases can be detected and corrected. Faulty living habits that cause organic strain can be noted, and the various types of infection that constantly injure the tissues and cause 80 per cent of organic disease can be located and attended to.

Sixteen Rules of Health

If you are interested in a health examination for yourself or any member of your family, write to the Life Extension Institute for many interesting free reprints on this subject, including the "Sixteen Rules of Health" and the free reprints "How to Live Long" and "Hygiene at Middle Life." Your inquiry involves no obligation of any kind.

The Institute offers two forms of health examination services—one known as the "Standard Periodic Health Examination" and the other as the "Unlimited." The Standard Service covers a period of one year and includes a standardized survey of your whole life and body, together with adequate health literature and other features. This service is available at the Institute's Head Offices and at the offices of its medical examiners in all the different cities of the United States and Canada and in several foreign countries.

The Unlimited Examination includes all the details of the Standard Service, together with many other valuable tests as a regular part of the service and, in addition, any needed X-ray examination, laboratory test or special examination which it is within the power of the Institute to furnish at its Head Offices.

Get Yourself Examined

Only registered and ethically accredited physicians, highly trained and experienced in this work, are selected by the Institute to examine its members. The Institute renders no treatment, performs no operations, but makes a scientific survey of your whole life and body to determine the need for medical treatment, for correction of defects, or better regulation of the ways of living. Every man and woman should be examined at least once a year, either by their own physician, through the Life Extension Institute, or by any other accredited scientific agency where the work can be competently done. LABOR SHAPES BILLS TO OFFER AT ALBANY

Will Present Nine Chief Proposals for New Laws or Amending Statutes.

ANTI-INJUNCTION ACT ONE

Compulsory Old Age Pensions and Exclusive State Fund for Compensation Insurance Sought.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Dec. 4.—Nine major proposals for labor legislation will be presented to the Legislature of 1930, the executive council of the State Federation of Labor decided today. The proposals are:

To provide that no injunction shall be issued in an industrial dispute until after a hearing in court with both parties present and participating, and that any person accused of violating such injunction shall be entitled to jury trial as a right.

To amend the railroad law and labor law so as to assure that the work of eliminating railroad crossings shall be governed by the prevailing rate of wage and eight-hour day sections of the labor law, and that contracts for such work shall be entered into by the State instead of railroad companies, as is the present practice.

To establish a State-administered, compulsory, old-age pension law, based on the payment of not less than $30 a month to men who have reached the age of 65 years and women who have reached the age of 60 years, with proper exemptions of others possessed of minor incomes, and complete exemption of income derived from pension funds maintained by labor organizations from contributions of members.

To establish an exclusive State insurance fund as the only carrier of workmen's compensation insurance, except such insurance as is supplied for public employes from public funds.

To amend the workmen's compensation law so as to provide that all workers disabled by diseases contracted in or caused by their employment shall be compensated in the same manner as if disabled by accidental injury, and increasing the maximum of weekly payments to $25 in all cases.

To amend the State anti-monopoly law by inserting the declaration that "the labor of a human being is not a commodity or an article of commerce" within the meaning of the law.

To increase the number and compensation of safety inspectors employed by the State Department of Labor to inspect workshops, machinery, underground and surface construction and electrical installation and power wires so as to diminish the hazard of accidental injury to workers.

To regulate private fee-collecting employment agencies so as to end the abuse of shipping workers to points where there is no employment fitted for them and to abolish extortionate fees and corrupt collusion with persons engaging workers temporarily.

To amend the existing compromise forty-eight-hours-a-week law for employed women and miners (interpreted by court decision to mean from 49½ to 51 hours a week) so as to establish a genuine forty-eight-hours-a-week law as recommended by Governor Roosevelt.

Other legislation to be proposed provides for the water-proofing of the basements of dwelling houses in the interest of the health of tenants; gives janitors living in buildings they serve the same rights as tenants in dispossess proceedings; extends the weekly day of rest law to include motion picture operators; allows journeymen carpenters with ten years' experience to qualify as building inspectors; provides that textbooks used in public schools shall be printed within the State; amends the State plumbing law in the interest of better sanitation, and provides for the inspection of the installation of heating and power plants and prohibits the practice of carrying freight with passengers in commercial automobiles.

A committee representing the Federation of Labor and the four railroad brotherhoods was created to present the program to party leaders and officers of the Legislature, and to Governor Roosevelt with the request that he incorporate recommendations for such legislation in his message to the Legislature.

SAYS AUTO DEATH RATE IS SETTING RECORD

Metropolitan Life Reports 19.5 per 100,000 of Its Policy Holders Killed in 10 Months of 1929.

The cumulative rate for mortality from automobile accidents for the first ten months of 1929 was by far the highest ever recorded among the more than 19,000,000 industrial policy holders of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company in the United States and Canada, it was announced yesterday. The rate of 19.5 per 100,000 means that 3,079 persons of this group had lost their lives from this cause since the beginning of the year, and indications are that the record for the full year will be double that of ten years ago and nine times that of 1911.

The automobile is responsible for one-third of all the accident deaths, the report said. It has caused as many deaths as the four principal diseases of childhood—measles, scarlet fever, whooping cough and diphtheria—combined. In this class there has been one automobile fatality this year to every seven death of cancer, to every three of apoplexy and to every seven and one-half of heart disease, the leading cause of death. More than 2 per cent of all deaths from all causes are now due to automobile accidents.

"What has happened among the insured conforms closely to developments in the general population of the cities of the country," according to the insurance company's statistical bulletin. "This is shown in a statement recently given out by the United States Census Bureau showing that in seventy-eight cities, more automobile fatalities occurred during the four weeks ended Nov. 2 than during any similar period since that bureau began to collect data on fatal motor vehicle accidents. There were actually 840 deaths, and the closest approach to this figure was 771 for the four-week period ended Dec. 29, 1928.

"All available data show that the automobile death rate is increasing in substantially all sections of the country and among all elements of the population.

"Speeding is the principal source of automobile fatalities, and if control is to be won over this hazard, it will be through more rather than less regulation."

FORESEES SAVINGS BY FREEZING FOODS

S. C. Bloom Says All Perishable Products Will Go to Consumer in Refrigerated State.

Perishable foodstuffs will be delivered to the customer in frozen state at considerable savings in price, according to S. C. Bloom, consulting engineer of Chicago, who spoke on "The Next Ten Years in the Refrigeration of Foods" at the opening session of the twenty-fifth anniversary meeting of the American Society of Refrigeration Engineers yesterday afternoon in the Hotel Pennsylvania.

Mr. Bloom said that in the next ten years the use of refrigeration unquestionably would increase in a much greater degree than it has in the past twenty-five years. He said that the most important new applications in refrigeration would be in the quick freezing of retail meat cuts, fruits, vegetables, dairy products—in fact, every perishable foodstuff.

He predicted that such foods would be delivered by the producer or manufacturer to the retailer and thence to the consumer while still in the frozen state. He added that the economic significance of such a process is tremendous, as a survey of the meat packing industry indicates a potential reduction between the price of meat on the hoof and meat to the consumer averaging 2½ cents a pound.

The second great new field for refrigeration, Mr. Bloom said, is the cooling of buildings, such as offices, hotels, large stores and even homes. Mechanical refrigeration will be used in the cooling of the large buildings, Mr. Bloom declared, while the air cooling in smaller buildings and homes will be done by means of ice in the form of comparatively thin sheets broken up like peanut brittle, or in the form of frozen droplets.

"Ice in this form can be delivered by truck in the same manner as coal and chuted into the basement apparatus used for air cooling," he said. "Ice will be used only when wanted, and when cooling is not required there is no expense for machinery. In addition, there is no operating noise and nothing to go wrong or require semi-skilled attention."

The convention will continue for the remainder of the week. Delegates from all sections of the country are in attendance.

CITY BREVITIES.

In celebration of its thirty-fifth anniversary, the Star of Israel Lodge, 111, Independent Order of Brith Abraham, will hold a dinner, entertainment and ball at the Concourse Plaza, 900 Grand Concourse, the Bronx, Sunday evening.

STORE CROWDS TRAP THIEF

Pursued After Snatching $652 From Girl—Knocks Down Shoppers.

After snatching an envelope containing $652.97 from a girl at Broadway and Thirty-sixth Street yesterday morning a man, who described himself as Charles Martin, 26 years old, living at the Mills Hotel, at 163 West Thirty-sixth Street, fled through a crowd of women shoppers in a five and ten cent store and was captured in the store after a struggle with two patrolmen and half a dozen men. The envelope containing the money was found on the floor of the store. Martin was held on charges of assault and robbery.

The girl, Shirley Thorner, 23 years old, of 603 West 137th Street, a cashier in Silver's Restaurant, at 161 West Thirty-sixth Street, left the restaurant to take the money to a bank. John Bosch, 23 years old, of 17 West 108th Street, another employe of the restaurant, said he saw Martin following the girl and he followed also. At the corner of Broadway, he asserted, Martin struck the girl and grabbed the money. With Bosch in pursuit, the girl's assailant fled through the store, knocking several women down.

CHALLENGES CRITIC OF OLD AGE PENSION

Vice Chairman of State Board Combats Argument Opposing Proposed Relief.

DISPUTES INSURANCE HEAD

F. H. Ecker Puts Cost of Program at $75,000,000 a Year — Sees Rapid Progress by Employers.

Assemblyman Frank X. Bernhardt of Buffalo, vice chairman of the New York State Commission on Old Age Security, challenged the arguments advanced by the insurance companies in opposition to the proposed old age pension legislation at the close of testimony yesterday by Frederick H. Ecker, president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company. Mr. Ecker appeared before the commission at the Bar Association Building.

Mr. Ecker maintained first that the cost would be about $75,000,000 a year, as compared with the $12,500,000 estimate of the New York State Charities Aid Association; secondly, that employers were rapidly making adequate provision for the old age of their employes, and thirdly, that those who were not employes, whom he called the "social group," and who would always be without support on reaching old age, would be best taken care of "as individual cases," as at present.

Denies Seeing Progress.

On his second point, Mr. Ecker cited figures on the growth of group life insurance written by his company and discussed old-age annuity systems to be undertaken jointly by employers and employes.

"But you've been trying that for many years, haven't you?" Mr. Bernhardt asked.

"With very substantial progress," Mr. Ecker replied.

"Well," said Mr. Bernhardt, "I've been watching the situation for twenty years myself, and I cannot see that there has been any progress at all. What are you going to do with these people in the meantime?"

Mr. Bernhardt held that the growth of group insurance had only served to aggravate the problem of the aged workers by tending to make him even less able to compete with younger workers insurable at lower rates.

"I've been all over the State," he said, "and everywhere I hear the same thing: a man over 40 needn't apply."

Mr. Ecker said he was not hostile to the proposed pension plan, but that he was basing his views on experience.

Upholds Group Insurance.

The position of the insurance companies was further elucidated by James F. Little, vice president of the Prudential Life Insurance Company.

Mr. Little declared that Mr. Ecker's estimate of the annual cost to the State of the proposed plan was too low, and that more than $75,000,000 would be required. He also held that group life insurance was the best solution to the problem of old age poverty.

Mr. Little admitted that the proposed plan might prove to be necessary, but he urged that at all events nothing be done about the problem for the present.

Homer Folks, secretary of the State Charities Aid Association, declared that the possible developments of group insurance provided no reason "under the cloak of which we should do nothing to alleviate the problem now." He said that anyway group insurance could never solve the problem for rural and village workers.

"The only way it can be done" he said, "is for the State to do it, and do it itself, out of State moneys."

Professor Henry Rogers Seager of Columbia University explained that the problem was largely the result of the development of modern industry, which placed a heavy premium on youth. Questioned about group insurance, he said that such policies should be carefully scrutinized to determine whether or not they placed an even greater disability on the older worker.

Cornelius B. Cosgrove, superintendent of the homes for dependents in New York City, described conditions in his institutions. He said that more than $17,000,000 would be required to bring them up to what they should be. He said that with the exception of three institutions, there were none in the State which were properly equipped. Others who testified were P. Tecumseh Sherman and Mrs. Coffin Van Rensselaer, representing the National Civic Federation, who opposed the proposed measure, and Max Freuchter of the Workmen's Circle, who favored it. Senator Seabury Mastick, chairman of the commission, presided.

The old sailing ship Benjamin F. Packard, which was auctioned last night at the American Art Association-Anderson Galleries, Inc., brought only $1,000, less than some of the small ship models disposed of at the same sale. The ship, which was used here several years ago by the United States Junior Naval Reserve as a training vessel, was an item in the sale of marine relics from the estate of the late Max Williams.

The buyers last night were Flayderman and Kaufman, 68 Charles Street, antique dealers. Mr. Flayderman, who did the bidding, said that he had no idea for what his firm would use the ship, but purchased it because of friendship for Mr. Williams.

The Benjamin F. Packard, which has a tonnage of 2,013, was built in 1883 at Bath, Me. She measures 224 feet long on the deck, and 42 feet beam. Mr. Williams is reported to have paid $5,000 for her several years ago, when he bought her for conversion into a marine museum. The vessel now rests in Manhasset Bay, opposite the Casino, at Port Washington, L. I. Last night she was auctioned by photograph. The first and only bid was $1,000. A small-scale model of the same ship went to E. F. Bonaventure for $250.

Other ship models at the same sale brought as high as $2,600.

CHOOSE E. L. FLESH TO HEAD GRAIN BODY

DEALERS' PROTESTS HEARD

Commission Men Ask Statement of the Board's Policy Toward Their Business.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—As the result of a conference here today between Chairman Legge of the Federal Farm Board and representatives of the grain trade of the Middle West and Northwest, an agreement was reached, it was reported, to offer Edward L. Flesh of St. Louis the office of general manager of the Farmers National Grain Corporation. This place will pay a salary of about $50,000 a year.

Mr. Flesh served as second vice president of the United States Grain Corporation during the World War. At one time he was representative of the Grain Corporation in London. Because of his experience in the business he is regarded as particularly well qualified to manage the new grain cooperative. The operations of the agency have been held up until a general manager could be chosen. Farm Board officials are particularly anxious that the grain corporation shall begin to function without delay.

At the conference today with Mr. Legge and Julius Barnes, chairman of the United States Grain Corporation and its war-time head, representatives of private dealers asserted that the grain trade throughout the country was threatened with chaos.

Commission Men Perturbed.

The grain dealers have been disturbed by statements made by members of the board, especially the one recently by S. R. McKelvie, who was quoted by grain dealers as saying they had no place in the administration farm program. Chairman Legge himself has stated frequently that the commission dealer who rendered a real service in the marketing of farm commodities would not be hurt.

At the conference today representatives of the grain trade insisted that the Farm Board make known a definite policy.

They told Mr. Legge that if the administration program would require them to retire from business, they desired to know so that they could prepare for the new government program of supporting farmer cooperative marketing organizations. Mr. Legge did not divulge the board's future policies.

What the dealers desired to know about the board's policy included:

1. The policy of the board in acquiring or financing grain elevators.

2. Loans to be made to cooperatives.

3. Will the board's program provide for the marketing of grain through existing private channels, or does it intend to destroy the present machinery for storing, and for the domestic and foreign marketing of grain.?

Attention was called to the fact that private dealers must begin shortly to make plans for the export business next year.

Mr. Legge was told that contracts for export business must be made in May and country and terminal elevator men not affiliated with the farmer cooperatives must make plans for handling the next year's crop.

If the export business was to be handled by the cooperatives rather than through private channels, the grain trade desired to know in advance.

Benevolent Society Dissolves; Italians Here No Longer Need It

In asking yesterday for an order dissolving the Associazione Firenze Italiane di Hutuo Socerorso, one of the oldest benevolent organizations in the city, Lorenzo Capelli, chairman of the board, said that living conditions of Italians here had improved so much that such a society was no longer needed. Supreme Court Justice McGoldrick signed the order.

The society was formed in 1878 and once had 500 members. It has only twenty-nine members now and $3,079 deposited in the bank, which will be distributed among the twenty-nine.

Hoover Responds to Wishes of Chicagoan Who Is Unable to Take Post in Japan.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—An event which has seldom happened in diplomatic circles occurred when President Hoover selected Roy O. West of Chicago to be American Ambassador to Japan, asked the Japanese Government if Mr. West would be acseptable and then withdrew his selection at Mr. West's request before the reply came from Tokio.

It became known today that the President considered Mr. West, Secretary of the Interior in the Coolidge Cabinet and former secretary of the Republican National Committee, eminently fitted for the Japanese post.

Mr. West apparently was willing to accept the honor, but soon found that his business affairs would not permit him to go abroad at this time.

Both the American and Japanese Governments were disappointed over the outcome, but it was deemed necessary in the circumstances. The declination of Mr. West has obliged President Hoover to canvass the field anew for an American Ambassador to Japan.

SAYS REDUCED COST IS CHIEF AIR NEED

Advisory Committee in Report Stresses the Importance of Aeronautic Research.

URGES BETTER SEAPLANES

Asserts We Lag Behind Other Nations in Speed and Development of Passenger Traffic.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Transmitting to Congress today the annual report of the national advisory committee for aeronautics, President Hoover said that "although material progress has been made during the past year, the best efforts of America are needed to keep pace with other progressive nations in the rapidly developing science of aeronautics."

"I concur in the committee's opinion that progress on the outstanding problems of increased safety and decreased costs necessitates continuous scientific research on the fundamental problems of flight," the President stated. "To this end enlarged facilities are being provided for the committee's laboratories at Langley Field, Va.

"It is gratifying to note the committee's opinion that the efforts of all agencies, governmental and private, concerned with the technical development of aircraft are effectively co-ordinated in prosecuting the research programs of the committee."

The annual budget submitted to Congress by the President today provided a slightly increased fund for the committee, including $375,000 for completing its full-scale wind tunnel.

The committee's report, signed by Dr. Joseph S. Ames of Johns Hopkins University, chairman, said the United States leads the world in many phases of aeronautical development, but pointed out the nation's air deficiencies.

Nation Leads in Many Fields.

"The United States leads other nations in the use of aircraft for commercial purposes," it is stated. "It also leads in the private ownership and operation of aircraft; in the extent and lighting of airways; in the provision of weather-report service; in the number of airports and intermediate landing-fields; in the development of radio communication and directional-finding facilities; in the transportation of mail by air; in crop dusting and forest patrol by air; in aerial photographic surveying and mapping; in the development of cowling for air-cooled engines and engine starters; in the development of catapult-launching and deck-arresting devices, and in the development of parachutes.

"In addition, the United States has taken the lead in the analysis and study of causes of aircraft accidents. America will lead the world in air in the development of military types of airplanes, in its airship development program, in the development and use of metal construction for aircraft, and in the development of air-cooled and fuel-injection engines.

"America is definitely behind other nations in the development of seaplane floats and in the development and use of seaplanes, water-cooled engines and large air transports, and also in the development of air-passenger traffic.

Lags in Speed Tests.

"America holds the world's altitude record but is far behind in maximum speed.

"The authorization by the Congress of a seaplane channel for the committee will enable America to improve her position in the matter of seaplane floats, which will permit the building of better seaplanes.

"The committee has recently recommended a program for the development of liquid-cooled engines, which are deemed essential for the attainment of maximum speeds.

"It is only a question of time, in the committee's judgment, when America will lead the world in air passenger traffic, for it is producing the requisite technical knowledge so to improve the safety and efficiency of aircraft as to bring this about without direct cash subsidies, and for the further reason that its great area will make an important factor of the time to be saved by air travel."

"The most significant fact in the progress of aeronautics during the past year," the report said, "is that the airplane has found a place in the transportation needs of the country.

"The airplane as an improved means of transportation may be expected not only to bring our own people closer together, but to bring the nations of the world closer to us.

Predicts General Use of Plane.

"The present generation of Americans is learning how to see America from the air. The great interest of the youth of our land indicates that the rising generation may use the airplane as naturally, although perhaps not as generally, as we use motor cars today."

Citing the progress made by the government in providing aids to navigation, lighted airways, weather service and radio communication and the resulting rapid development in air transportation. The report attributed much of this progress to the effects resulting from government aid in development of improved aircraft.

The commission, however, expressed the opinion that the public is not willing to pay the present increased costs of travel by air, and declared that costs must be reduced to a competitive basis with other forms of transportation, where, after making allowance for time saved and for the inherent attractiveness of air travel, the costs will be fairly comparable with other means of transportation.

The committee said its major technical researches next year will be studies of spinning, low-speed control, stability and load distribution during various conditions of flight, also aerodynamical improvements methods of preventing ice formation.

HOOVER CHOOSES TWO FOR DIPLOMATIC POSTS

R. T. Davis and H. F. A. Schoenfeld, Who Speak Spanish, Are to Go to Latin-American Capitals.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4 (AP).—Among the diplomatic appointments to Latin America which President Hoover soon will send to the Senate are those of Roy T. Davis of Missouri to be Minister to Panama, and H. F. Arthur Schoenfeld of Washington to be Minister to Costa Rica.

In making these selections Mr. Hoover is following a policy he outlined to Congress yesterday of sending to the Southern Republics service men who speak the languages of the countries to which they are accredited.

Mr. Davis has been Minister to Costa Rica since 1922, having been transferred to San José by President Harding from Guatemala, to which country he was appointed by Mr. Harding the year previous to begin a diplomatic career.

Mr. Schoenfeld is a career man and now holds a commission as Minister to Bulgaria under appointment last year by President Coolidge. He did not go to Sofia, however, and now is serving as Secretary General of the Paraguay-Bolivia Commission of Inquiry and Conciliation.

Freight Car Orders Increase.

Domestic freight car orders in November totaled 5,126, according to The Railway Age. This brings the total for the eleven months to 88,523, against 51,200 in all 1928. Locomotive orders in November totaled 24, bringing the eleven-month total to 831, against 603 in 1928. There were 57 passenger cars ordered last month, bringing the eleven-month total to 1,167, against 1,930 in all 1928.

MAN IS FINED $5,000 IN WHISKY 'CHIP' RING

G. J. Felsenthal, Head of Two Companies, Enters Plea of Nolo Contendere.

FOUR OTHERS ARE FREED

Judge Byers in First Day in Federal Court in Brooklyn Holds Bondsman in $5,000 Bail.

Federal Judge Mortimer W. Byers, during his first day on the bench of the United States Court for the Eastern District of New York, imposed yesterday a $5,000 fine in a liquor case involving persons now well known as the "whisky chip ring." He also held a bondsman, charged with his associates with defrauding the government, in $5,000 bail, and swore in the December panel of the Federal grand jury.

The case of the "whisky chip ring," which involves 187 persons in the eastern part of the United States and includes a Williamsburg firm known as Glickstein & Terner, came before Judge Byers when interlocking officers of the Schenley Products Company of Schenley, Pa., and the Joseph S. Finch Company of Manhattan faced him. They were charged with conspiracy.

From Gabe J. Felsenthal of Louisville, Ky., vice president and director of both companies, Judge Byers accepted a plea of nolo contendere, in which Felsenthal admitted that the facts were as outlined by the government in the indictment filed June 18, but denied that the facts constituted a crime. The cases against the other men, Lewis S. Rosenstiel, Theodore G. Wiehe, George W. Wallenstein and Alfred G. Limberg, were dismissed.

The Schenley Products Company owns the Joseph S. Finch Company and operates large bonded whisky warehouses at Schenley, Pa. Barrels from these warehouses were found in the Brooklyn plant of Glickstein & Terner, and the men brought before Judge Byers were charged with making these barrels available to bootleggers so the inside of the barrels could be shaved and steeped in alcohol to impart a whisky flavor to synthetic liquor.

Judge Byers accepted the nolo contendere plea on the statement of District Attorney Howard W. Ameli that it was authorized by Assistant United States Attorney G. A. Youngquist, who succeeded Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt in charge of prohibition prosecutions. Judge Byers, however, insisted that the letter giving this authorization be read into the court record.

When Felsenthal presented a certified check for $5,000 to the clerk of the court in payment of his fine, the clerk refused to accept it, and marshals took Felsenthal to a bank, where cash was obtained.

In the afternoon Judge Byers swore in the December Grand Jury panel, with former Assemblyman Leo V. Doherty, an insurance broker of 95 Eastern Parkway, as its foreman.

Shortly afterward John N. Warren, a bail bondsman of 26 Court Street, representing the Capital City Surety Company, was brought before Judge Byers. With other defendants who are to be presented later, he was charged with conspiracy to defraud the government by substituting another person for a man whose bail was about to be forfeited.

About a month ago, when the so-called default calendar was called in Brooklyn Federal court, John T. Murray of 45-34 Lowery Street, Long Island City, answered to the name of Stephen McFadden of 108 Pearsall Street, Long Island City, who had been indicted for a prohibition violation in July. Assistant United States Attorney Frederick J. Peper became suspicious and Murray admitted that he had been employed to "take the rap" as McFadden. Nicholas Bozza, associated with Warren in the bail-bonding business, who presented Murray as McFadden, was held in contempt of court and sentenced to three months in jail.

Judge Byers set Friday, Dec. 13, for Warren's trial, smiling as he noticed the date. It is understood that other defendants will be presented for trial with him.

Music by Radio for Funerals

Urged by Undertakers' Group

Special to The New York Times.

ELIZABETH, N. J., Dec. 4.—Music by radio for funerals is sought by New Jersey undertakers in a resolution introduced by John F. Martin of this city at a meeting of the New Jersey State Funeral Directors' Association yesterday at Camden. The resolution recommends to the National Funeral Directors' Association the establishment of a special radio program of music to be tuned in during funeral services.

"The arrangement of such a program might be fixed for a certain hour in the afternoon, so as to fit in as part of the funeral services," the resolution says, "and such services could be readily timed so as to permit the rendering of music in keeping with the solemnity of the occasion."

It is proposed that the national association canvass its membership to obtain their views on the proposal.

5TH YEAR OF BODY HAILED

State Official Says Neither Capital Nor Labor Can Profit Indefinitely at Expense of Other.

Cooperation between labor and capital, such as has been achieved by employers and employes in the clothing trades, was praised by Lieut. Gov. Herbert H. Lehman last night at the fifth annual dinner of the New York Clothing Manufacturers' Exchange, Inc., at the Hotel Biltmore. The dinner, which was attended by several hundred persons, also was to celebrate the fifth anniversary of the impartial machinery, the special court to which disputes between the Amalgamated Clothing Workers and the manufacturers can be submitted.

Characterizing the development of successful industry as "a two-way traffic," Mr. Lehman emphasized that prosperity and contentment must run both to the worker and to the employer.

"Neither one," he said "can hope for any length of time to profit exclusively at the expense of the other. Your industry has recognized this principle for many years, and it is because of that fact that I believe that those within the industry have progressed both economically and socially. Laborer and employer have entered into agreements with the determination that they would be loyally carried out and have set up impartial machinery to fulfill their mutual obligations and to avoid misunderstandings, disputes and recriminations. I know that the setting up of your impartial machinery and its administration since then have been a very great contribution to peaceful and understanding relations between capital and labor; to sympathy and contentment which could have been attained in no other way."

"Very few of the cases demand a direct decision from the chairman, because through suggestion, discussion and reconciliation the vast majority of the cases are directly adjusted by the representatives of the union and the exchange themselves. Each one of these disputes, perhaps, had the potentiality of a strike had it not been deftly and helpfully worked out to a peaceful conclusion. Probably not more than 5 per cent of the cases submitted are actually subject to formal pronouncement."

Mr. Lehman praised the work accomplished by Jacob Billikopf and Raymond Ingersoll.

"There is another thing in which I think your industry has assumed a real leadership," he continued, "and that is the housing projects carried on to successful conclusion by the Amalgamated. Prosperity and contentment are substantially stimulated by good working conditions and other improved standards of living. The social influence of good housing conditions cannot be overestimated."

Among the other speakers were:

JULIUS ROSENWALD of Chicago.
JESSE ISIDORE STRAUS of R. H. Macy & Co.
LOUIS KIRSTEIN of Filene's, Boston.
CHARLES D. JAFFEE, president of the exchange.

HELD IN NEW HAVEN KILLING

Dominick Prece, 21 years old, 486 Third Avenue, Brooklyn, was arrested last night as a fugitive from justice from New Haven, and locked up to await the arrival of New Haven detectives with extradition papers.

Prece is alleged by the New Haven police to have killed Dominick Zito, 19, whose body was found on the outskirts of New Haven last Saturday, after Zito had turned State's evidence against Prece and a third member of an alleged counterfeiting gang. He admitted knowing Zito but told Detective Jordan that he knew nothing of the slaying.

FRIEDE IS FINED $300 IN BOSTON BOOK CASE

Judge Grants Stay of Sentence So Supreme Court Can Rule on Censorship Issue.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Dec. 4.—The State Supreme Court will determine the issue of book censorship, under existing statute laws, as a result of exceptions to rulings of Judge Hayes of the Superior Court, taken today by Donald S. Friede of New York, publisher of Theodor Dreiser's "An American Tragedy."

Mr. Friede, judged guilty in the Municipal Court of making a sale of an obscene book to Lieutenant Daniel J. Hines of the Police Department when he sold a copy of "An American Tragedy," was convicted by a jury in Suffolk Superior Court April 18th, and was fined $300 today by Judge Hayes, who granted a stay of sentence that the issue might be submitted to the Supreme Court.

The relevant issue is whether a book is to be judged by its text as a whole or by alleged objectionable or obscene sentences or paragraphs. Judge Hayes ruled in April that the reading to the jury of alleged obscene passages compiled with State laws, and he refused the demand of counsel for Mr. Friede to force the submission of the entire text to the jury.

Today Mr. Friede flew from New York to appeal before Judge Hayes late in the afternoon.

SAYS 'HOME WORK' HURTS CHILD HEALTH

Dr. Nash Asserts It Should Not Be Imposed on Pupils Till After High School Age.

STRESSES NEED OF PLAY

Advocates 7 Hours a Day Until the Age of 10—Health Institute Considers Problems.

There should be no homework given to school children until they are "pretty well through high school," according to Dr. Jay B. Nash, director of health and physical education of the School of Education of New York University, who addressed the morning session of the Health Institute of the New York State Federation of Women's Clubs and the Congress of Parents and Teachers at the Federation's Home Making Centre at Grand Central Palace yesterday.

He said that he would rather have children take another year to go through school if that were necessitated by the absence of homework. He also predicted a general adult revolt against too long school hours for children, referred to the desirability of time for creative activity and stressed the need for long hours of play, or "big muscle activity," as the primary foundation of a child's health.

"Power, the ability to resist fatigue and sustain effort, is built in by big muscle activity for long hours over long years, coming to a climax at the age of ten years, when a child ought to have about seven hours of play a day," he said.

"It is difficult to teach health habits," he said, "because every health habit devised by adults is a sacrifice to a child, and as a matter of fact most rules are made by adults for others to follow. We must build health habits in children around the things they want to do at the time, like being able to run fast. You won't do it by scaring them or by getting philosophical."

Adults are buying Christmas playthings for themselves, he said, and children often get more enjoyment out of the boxes they come in than out of the toys themselves. Toys that are wound up only teach children to wind a clock, he said, urging the purchase of toys that they can build with, clay that they can mold and other playthings of like nature.

Dr. Christine Leonard of the Institute for Child Guidance referred to the parental education carried on nowadays, but said that there ought to be "pre-parental education."

"Conferences" for taking care of the health of the pre-school child, permanent organizations participated in by the local medical practitioners, the school superintendent and the local health officer, at which children will be given thorough health examinations, were urged by Dr. William French, director of public health of the Commonwealth Fund.

Miss Maude W. Burgess, chief of the Parent-Teacher and Women's Club Bureau of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, was another speaker at the morning session.

Those attending the Health Institute were guests of Lee K. Frankel, Ph. D., second vice president and head of the Welfare Department of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, at a luncheon in the officers' dining room in the Metropolitan Building. The afternoon session, over which he presided, was held in the Metropolitan Auditorium, Twenty-fourth Street and Madison Avenue.

Dr. Paul Brooks, State Deputy Health Commissioner, advocated the appointment of county milk and dairy inspectors as an aid in the sanitation of milk.

Dr. C. Ward Crampton, chairman of the committee on periodic health examinations of the Medical Society of the State of New York, and Dr. William F. Walker, field director of the committee on administrative practice of the American Public Health Association, were the other speakers.

MISSING BOY FOUND, FATHER NOW IS GONE

Daniel Krali, 14-year-old Greek boy who was sent to Greece several years ago to be cared for by his grandparents, arrived yesterday on the Greek liner Edison. But his father, who spent hundreds of dollars to locate him, was not at the pier to greet him.

The story of Daniel's life and that of the five brothers and sisters who have never been found is a tragic one.

The boy is an American citizen, born in Milwaukee. The elder Krali was unable to care for his children after the mother died and he scraped up what money he could and sent them off to Greece, to be cared for by their grandparents.

Regularly, at first, Krali sent money to Greece, and two years ago, when his financial position was bettered, sent for them to return to America. He had been out of touch with them for some time, and when he investigated, found that the grandparents had died and the children were scattered. A former friend in Greece wrote to Krali that he had found them.

Overcome with happiness, Krali sent $2,000, then borrowed more and sent that. But he did not hear from his acquaintance again.

According to officials of the Travelers' Aid Society of Chicago, who now have Daniel Krali in charge, the desperate father called for aid of the International Migration Service and a search was begun in Greece. After two years of intensive searching, Daniel was found, but there was no trace of the others.

Residents in the Greek villages where the children went said they did not remember. It seemed that one of the children died. Daniel, when found, was living in an almost savage state, and unable to speak any language.

Gratified that they could at least report this small measure of success to the father in Chicago, workers on the case found that Krali, discouraged by the fruitless search, had disappeared. Daniel was then brought on to America as an American citizen and will be cared for by the Traveler's Aid Society until the father can be found, or until the boy is placed in a home.

The boy was a favorite with passengers on the Edison, who said he was virtually mute when brought on board. He spoke no Greek and had forgotten the English he knew when younger. Captain Vourekas taught him a little Greek during the voyage and passengers tutored him to say, "I am an American."

That was his answer to every question when one tried to converse with him.

BRITONS IN TRIBUTE AT ETERNAL LIGHT

HOOVER TO RECEIVE PARTY

A hurrying lunch-hour crowd paused near the Eternal Light in Madison Square yesterday to watch an English soldier, blinded in the Boer War and a veteran of the World War, lay before it a wreath bearing an inscription from the Admiral of the fleet, Lord Jellicoe, grand president of the British Empire Service League.

The veteran, Captain Sir Beachcroft Towse, a holder of the Victoria Cross, is one of a delegation of nine representing the league, which arrived in New York recently. The ceremony, in which forty members of the American Legion participated, was intended, Captain Towse said, as a gesture of amity and good feeling toward all Americans. Captain Towse was described by other members of the delegation as "the Florence Nightingale of the World War." Although blind, he served in France and traveled from hospital to hospital, cheering the wounded and the maimed. Other members of the British delegation who participated in the ceremony were Captain Donald Simson, head of the delegation; Lady Towse; Mrs. Eustace Burnside, wife of the grandson of the Civil War General; Captain Frank Johnson; Captain Arthur Evans, a member of Parliament for Cardiff; Lieut. Col. de Sales La Terriere; Lieut. Col. le Vicomte de Sarigny, and his brother, Captain Victor de Sarigny. Edward E. Spafford of New York, past National Commander of the American Legion; John J. Bennett, the legion department commander for New York, and Richard Hartshorne, commander for New Jersey, were the leaders of the Legion group.

The delegation will be received by President Hoover and while in Washington will lay a wreath on the grave of the Unknown Soldier at Arlington. After a visit to Philadelphia they are to sail from New York on Dec. 14. The aim of their brief visit, as expressed by the members, is "closer cooperation between the American Legion and the British Empire Service League, not to create any good feeling, because that already exists between the two countries, but to dissipate any possible misunderstanding."

Swedish Navy Uses Nation's Oil.

GOTHENBURG, Sweden, Dec. 4 (AP).—Fueled with shale oil extracted from large deposits on the Kinnekulle Mountain in the central province of Vaestergoetland, the Swedish destroyer Nordenskioeld, latest and fastest addition to the fleet, maintained its highest possible speed easily during a trial trip just ended. The exploitation of these shale oil deposits, it is thought, may render the Swedish Navy independent of oil importation from abroad.

MARCEL ARLAND WINS THE GONCOURT PRIZE

Receives Annual Award for His Novel 'L'Ordre'—Three Others Obtain Votes.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 4.—This year's literary prize of the Goncourt Academy today was awarded to Marcel Arland for his novel "L'Ordre." The selection was made upon the second ballot in the voting, which took place at the usual annual luncheon, attended by eight of the ten academy members.

Other writers obtaining votes for their work were Henri Chéon, Blaise Cendrars and Maximilien Gautier.

M. Arland, the prize winner, is a young writer of 30 who has produced many novels since the publication of his first book in 1923. He belongs to no special school of modern literature, but his books are generally psychological studies of some particularly agonizing mental struggle.

The book for which the Goncourt Prize was awarded is a study of a young man who wished to revolutionize society, but in so doing ruined the lives of the people he most admired and fell a victim to the revenge his reforming activities had provoked.

Several thousand novels were submitted in this year's competition.

IMMIGRATION CURB ON MEXICO URGED

Patriotic Societies' Resolution Calls for Limitation on All American Countries.

SEE CITIZENSHIP MENACED

F. H. Kinnicutt, President, Asserts 50,803 Mexicans Enter Yearly —Asks 5,000 Quota.

A resolution urging Congress to place "all countries of North and South America under quota restriction of immigration, while preserving the provision of the present law which excludes as permanent immigrants persons not eligible to citizenship," was adopted yesterday by twenty delegates from constituent societies of the Allied Patriotic Societies during a meeting at the Army and Navy Club of America, 30 West Forty-fourth Street.

Increasing immigration from Mexico was the basis of discussion and of an address delivered by Francis H. Kinnicutt, who was elected president of the allied societies.

Pointing out that 41 per cent of the immigration to the United States was now from the Western Hemisphere, Mr. Kinnicutt said:

"The present laws are so incomplete and defective that an immigration racially less assimilable and more harmful to American wage earners and standards of living than that which has been cut off has come into the country in an increasing flood since the enactment of the first quota law.

"During the period of twenty years preceding the first quota act of 1921 the annual immigration from Mexico averaged only 14,732. For the period 1921-1928, inclusive, this average has risen to 50,803.

"During the last fiscal year ended June 30, out of a total of 279,678 persons entering the country as new and permanent immigrants only 158,598 came from Europe; 116,177 came from various American countries and the rest from Asia, Africa, Australia and the Pacific islands.

"If the maximum annual immigration from such countries as Mexico were fixed at 5,000 it would become a comparatively simple matter to enforce the clause of the present law making eligibility to citizenship a prerequisite of entry."

He pointed out that recently the California Legislature, by an "overwhelming vote," urged Congress to restrict Mexican immigration.

Officers of the allied societies elected yesterday, other than Mr. Kinnicutt, were:

ROBERT L. LUCE, first vice president.
Mrs. CHARLES F. MacLEAN, second vice president.
JOHN J. PULLEYN, treasurer.
ANDREW HUMPHREY, chairman of the executive committee.
ALEXANDER L. WARD, secretary.

Those elected to the board of directors were Mrs. Finley J. Shepard, Mrs. Livingston R. Schuyler, Hugh White Adams, Catesby ap L. Jones and Charles K. Post.

UPHELD IN SEIZURE OF HIGH-FARE TAXICAB

Agent Acted Within Rights in Repossessing Car Using 20-10 Meter, Court Holds.

H. O. Sandberg, vice president of the Paramount Cab Corporation, was upheld yesterday by Magistrate McKiniry in West Side Court in his seizure of a Paramount cab which an independent operator was working with a high-rate meter.

Soi Schiff of 1,958 Ellis Avenue, the Bronx, was complainant in the case. He purchased a second-hand Paramount cab and without repainting it so that it might be distinguished from the corporation's cabs, installed a 20-10 meter in place of the 15-5 rate meter used by the Paramount fleet.

Sandberg said Schiff refused to replace the original meter to accord with the contract under which all second-hand Paramount cabs are sold, so on Nov. 20 an agent for the corporation took possession of Schiff's machine and drove off with it.

Magistrate McKiniry held that under the contract ownership of the cab remained with the Paramount Corporation for five years. In dismissing the charge of grand larceny brought against Sandberg by Schiff, he pointed out that Magistrate Simpson decided in West Side Court two weeks ago, in a similar case, that the Paramount Corporation had a right to repossess any Paramount taxicab that was charging passengers more than the corporation rate.

Bowery Mission Seeks Clothing.

The Rev. Dr. John R. Henry of the Bowery Mission, 227 Bowery, sent out an appeal yesterday for men's clothing "from shoes to overcoats." Dr Henry said that the first real touch of Winter had found the mission with its clothing stock entirely depleted, adding that the men helped by the mission needed the clothing for warmth and to make presentable appearances when applying for employment.

$30,000,000 PLAN FOR PRISONS URGED

Officials Endorse Estimate of Cost of Five-Year Program of Rehabilitation.

$12,000,000 IS ASKED NOW

Baumes Commission Members Say Huge Sum Is Required Because of Neglect in Past.

The estimate of $30,000,000 for a five-year program of prison construction which the State Crime Commission will present to the Legislature next month with a recommendation for an appropriation of $12,000,000 for immediate needs, received the full endorsement yesterday of members of the commission and officials of parole and correction departments.

All prison authorities reached yesterday in the city declared that the State institutions were seriously overcrowded and that the proposed building program was necessary not only to guard against prison outbreaks, but to provide a better environment to aid in reforming prisoners.

John S. Kennedy, vice chairman of the State Commission of Correction, approved "every item set forth in the program," which he said, is virtually the same as that agreed on at Governor Roosevelt's conferences last Summer. He asserted that bad housing was a "tremendous factor" in the prison outbreaks at Auburn and Dannemora.

"It took those riots to focus public attention on the necessity for building better prisons and there is a universal demand that it be done now," Mr. Kennedy said.

John C. Maher, Parole Commissioner of New York City, said he thought prisoners should be confined not only for punishment, but for reformation. He added that he was confident that the commission had this view in mind in seeking the $30,000,000 appropriation.

William Lewis Butcher, a member of the Crime Commission, of which Senator Caleb H. Baumes is chairman, explained that $30,000,000 would cover the cost of entirely rehabilitating the prison system of the State. The plans call for the construction of two new prisons and the modernization of the existing institutions.

"I think the State of New York owes it to itself," Mr. Butcher said, "to see that every inmate receives proper light, air and food and that the prisons are manned fully. Some of the money should be spent to improve the industrial plants to equip the men for gainful occupations so that when they come out they can find congenial employment at decent wages. It is a large sum, but it is absolutely necessary."

"We think $30,000,000 is essential," declared Miss Jane Hoey, another member of the commission. "The only reason we must expend a large sum now is that it is an accumulation of years."

PLANS ESPERANTO TOUR.

Head of French Society to Spend Several Months in America.

The universal adoption of Esperanto, the world-language, as an aid to international peace and world trade was urged yesterday in an interview by Ernest Archdeacon of Paris, president of the French Society for the Propagation of Esperanto. M. Archdeacon, who arrived in New York on Saturday aboard the French liner De Grasse, will tour the United States for several months in behalf of Esperanto.

"I am an apostle of Esperanto," said M. Archdeacon, "because I believe that, first of all, commerce between the nations will be greatly helped by its use. It is a simple language to learn; it can be learned from a book, which contains but six pages of grammar, in a few weeks. No schools are required for the teaching of this language."

Americans, who, with their tendency toward standardization in all things, especially in industry, should be strong advocates of Esperanto, M. Archdeacon said, admitting, however, that they are not. "You are like the French," he said. "You think your language sufficiently universal. You do not realize that there are 1,000 languages in the world."

He said that 500,000 persons now speak Esperanto.

HOSPITAL MERGER FORMALLY RATIFIED

TO STRESS INDUSTRIAL WORK

Unified Program Calls for Special Instruction for Practitioners on Accident Cases.

The corporations of the New York Post-Graduate Medical School and Hospital and of the Reconstruction Hospital, at separate meetings yesterday, ratified the consolidation of the two institutions. The announcements were made by Dr. Edward Hume, executive vice president of Post-Graduate, and by Allen Wardwell, president of the board of the Reconstruction Hospital.

After the merger is approved by the State Board of Charities and by the courts, the new institution will be known as the New York Post-Graduate Medical School and Hospital. Unified operation is expected to be effective about Jan. 1.

For the present each institution will operate in its own plant, but will lay increased emphasis upon the treatment of industrial diseases and injuries as well as on the teaching of practitioners in this field. The traumatic surgery work of both institutions will be consolidated and coordinated at once. When plans for the new building program of the Post-Graduate Hospital have matured, a Reconstruction Hospital unit for traumatic surgery will be set up within the Post-Graduate itself.

The Post-Graduate Hospital was founded a little more than forty-seven years ago. Its buildings are at 303 East Twentieth Street, at Second Avenue. The Reconstruction Hospital, which came into being during the Spanish-American War, is at 395 Central Park West. The combined capacity of the two institutions will be 500 beds.

Joint Program Announced.

It was announced yesterday that the joint program of the consolidated institutions in the field of traumatic and reconstructive surgery would include:

1. Laboratory research into the nature and causes of injuries and wounds, together with special studies leading up to advanced methods of treatment.
2. Modern treatment of reconstruction cases according to their actual needs and requirements, without yielding to pressure of insurance and compensation interests to abbreviate unduly the period of hospitalization.
3. Post-graduate instruction in this field, so that practitioners throughout the country may learn to apply modern technique to such cases.

In commenting on the nature of work to be accomplished, Dr. Hume said:

"The World War tremendously increased the volume of traumatic and reconstructive surgery and likewise vastly improved the technique of dealing with such cases. A primary aim of the consolidation will be the maximum use of what was learned in wartime by applying this knowledge to the needs of civil life in peacetime.

"During the war the Reconstruction Hospital made an enviable record in this field, and it has carried on efficiently with civil cases since the war. Its clinic for functional reeducation, coupled with its reconstructive surgery, has literally rebuilt injured men. The department of traumatic surgery at the New York Post-Graduate Medical School and Hospital has also done outstanding work in both treatment and teaching. Under the new plan vastly greater opportunities for post-graduate teaching will be afforded, thereby preparing much larger numbers of practitioners to deal with this growing field of modern surgery."

Accident Cases Stressed.

The development of modern transportation and industry, it was explained at the Post-Graduate Hospital, has greatly increased the volume and complexity of traumatic surgery. Airplane and motor vehicle accidents are responsible for a growing number and variety of cases with which physicians and surgeons must deal in their regular practice. The need of post-graduate training, it was emphasized, has become greater, as has the demand for specialists in this field.

Subtle, complex and unforeseen hazards in modern industry now demand an alertness never before experienced in the realm of medicine, it was said. Among the many phases of industry where new problems have to be dealt with were mentioned toxic poisonings from the use of lead in paint and gasoline and of other minerals and chemical substances, such as the use of radio-active material.

The consolidated institutions, which will use their pooled resources for instruction, will be administered by a board which will include the Post-Graduate board and nine directors of the Reconstruction Hospital.

STOVE BLAST KILLS NURSE, BURNS BABY

Woman Attendant, 65, Snatches Newly Born Infant to Safety and Dies Fighting Flames.

MOTHER AIDS IN RESCUE

Aroused by Cries, Arises to Quench Smoldering Blanket, Then Collapses in 136th St. Home.

An attempt to refill a small kerosene stove while the the wick was still smoldering resulted in the death of a nurse and severe burns to a newly born baby girl in a fifth floor tenement at 293 East 136th Street, the Bronx, at 10:30 o'clock yesterday morning.

At 6 A. M. a baby girl had been born to Mrs. Nellie Kenrick, 32 years old. She had been attended by Mrs. Mary See, 65, a trained nurse, whose home was at 534 East 138th Street. The father, Thomas Henrick, an employe of the East River Oil Company, had left half an hour after seeing his new child.

Four hours later the nurse started to give the infant a bath. She had placed the child on the kitchen table and she was pouring kerosene into the container of the stove when the stove exploded. Mrs. See, wrapping the infant in a blanket, rushed it into the adjoining room and returned to fight the flames, which had spread with great rapidity. Her clothing caught fire almost instantantly and, overcome with smoke and severely burned, she collapsed.

From her bedroom Mrs. Kenrick had heard the explosion. With great difficulty she got to her feet and groped her way into another room, where her other two children, Josephine, 6 years old, and Thomas Jr., 2, were sleeping. She put out the fire that had caught in the infant's blanket and had almost suffocated it, and she got as far as the fire-escape. She was then too weak even to shout for help, but the cries of the children attracted the notice of William Longmacker, a garage worker, and Policeman Robert Mulligan.

The two ran up and led the mother and children downstairs to the flat occupied by Mrs. Patrick Franey on the third floor. Firemen, who arrived a few minutes later, had little difficulty in putting out the fire.

Dr. A. Fallis, after pronouncing Mrs. See dead, took Mrs. Kenrick and the infant to the Lincoln Hospital, where it was found that the child had suffered from severe burns and the mother from shock and exposure.

FINDS AVERAGE BANDIT 19.

Lawes Says 200 Under 21 Were Sent to Sing Sing in 17 Months.

Special to The New York Times.

OSSINING, N. Y., Dec. 4.—Sing Sing prison officials made public today statistics showing that 200 prisoners under 21 years of age have been committed to the prison during the past seventeen months, of whom three were 16 and twenty-two were 17. The average age of a hold-up man, Warden Lewis E. Lawes said, was 19 years.

During the past seventeen months thirty-four prisoners committed were 18 years old; sixty-eight were 19 and 75 were 20. Some of these prisoners have been moved to up-State prisons, the census of minors actually in Sing Sing on July 1 showing a total of 194, including two 16 years old; sixteen, 17; thirty-seven, 18; fifty-seven, 19, and eighty-two, 20.

The recent stabbing to death of Reubin Kaminsky, 17-year-old Brooklyn youth, could have occurred as easily in a reformatory, Warden Lawes said, adding: "They have, in fact, more stabbings in reformatories everywhere than in prisons, because the inmates in them are younger and more reckless. Our records show that most of the stick-ups, where guns are used, are by fellows from 17 to 22 years old and that the average age of the bandit is now 19."

DELEGATES APPROVE DRESS STRIKE ORDER

Cleveland Convention Is Told That Walkout Here Has Employers' Sanction.

SEEKS END OF SWEATSHOPS

Telegram From Acting Governor Lehman Indicates State Action to Stabilize the Industry.

CLEVELAND, Dec. 4.—Unanimous approval of a general strike of 45,000 dressmakers in New York City was given today by delegates to the convention of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union in session here. The strike will be called soon after the expiration of existing agreements on Dec. 31.

Four New York locals requested approval of the strike. The request was signed by Vice Presidents David Dubinsky and Luigi Antonini, and Max Spielman and Joseph Breslau, managers of the locals representing most of the dressmakers in the New York area.

Approval of the strike program was accompanied by an outburst of cheering provoked by addresses by Benjamin Schlesinger, president of the International, and Julius Hochman, chairman of the resolutions committee, who is also in charge of the organization campaign among the dressmakers in New York.

The main objective sought by the union in the strike is to set up impartial machinery for the regulation and "policing" of the dress trade similar to that in the cloak industry. The workers seek the cooperation of all factors in the industry for the elimination of the "sweatshop" and the maintenance of working standards.

Seek Board Like Cloak Trade.

The control commission functioning in the cloak trade was created following the recent strike in that industry in New York, the settlement of which was made possible through the intervention of Governor Roosevelt acting through Lieut. Gov. Lehman. George E. Alger is head of the commission, serving as one of three appointees of the Governor. The three employers associations in the cloak industry and the union have representation. A similar commission and labor representation is the aim of the union for the dress trade.

That Governor Roosevelt is likely to intervene in this new situation in the garment industry was evident from a telegram received by the convention today from Lieut. Gov. Lehman, as Acting Governor. He replied to messages sent by the convention to Governor Roosevelt and to himself thanking them for their cooperation in reorganizing the cloak industry. In his message Colonel Lehman said:

"On behalf of Governor Roosevelt, who is out of the State, as well as on my own behalf, I want to thank the convention for the generous messages which we have received.

"I can assure you that Governor Roosevelt and I have had great satisfaction in cooperating with all the factors in the cloak and suit industry in their constructive efforts to improve conditions. We are gratified to know that so much progress has been made and we can assure you that our interest in the problems of your industry continues unabated."

In addition to the main objective of the strike the union will also demand maintenance of the five-day, forty-hour week, wage increases and an improvement of general working conditions.

The strike resolutions approved by the convention declared that the workers engaged in the dress trade are unable to provide a fair living for themselves and their families and that the drastic step of a strike must be taken to curb the spread of sweatshops, "which have completely demoralized the industry."

"No worker will be able to support himself and the employers themselves will be thrown out of business unless the strike is called, the sweatshop abolished and cutthroat competition eliminated," President Schlesinger said.

"There are hundreds of shops infesting the industry in which the padrone system still prevails, the system whereby two or three workers, exploited by the manufacturer, in turn exploit eight or ten workers who are considered helpers. The worst aspects of the sweatshop system of former days are retained, such as long hours, debased wage standards and the human indignity to which the workers are subjected in these shops."

The whole industry must be "ventilated," Mr. Schlesinger declared.

Employers Will Cooperate.

Reading from a report of the general executive board, Mr. Hochman said that to prevent a long-drawn-out strike after the expiration of the agreements Dec. 31, President Schlesinger called a number of conferences last month in New York with representatives of the employers' associations, at which the union succeeded in obtaining an agreement in principle for their cooperation in reorganizing the industry.

The employers said they would cooperate with the union and with any State or public agency in the readjustment of conditions in the industry, he continued, provided the union showed in the strike that it was really in control of a majority of the workers and was able to exert effective pressure on unorganized shops.

The organized manufacturers are seeking to extend and strengthen their own organizations, Mr. Hochman said, and it is believed that at the psychological moment Governor Roosevelt will intervene with a proposal for the regulation and "policing" of the industry similar to the one which brought the cloak strike to a satisfactory conclusion.

The convention in a resolution called on President Hoover to take the initiative for the establishment of the five-day week for all government employes, and asserted that the general adoption of the five-day week would reduce unemployment. The resolution was introduced by Delegate Leon Hattab, representing Local 66 of New York.

Freed in Alleged Bond Theft.

At the close of a hearing in the Tombs court yesterday Magistrate Simpson discharged Albert H. Van Ness, 52 years old, who was arrested last week in connection with the alleged theft of a Liberty bond, valued at $12,000, by means of a fraudulent check. Theodore Von Glahn of Salomon & Hutzler, brokers, at 60 Broadway had appeared as complainant in the case. The magistrate said there was insufficient evidence on which to hold Van Ness.

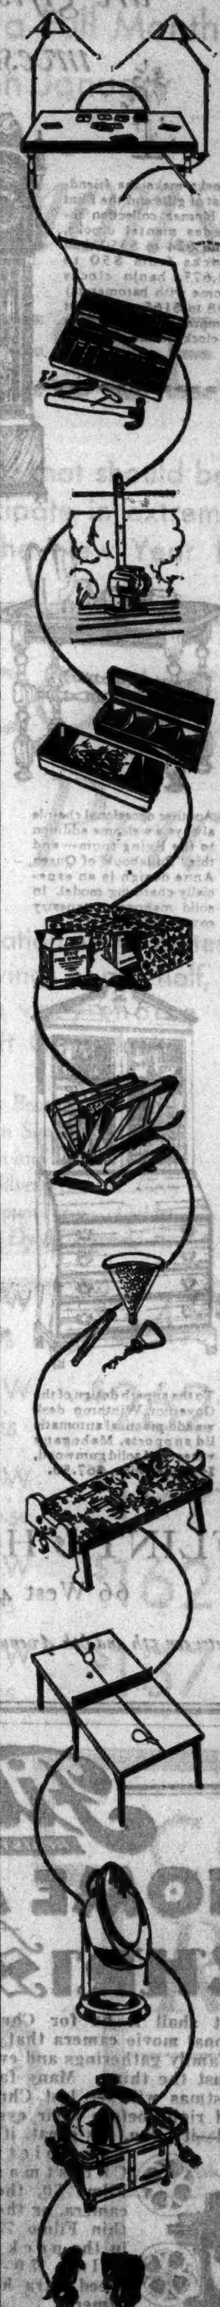
GIFTS Janet Gray SAW AT LEWIS & CONGER



"WHAT a slick idea for a gift!" said the Big Chief. And really these new Twin Bridge Lights are. They come in pairs, clamp to alternate legs of the table and one light plug takes care of them both. Each light rears proudly aloft on an adjustable jointed arm. They give light on the table without glare in the eyes. The ones for Sally are green. (They also come in red or black.) $6.00 for the two.

HAVE you a handy man in your family—or a handy lady either, for that matter? Then this Handy Nail and Tool Box will warm the cockles of their hearts. It's a compact little affair—only 14" long. But stowed inside it are hammer, gimlet, tack lifter, screwdriver, pliers, measuring rule, glue; and it has no less than 20 individual compartments full of tacks, picture hooks, screws, and nails. Finished in walnut. $8.50

WINDOWN closes the window for you half an hour or so before getting-up time. It fastens to the sill. On retiring, you set it like an alarm clock, and at the appointed time the clock releases a coil spring and down glides the window quietly. The Closer is a soft gray in color, and is easily installed. $13.50

I'VE noticed that men in particular like these new Preference Cigarette Boxes, so I pass on the hint. Preference Chests have labeled compartments (20 interchangeable labels come with each box) for four different brands of cigarettes, so that one's guests can select their favorite smoke. The boxes come lacquered in Chinese red, green or black, and are decorated with colorful prints. Also in plain mahogany. $5.00

DIXIE Firelighters have most persuasive ways with reluctant fires. They'll start any fire to blazing merrily without aid from either paper or kindling. The lighters are resin-soaked briquettes. A package of eight dozen of them done up in special Christmas holly paper makes a jolly gift for the owner of a fireplace. $2.75

THE Edicraft Toaster toasts two slices of bread on both sides at the same time. And when they're done, the Toaster pops open of its own accord and all but hands you the toast. It's one toaster that keeps up with the breakfast demand for hot toast quick and often. $15.00

THE Big Chief has bought several Jigger Funnels to give away. They're of hammered silver plate. The handle pulls out and fits in the bottom, making a measuring cup for the various ingredients. Along with the Funnel goes a corkscrew and bottle capper. $2.50

THE only trouble with Steppup is that he makes toothbrushing and handscrubbing almost too popular. His mission in life is to boost youngsters up to the wash basin. His puppy face forms one end of the stool, his jaunty tail makes the handle. Around his middle is oilcloth. He comes painted in pink, or blue. And children love him. $3.00

THE Big Chief and I are giving our young folks a Ping Pong Table and Set for Christmas. We have an ulterior motive, I admit—it'll help keep them home in the evenings. The Table has folding legs, and a hinged top so it folds when not needed. It is painted green with the courts outlined in white. Ours is the 5x9 ft. size, $42.00 (the 4x8 ft. is $35.00). Ping Pong Set, $3.75

I'M giving my sister a Face-a-lite Mirror because it's a big help when putting on make-up. And the Big Chief is giving his brother one for shaving. You see, this Mirror has a light behind it and a frosted glass reflector that casts a brilliant, even light over all the face at once—and without the least glare in the eyes. $15.00

POP away, little Electric Corn Popper. You are simply grand for getting the fun started when a crowd drops in! This Popper is made of shining nickel plate, plugs into any socket, has a turner in the lid to prevent the corn from scorching. The top tips to empty. And a tin of corn goes along with the Popper. $5.00

THE Big Chief is feeling pleased with himself over the fancy Corks he's giving to some of his friends. The tops are hand carved of solid wood. There are a jet black Elephant and a sardonic black Raven, a brown Owl exceeding wise, and a fierce and truculent little brown Eagle. They're imported from Switzerland. Raven and Elephant, $2.50 each; Eagle and Owl, $3.00 a pair.

URGES ENGINEERS TO AID COLLEGES

Dr. Angell Says They Must Help Schools to Attract Ablest Brains in Profession.

RESEARCH WORK STRESSED

H. S. Falk Tells Convention That Manufacturers Should Develop Apprenticeship System.

To obtain maximum results in engineering or educational fields the colleges must have a fair share of the ablest brains in the profession and endowed professorships must be established to attract men of the highest character. Dr. James Rowland Angell, president of Yale, declared at the annual dinner of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers last night in the Hotel Astor. The Society's fiftieth convention is in session at the Engineering Societies Building, 29 West Thirty-ninth Street.

Dr. Angell declared the engineers have an obligation to see that the engineering schools have and retain a fair share of the ablest brains in the profession. He pointed out that industry with its alluring rewards is attracting the best minds in the various professions.

He added that it is also essential for teachers to receive not only adequate financial return, but also opportunities for research and study and to carry on inside the educational organization the kind of work which is so inspiring and so rewarding to the man who holds an important position outside.

"As a matter of fact," Dr. Angell said, "we have always been able to retain in a very remarkable amount of those best brains for reasons I need not go into. But when we have to compete with the great industries, with the opportunities which the profession outside the industries holds out to progressive and aggressive able men, opportunities not only of financial character, but opportunities to do the sort of work that inspires the imagination and touches the ambition of any man who likes to tackle a big job and do it successfully, as long as that is the fact, the engineering schools are going to have a hard time in turning out men with whom you in the profession are going to be absolutely satisfied."

Apprentice System Urged.

Manufacturers and business men should take the training of young men for industry much more seriously than they have in the past, Harold S. Falk of Milwaukee declared in an address at yesterday afternoon's session.

Mr. Falk stressed the fact that American industries have been depending upon European apprenticeship systems for training and the new immigration laws have cut off this source of supply. He said that although much has been done in apprenticeship in various centres and individual industries, "a mere beginning has been made, and very few manufacturers, comparatively speaking, have given the question much attention."

One way to solve the problem, Mr. Falk said, is to hold contests of various sorts in industrial fields.

The progress of experimentation to increase the efficiency of steam as a power source was discussed during the afternoon. Harvey N. Davis, president of the Stevens Institute of Technology, described the formulation of a table giving the action of steam at different temperatures and under varying pressures. Work on the table is being carried on at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and the United States Bureau of Standards, and the preliminary results will be published shortly.

Other topics discussed included lubrication, with special reference to Diesel engines, an explanation of the best method of using engineering literature and the management of departments of large industrial organizations.

During the day delegates inspected the press rooms of THE NEW YORK TIMES, the cooling system of the Roxy Theatre, the East River station of the New York Edison Company and several other plants.

New Inventions Shown.

A new electrical invention, a small grid glow tube, which one can operate with one-millionth of a watt and thus control a power 100,000 times as great, was exhibited at the National Exposition of Power and Mechanical Engineering at the Grand Central Palace.

To demonstrate the new invention and its sensitivity, a small airplane which has three motor-driven propellers was suspended in a booth. So sensitive is the tube that when a person places a hand near it, the electrical energy radiating from the body causes a stimulus which is stepped up sufficiently to start the motors.

Another invention, a heating unit, is designed to facilitate the quick starting of airplanes in zero weather. The device warms the engine oil and considerably simplifies the preliminaries to starting a flight.

USED ANOTHER'S NAME.

Man Arrested in Burglary Told Police He Was George Addicks.

A man arrested for attempted burglary of a drug store at 424 Willis Avenue, the Bronx, last Monday, gave his name as George Addicks of 306 East 154th Street, the Bronx. Yesterday, in Bronx County jail, the man admitted his name was not Addicks, saying that he knew the real Addicks, a plumber, who bears a good reputation, and gave his name when arrested because it happened to come into his head just then.

The prisoner said his own name is Crotty. He has a long police record, and when the record was verified by police fingerprints it was given out under the name of Addicks, as Crotty had signed that name to his plea of not guilty in Morrisania Court. Crotty refused to tell where he lived.

Clocks make the friendliest of gifts and the Flint & Horner collection includes mantel clocks, from $24 to $350, hall clocks from $50 to $1,675, banjo clocks (some with barometers) $38 to $165—the most comprehensive collection of clocks in the city.

This proud hall clock will echo the chimes of Westminster or of Wynchester. It is of solid Honduras mahogany 7 ft. 3 in. high with imported 8 day tubular bell-movement and priced at $625. It is but one of many splendid designs in hall clocks.

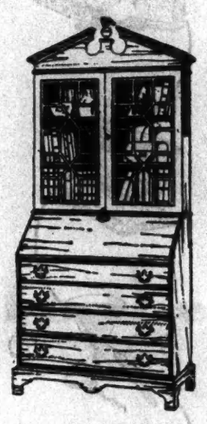
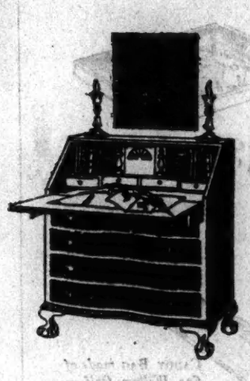
Another occasional chair is always a welcome addition to the living room—and this "Pullabout" of Queen Anne design is an especially charming model. In solid mahogany, tapestry covered, $50.



From its gilded eagle to its bracket foot this secretary is a lovely reproduction of a fine Colonial piece. In solid mahogany and veneer, $105. In solid maple and veneer, $112.



To the superb design of the Governor Winthrop desk we add practical automatic lid supports. Mahogany veneer and solid gumwood, 34 inches wide, $67.50.

is a job that calls for pumps

Yesterday a picture of lonely waste. Parched ground. Cactus and greasewood. Occasionally a scrawny cow gone wild. The desert. Pioneers scowled and pressed on.

To that same spot today comes a new brand of pioneer. With modern vision, modern foresight, he sinks a well. The desert was only a few hundred feet from water.

Electricity and pumps bring them together. Greasewood gives place to orchards, cactus to gardens. The wild cow is gone, and in her place a sleek herd of registered stock. An eager worker has found opportunity.

• • •

EDISON GOING SOUTH FOR RUBBER TESTS

DENIES SUCCESS IS NEAR

Report That Goldenrod Products Can Be Made Commercially at 16 Cents a Pound Termed False.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST ORANGE, N. J., Dec. 4.—Thomas A. Edison will leave his home here tomorrow morning to continue in Fort Myers, Fla., his experiments in the production of rubber from the common goldenrod and other plants. Mr. Edison is going south earlier in the season than ever before, largely, it is said, because of eagerness to make progress in his search for a new source of rubber supply in the United States, to which he is devoting most of his attention.

Of all the thousands of varieties of plants with which Mr. Edison has experimented as a possible additional source of rubber, goldenrod has been found most satisfactory and most likely to be suited for possible commercial production of rubber, according to his secretary, William H. Meadowcroft.

In making this statement, Mr. Meadowcroft denied stories circulated through a news agency that he had announced for Mr. Edison that goldenrod yields the elements of rubber in commercially profitable quantities, and that from it artificial rubber could be produced commercially for 16 cents a pound. Mr. Edison has not yet made any estimates of possible cost of production, or decided upon the commercial possibilities of such production, Mr. Meadowcroft said.

The only mention of cost, Mr. Meadowcroft added, was that Mr. Edison showed a sample of artificial rubber sent him from England, and said that the price of 75 cents a pound for this would not compare favorably with a selling price of 16 cents for crude rubber, and that the product was therefore impractical at present.

Seeks Emergency Supply.

Mr. Edison has been working for some time on the rubber problem, seeking a plant that could be grown quickly and in great quantity in the United States, so that in an emergency the country would not be without a rubber supply.

Mr. and Mrs. Edison will depart on the 10:15 train from Market Street Station in Newark for his forty-third annual trip to their Winter home in Florida. Frederick Ott, chief of the Edison experimental laboratories and ten laboratory assistants have preceded them.

Mr. Edison received today resolutions on Light's Golden Jubilee, presented to him in his library by a delegation of five from the Northern New Jersey Chapter, American Society of Safety Engineers, engineering section, National Safety Council. The group was headed by W. R. Smith, assistant chief engineer of the Public Service Products Company of Newark.

Rubber Exchange Head Skeptical.

Frank R. Henderson, president of the Rubber Exchange of New York, was skeptical yesterday of the commercial possibilities of rubber produced from goldenrod. Other men prominent in the rubber industry declined to comment.

"I am afraid it would require a considerable number of goldenrod plants to meet the rubber requirements of the United States," Mr. Henderson said. "I understand, however, that Mr. Edison was looking for something that would answer in an emergency. It does not seem to me that the introduction of such a product would have much effect on the crude rubber market."

TO DIVERT $2,200,000 TO NEW JERSEY ROADS

Commission, Heeding Hoover's Plea, Seeks Money Shifted to Bridge and Tunnel Projects.

Special to The New York Times.

TRENTON, N. J., Dec. 4.—The State Highway Commission announced today that, in compliance with President Hoover's request that unemployment be lessened by the speeding of public works construction, it has asked the State House Commission to return to the road fund $2,200,000 diverted to the former Interstate Bridge and Tunnel Commission. The money was used for completion of the Holland Tunnel and the Philadelphia-Camden Bridge.

The Legislature diverted $1,200,000 in 1926 and the balance the next year, stipulating that repayment should be made from surplus revenues from the operation of the two projects. Interest is also to be paid at 4 per cent a year. Abraham Jelin, commissioner of New Brunswick, in indorsing the motion of Otto Wittpenn, commissioner of Jersey City, said that the money should be repaid as quickly as possible so that construction projects planned for next year may not be delayed.

The board received notice from the State Board of Commerce and Navigation that it has approved the plans for construction of a bridge at an elevation of 135 feet over the Hackensack River on the diagonal route to the Holland Tunnel, Jersey City, from Newark. The War Department is expected soon to approve the application and the commission plans to receive bids next month.

Advertisements were placed for the receipts of bids Monday, Dec. 23, for erection of a bridge over Manumuskin Creek on Route 49 at Port Elizabeth, Cumberland County, and for two grade separations on Ruote S-41. The latter route will take traffic from the Tacony-Palmyra Bridge over the Delaware River and will be elevated over Route 25 in Pennsauken Township, Camden County, and under Maple Avenue, Chester Township, Burlington County.

LOSES $15,000 BRACELET.

Mrs. Crawford Hill Dropped It From Purse in Third Avenue.

The loss of a $15,000 diamond bracelet and the offer of a $2,000 reward for its recovery were reported yesterday to the police by Mrs. Crawford Hill of 7 Sutton Place.

Mrs. Hill told the police she was walking in Third Avenue, between Fifty-seventh and Fifty-ninth Streets, Tuesday, when she missed the bracelet. It was contained in an envelope pocketbook, which she carried under her arm.

The bracelet is of platinum an inch and a half or two inches wide, and is set with an emerald, a three-carat cut diamond, a two-carat square diamond, 426 round diamonds and four oblong crystals.

SAYS STATE BOARD FAVORS UTILITIES

E. F. Jeffe, Whose Firm Acts for 10,000 Industrial Power Users, Charges Undue Secrecy.

ALLEGES DILATORY TACTICS

Companies Get Benefit of Every Technicality, He Testifies at Legislative Inquiry.

E. F. Jeffe, an engineer whose firm represents 10,000 industrial users of electric current, spent an hour and a half on the witness stand yesterday in a sharp attack on the Public Service Commission as a protector of the public utility companies.

Testifying at the resumption of the hearings in City Hall before the legislative commission on revision of the public service law, Mr. Jeffe declared that not the law but the commission was at fault. He accused it of unnecessary delays, undue secrecy, an unwillingness to aid the consumers and a disposition to give the utilities the advantage of legal technicalities.

The witness cited specific cases of what he considered erroneous procedure or dilatory tactics on the part of the regulatory board, but he admitted that his own experience with the commission was limited to two or three cases a year. By their questions some of the members of the legislative commission indicated their doubt that he drew fair conclusions from the facts presented.

Says Technicalities Aid Utilities.

"The benefit of every technicality is given the utility companies by the commission, and very little help, if any, is given the average consumer or the consumer's representative," Mr. Jeffe said. "The preparation of the complaint, the submission of the complaint and the presentation of the complaint entails so great an expense that no individual consumer can afford to test the right or wrong of the utility company's action. Findings, investigations and decisions of the company, of its counsels and of its engineers are so closely guarded and surrounded by such an air of secrecy that the average complainant feels that he is being placed on trial whenever he submits a complaint.

"It seems to be the attitude of the present Public Service Commission to discourage complaints against the utility companies and to place every possible obstacle, technical, legal and otherwise, in the path of any complainant. Questions involved are brushed aside and paramount issue is taken over forms of complaints, forms of testimony and so forth.

"The great need of the consumers of this State at the present time is a representative on the Public Service Commission who will act as the consumers' legal adviser."

It took the commission, he said, two months to rule that it was without jurisdiction in a dispute between Kahn & Feldman, Inc., and the Brooklyn Edison Company, and then access was refused to the opinion of the commission's counsel in the matter. At a cost of $7,500 the Morse Manufacturing Company, he said, filed a complaint, had a two-day hearing devoted almost entirely to its merits, and then found its case dismissed because it was not a domestic corporation, although it had asked at the beginning whether this fact would bar its complaint against a utility.

In the case of the Conron Brothers Company against the United Electric Light and Power Company, he continued, it took the commission from July 12, 1928, when formal complaint was filed, until April 8, 1929, long after an informal hearing had been held, to render a decision in favor of the consumer.

The witness further condemned the commission for not giving access to the figures of its engineers after it had announced a negotiated reduction in the coal surcharge of several metropolitan utilities against which complaints had been filed. The figures would have shown whether the reduction was sufficient, Mr. Jeffe said.

Publishers Propose New Law.

Parker McCollester, attorney for the Publishers' Associations of New York City and State and for the Shippers' Conference of Greater New York, proposed to the investigating commission a law which would empower the Public Service Commission to investigate and decide upon complaints against railroads of unreasonable and discriminatory charges and to direct damage or refund payments. Newsprint mills within the State suffered unfair competition from outside mills because the Interstate Commerce Commission would take such action in the case of complaints against charges in interstate traffic, whereas rail traffic within the State was exempt, he said.

A proposal for the uniform regulation of cross-country bus lines by the Public Service Commission was advanced by William D. Cameron, attorney for the Bus Associates Corporation. He urged that the commission be empowered to grant certificates of convenience and necessity to bus lines and to govern the franchise terms although the municipalities would retain authority as to granting consent to bus operation on their streets.

Percival R. Moses, engineer, advocated a new electricity rate structure to reduce the differential between retail and wholesale rates and thus eliminate the inducement of large building owners to submeter. A plea for uniform salary increases for employes of the Public Service Commission was made by Ferdinand Enterline, assistant engineer of the commission. The hearing will be continued today.

CATSKILL VOTES BONDS.

Will Build Water System Called For by Health Commissioner.

Special to The New York Times.

CATSKILL, N. Y., Dec. 4.—Catskill taxpayers voted two to one at a special election yesterday, approving a bond issue of $575,000 to install a waterworks system with Potuck Creek as the source of supply. The project was defeated last year by 106 votes.

Catskill has used Hudson River water and the new supply is on the advice of Dr. Matthias H. Nichol, State Health Commissioner, who condemned the old system. The work will give employment to 200 men.

SUE OVER RIGHTS IN CORNSTALK PAPER

Minority Stockholders Ask $8,668,750 Accounting of Euromerican Directors.

FIGHT MERGER AS ILLEGAL

Action Also Charges Defendants Wasted Assets for Own Profit—They Deny Allegations.

A suit involving disposition of the basic patents by which paper is manufactured from cornstalks was filed in the Supreme Court yesterday by minority stockholders of the Euromerican Cellulose Products Corporation, which acquired the processes invented by Dr. Dorner, a Dutch chemist, against the officers and directors of that company for an accounting of $8,668,750. The plaintiffs contend that the defendants wasted the assets of the company for their own profit and caused a loss to the minority stockholders.

The action is brought through Harry T. Zucker as attorney for twelve stockholders owning 3,700 shares, of whom are Louis Bergman, holder of 1,400 shares, and Benjamin Unger, 1,100.

The defendants named are the Euromerican company, the Cornstalk Products Company, Inc., which is alleged to have taken over the Euromerican company; William J. Day, chairman; Norman N. Newman, treasurer; Marion W. Ripy, secretary, and Victor Berman, Floris W. Ter Meulen, Carl B. Ely, S. B. Thorne and J. C. Von Eck, directors of the Euromerican company.

The complaint alleges that the individual defendants through a holding company obtained control of the majority stock of the Euromerican company and through this holding they subsequently got the majority control of the Cornstalk Products Company, Inc.

They are accused of mismanaging and wasting the property of the Euromerican Company, and of causing action by the stockholders on Aug. 26 by which it was voted to dissolve the Euromerican company and to cancel an obligation by which the Cornstalk Products Company was no longer required to issue stock to the Euromerican company for the right to use the Dorner process.

The plaintiffs say that since 1927 the Cornstalk Products Company has spent more than $1,000,000 developing the process for manufacturing paper and other products from cornstalks and similar waste from farms, and that under the agreement by which it uses the Dorner process, it agreed to issue 60 per cent of the stock to the Euromerican company, to which Mr. Day, who had purchased the process from the inventor, had assigned it.

The complaint further recites that the Cornstalk Products Company issued 112,500 shares to the Euromerican company and 75,000 shares to others, and that this ratio was maintained until last January, when it is alleged the defendants consented that the Cornstalk Products Company should deliver "substantial quantities" of stock to others and refrain from carrying out the contract with the Euromerican company.

The plaintiffs contend that because the defendant officers and directors, against the protests of the minority, cause dthe Euromerican company to be dissolved and merged with the Cornstalk Products Company, they are accountable for $7,031,250 as the value of 187,500 shares of Cornstalk stock to which their company would be entitled under the contract, at the valuation of $37.50 a share.

They also ask that the defendants be compelled to account for $562,500 as the value of 15,000 shares of Cornstalk stock voted to Clarence A. Brown and William E. Evvitts, allegedly without consideration, and for $62,500 as the value of stock which should have been delivered to the Euromerican company for the foreign rights to the Dorner process.

The complaint asks that the defendants or the Cornstalk Products Company deliver to the Euromerican company 202,500 shares of stock or $8,668,750 as the value, or if this is not done, that the directors be required to pay this sum. The plaintiffs also ask that the cancellation of the Euromerican company's rights be set aside, and the action to dissolve that company be annulled.

Walter Gordon Merritt, counsel for the defendants said yesterday that an answer has not yet been filed because a motion is now pending to strike out part of the complaint, but that the defendants would assert that they were acting in the best interests of the Euromerican company in the dissolution proceedings. He said that the transaction amounted only to a reorganization, and that the rights of the plaintiffs would be recognized fully in the issuance to them of stock of the Cornstalk Products Company.

Catholic Women Meet Saturday.

Mrs. Thomas A. McGoldrick, chairman of the motion picture bureau of the federation; the Rev. William J. Duane, president of Fordham University, and the Rev. Francis P. LeBuffe will be the other speakers.

COLD WAVE CONTINUES; MERCURY DOWN TO 18

Army of Street Cleaners Chops Ice—Fewer Accidents and No Deaths Reported.

With subfreezing temperatures prevailing here all day yesterday and a continuance of the cold wave in prospect for today, the city's army of street cleaners found themselves employed as ice choppers yesterday, when they put in an arduous day clearing away the ice crust which Monday's snowstorm had formed on the streets.

Despite the fact that the shovelers were not aided by the thawing temperatures, they had cleared away the effects of the snow in downtown Manhattan and were making steady progress uptown. The work of clearing the principal thoroughfares in the other boroughs also went steadily forward. All bridges were reported to the Street Cleaning Department as being clear of snow.

At 8:15 A. M. yesterday, according to the Weather Bureau, the mercury reached its low mark for the day, with a reading of 18 degrees above zero, or 14 below the freezing point. The mercury climbed steadily during the forenoon and the early part of the afternoon, reaching a maximum of 28 degrees, or 4 below freezing, at 2:30 P. M. The average temperature for the day was 23, as compared with a normal average of 38 for this time of the year.

Last evening the mercury started downward again, reaching 21 degrees at 8 P. M. Officials of the Weather Bureau expected that it would go down to 17 some time during the night. They predicted "fair and continued cold" weather for today, with fresh west winds.

There were fewer accidents caused by the slippery streets yesterday and no deaths.

YEAR'S GIFTS $51,000,000

The annual Who's Who issue of the American Hebrew, which will appear tomorrow, will include four Christians among those listed as having performed outstanding work for the Jewish people in 1929 and will account for public benefactions by Jews amounting to about $51,000,000 this year, it was announced yesterday.

Two University presidents, Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler of Columbia and Dr. A. Lawrence Lowell of Harvard and a university president emeritus, Dr. W. H. P. Faunce of Brown, none of whom is Jewish, are honored for their sponsorship of the Protestant-Catholic-Jewish seminars at their schools. John D. Rockefeller Jr. is cited for the same type of activity in financing a School of Religion at the University of Iowa, where Professorships of Protestantism, Catholicism and Judaism have been established.

The gifts, of which none under $10,000 was included in the total, are separated under five general headings as follows:

Educational benefactions	$15,780,000
Civic benefactions	13,760,000
International benefactions	1,760,000
Palestine emergency fund donations and benefactions	7,025,000
Bequests	11,543,000

One gift noted that does not fit under any of these headings is Daniel Guggenheim's gift of $500,000 to aviation. The largest philanthropic item listed consists of the $9,000,000 set aside by William Fox to carry out his motion picture educational project, announced some months ago.

The roll of those named as having distinguished themselves in twenty fields of endeavor reads thus:

DR. CRAIG CHALLENGES NEW SEMINARY BOARD

Calls Altering Charter of School at Princeton Illegal and Predicts Litigation.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Dec. 4.—Setting up a board of control for the Princeton Theological Seminary in pursuance of the amendments to the Seminary's charter adopted on Nov. 12, by the Seminary's board of trustees would be illegal and likely to result in litigation, according to the Rev. Dr. Samuel G. Craig, editor of The Presbyterian and former member of the board of directors of the Seminary.

Dr. Craig was a leader of the ultra-conservative group in the Seminary which, after its defeat in the General Assembly, organized the Westminster Theological Seminary in Philadelphia under the direction of Dr. J. Gresham Machen last July.

Before the Westminster Seminary was founded Dr. Craig and others prominent in the protesting group had attributed the discord in Princeton Seminary to its President, Dr. J. Ross Stevenson, and intimated their intention to take the quarrel into the New Jersey courts.

Under the new plan of control adopted by the trustees, in accordance with the expression of the General Assembly, both the financial and educational interests of Princeton Seminary are placed in the hands of a board of thirty-three trustees. The amendment to the charter incorporating this change was to be under the authority of the New Jersey statute of 1918, amended in 1920, authorizing charitable and educational institutions to change their charters. Dr. Craig contends that the trustees of Princeton Seminary are not an educational corporation within the meaning of this act, and that it is not certain that the Legislature would pass the necessary enabling act.

"Unless the church at large is prepared to admit that the trustees of Princeton Seminary own the institution, 'bag and baggage,' quo warranto proceedings should be instituted in order to determine whether or not this is true," said Dr. Craig.

SEES FLYING RISKS CUT THREE-FOURTHS

C. M. Keys, at Aviation Dinner, Says Air Transportation Soon Will Be as Safe as Any.

NO SHORT LINE PROFIT YET

Public Not Educated to Pay High Rates for Speed, He Says—Points to Subsidies in Europe.

C. M. Keys, president of the Curtiss-Wright Corporation, speaking last night at an aviation dinner at the Town Hall Club, declared that in his opinion three-fourths of the dangers of flight in the early stages had been eliminated.

"Within a few years," he continued, "this form of transportation will be, for many purposes, though not for all, as safe as any other. The fact that the great insurance companies of the world will now write policies at reasonable rates is not based on ignorance, but upon knowledge of what has been done in this direction. The future will tell its own story."

The speaker, who also is president of Transcontinental-Maddux Air Transport, the air-rail line between New York, Los Angeles and San Francisco, said that passenger business in America did not pay at present. The reason was that the traveling public had not yet been educated to pay high rates for great speed, he said.

"It must be remembered that the great growth of passenger business in Europe was entirely based on subsidies," he said. "Out of every dollar of revenue on the European air lines 70 cents is subsidy. Here there are no subsidies."

Colonel Paul Henderson, vice president of T. A. T., told how a resourceful pilot rigged an emergency antenna when he was forced to land in the desert between Los Angeles and Albuquerque during a storm. The pilot telephoned from his plane that he would land and then, rigging his emergency wireless, reported in after the plane and passengers were safely on th ground.

On landing he discovered that the insulating tripods for supporting the wire on the ground were not aboard.

"Just then," Colonel Henderson related, "an Indian wearing rubber boots strolled up. The pilot borrowed the boots tied, the wire through the loops at the tops, weighted them down stretched his aerial and raised Albuquerque on his improvised rig. He stayed there three hours and telephoned once an hour for weather reports while the Indian waited patiently to retrieve the boots."

On receiving reports of clearing weather the plane and its passengers again took off and landed safely in Albuquerque less than two hours later.

Colonel Alexander McNab, United States Army, formerly military attaché in Mexico City related anecdotes of flying and hunting trips with Colonel Lindbergh.

Other speakers included E. R. Armstrong, inventor of the Armstrong seadrome or ocean landing field, one of which is to be built for anchorage next year midway between New York and Bermuda; Paul Henderson, vice president of Transcontinental Air Transport and Miss Ruth Nichols. Francis H. Sisson, vice president of the Guaranty Trust Company, introduced the speakers.

Children to Get Newbold Estate.

POUGHKEEPSIE, Dec. 4 (AP).—The will of Thomas Newbold, former State Senator, which will be filed here tomorrow, will dispose of an estate estimated at over $3,000,000. It will be equally divided among his children, Thomas J. Newbold of Boston, Mrs. Mary Morgan and Mrs. Julia Cross of New York. Eleven grandchildren will receive parts of the estate upon the deaths of their parents. Mr. Newbold died Nov. 21 in New York.

ADVISES ON USE OF STAMPS

Postmaster Says Christmas Seals Must Go on Backs of Foreign Mail.

Postmaster John J. Kiely called the public's attention yesterday to the fact that Christmas seals or other adhesive stamps or labels, except United States stamps, should be affixed to the back of letters addressed to foreign countries and not on the side bearing the address. Unless this is done such letters will be returned to the sender, or, if he is not known, to the dead letter office.

The Postmaster also advised patrons who intend to send money orders as gifts to persons in foreign countries to obtain them at once to prevent delay at seat or in Europe. International money orders may be obtained at the general postoffice, Eighth Avenue and Thirty-first Street, and at all of the regular carrier stations in New York between 8 A. M. and 8 P. M., and at the City Hall station until midnight.

Woman Fails to Identify McManus; Friend Testifies Rothstein Had a Pistol

Avenue had been traced to any person, in possession or in ownership, of course it would be a vital thing to show that the bullet came from that revolver. Of if this gun had been seen coming from the window of this room it would be an important fact as proof that the shooting took place within the hotel and not outside.

Discusses Ownership of Pistol.

"But, as I recall the status of the proof, the gun suddenly appeared from nowhere and was found in Seventh Avenue. Therefore I am at a loss to see exactly what further light is thrown on the case by proof that the bullet came from that gun. It simply means that the bullet was discharged from that gun, and by whom and from where nobody knows. The ownership of the gun is unknown on the present status of the proof."

"I agree," said Mr. Brothers, adding that the State had put in all it had on the ownership.

This was a reference to a stipulation entered on the record last week, showing that the weapon had been bought from a wholesale house, the Janney-Semple-Hill Company in St. Paul, Minn., by Joseph Novotny, a St. Paul sporting goods dealer. Novotny said that he had disposed of the weapon to a person whom he did not recall. The weapon was traded to the unknown man for $7.50 and a shotgun.

Mr. Murray sat quietly at his table during the statement of the judge. Later he said that when the proof was formally ended he would ask the dismissal. Mr. Brothers and Chief Assistant District Attorney Pecora went directly from the court room to a conference with Mr. Banton.

"We may make an offer of the proof of the revolver expert," said Mr. Banton, "tomorrow, or we may call him to the stand. That will rest with the judge. If the proof is not required we will rest at once, or if it is, we will rest when it is in.

To Fight Motion to Dismiss.

"We shall oppose any motion to dismiss the indictment against McManus. The argument against the dismissal will be made by Mr. Pecora."

He was asked if the failure to link McManus and the weapon could be construed as a collapse of the case.

"I am right in the midst of this trial," he said, "so don't ask me any questions about the case. When it is all over I will gladly answer any and all questions, but right now it would not be ethical for me to comment."

The blows to the State's case delivered by Mrs. Farry and by Meehan came in quick succession. Mrs. Farry took the stand with a flounce, as if eager to take reprisal for the months she spent in jail in default of $10,000 bail as a material witness. She did not wear the gold crown she had said she would don for the occasion, but her bearing was regal.

The quondam chambermaid was an eye-filling vision of emerald green. She wore a georgette gown of Erin hue and a large green bow in her tousled black hair, a coy curl of which graced her left shoulder. Bridget spoke with a brogue and her anger made it strident. Her black eyes snapped with indignation—until the soft-voiced Mr. Murray took her in hand.

Then, no longer facing her archenemies, Mr. Brothers and Mr. McDonald ("and with a name like that," as she once said), Mrs. Farry's belligerency receded. She swore with emphatic assurance that McManus had not been the man named "Mac" and looked admiringly at the defendant—a fine broth of a boy—as he turned slowly around for her negative identification.

Glares at Prosecutor.

The witness, dark, plump and youthful of face, had a grim look about her as she sat down on the extreme edge of the witness chair and turned a glare loose at Mr. Brothers. The prosecutor favored Mrs. Farry with a sugary smile, but she would have none of his peace overtures.

"Mrs. Farry," he cooed, "were you employed in the Park Central Hotel?"

"Yes," said Mrs. Farry in a tone not remotely resembling cooing.

"For how long, Mrs. Farry?"

"Four months."

"In November, 1928?"

"Yes, I was."

"What was the nature of your work?"

"Chambermaid."

"What were your duties?"

"Chambermaid work," said Mrs. Farry, looking as if anybody would know that.

"Do you recall Sunday night, Nov. 4, 1928?"

"Yes."

"What time did you go to work?"

"Nine o'clock in the morning."

"And you worked until when?"

"Midnight."

"On what floor did you work, Mrs. Farry?"

"On the third floor on the day shift, which was until 4 o'clock in the day and then that and other rooms until midnight."

Mr. Brothers asked if she remembered Room 349. She did, said the witness, and she had occasion to go into it several times that day and evening. When was the first time? asked the Assistant District Attorney.

"Well, the first time," said the witness, "was around 9 o'clock in the morning. I noticed that a table was by the door and I moved it into the hall. I noticed that the door was ajar maybe three or four inches. I could hear some one asleep inside. That was at 9 o'clock in the morning."

"Did you see any one?"

"No."

"When did you go back?"

"I don't remember the time, but I went back and I put the key in the door. A man came to the door and I said 'Do you want your bed made?' and he said that he didn't care. I went in and made up the one bed that had been slept in. There was a coat on the other bed and I put it on a chair, over the back.

Man Said He Was "Mac."

"The man spoke to me about Ireland and he said his name was 'Mac.' I turned my back on him and went on with my work."

"Did you return to the room later?"

"I went back when I got a 'check-out' from downstairs."

"What time was that?"

"It was 8 o'clock at night."

"How many times in all during that day did you go in Room 349?"

"Three or four times."

"Now this man 'Mac,' was he in there on all the occasions when you entered that room—was it the same man?"

"There were two men in there on one time."

"Was it the same man?"

"I don't know; I didn't take any notice of him."

"Did you see the same man during that day?"

This insistence by Mr. Brothers on "the same man" riled Mrs. Farry considerably. A flush crept across her pale, broad face and she registered other "danger signals" which Mr. Brothers apparently was quick to detect. He recalled that Mrs. Farry, in describing the man she had seen in the morning on her second call at the room, had said that he had been shaving.

"Was he dressed?" said Mr. Brothers.

"Well, he had on a shirt and a pair of pants," said Mrs. Farry, bridling.

Saw Two Men in Room 349.

"Now, at 8 P. M. who was there?"

"Two men."

"What were they like?"

"One was a short man and the other was a tall man."

"Was the man shaving in the morning a short man?"

"He was."

"Was the tall man in the morning who talked to you about Ireland the same tall man you saw at night?"

"Yes."

"He is the man who said his name was 'Mac'?"

"Yes."

"What was the first time you spoke to the occupant of Room 349 about a check-out?"

"It was at 8 o'clock. He said, 'Not yet—in a short time.'"

"What were the two men doing?"

"They were talking."

"Were they sitting down or standing?"

"I think they were sitting down."

"Did you hear either of them telephoning?"

"Well, the telephone rang and I thought it was the linen room. I had the check-out slip and I thought they wanted me. I answered the telephone and I said to the big man, 'I think this is for you, sir.'"

Mrs. Farry later disclosed that the call had been from a woman.

"Did either of the men telephone for anything to drink?"

"Not while I was there."

"When was the next time you visited the room?"

"It was twenty minutes past 10 o'clock that night. The big man asked what time it was, and I telephoned down and said a guest wants to know what time it is."

"How many men were in the room then?"

"Two men."

Unable to Identify McManus.

"You can see this defendant, George McManus, can't you? Was he one of the men?"

"Will you have him stand up?"

Mrs. Farry edged halfway off her chair to get a good, thorough look at McManus. The defendant, smiling broadly, stood up. Bridget gazed at him for a minute or so.

"That's not the man," she said with conviction.

"Are you sure of that?"

"I am."

"Are you willing to swear on your oath that this defendant is not the man?"

"I am—he's not the man."

"Do you know that this defendant admitted yesterday that he was the occupant of"——

Mr. Murray registered an objection and was sustained by Judge Nott.

"I didn't identify him," said Mrs. Farry, quickly.

"Now Mrs. Farry, didn't you identify this defendant in the City Prison—in the Tombs, over there?"

"I didn't identify anybody."

"Did you place your hand on this man in the line-up over there?"

"They carried me to the line-up and I put my hand on a man, but that's all."

"They carried you—how much do you weigh, Mrs. Farry?"

Mrs. Farry let that one go by with composure and with contempt, muttering merely, "never mind what I weigh."

"Didn't you identify this man?" persisted Mr. Brothers.

The reiteration was too much for the witness. She gave her head a shake which added to the confusion of her hair.

Witness Accuses Detectives.

"They wanted me to frame somebody and I wouldn't do it," she said.

"Who wanted you to frame somebody?"

"The detectives."

Mr. Brothers reverted to the 10:20 visit of the witness to Room 349. The witness said that five minutes after she reached the room, the "big man" walked out.

"He gave me 75 cents," she testified, "and asked me to go down and have dinner with him because I had been working all day."

"Where were you?"

"I was in the hallway. I had walked down the hallway and there were two young fellows standing at the elevators and one of them said to me, 'Have some schnapps?' and I said to him, 'What do you mean—who are you?' And I went on down the hall and the big man was walking along it, too."

"He was going out?"

"He was."

"How about the other man in the room?"

"Oh, I don't know about him."

The Assistant District Attorney sought to shake Mrs. Farry on this episode, but she clung to her testimony. Mr. Brothers began to show signs of impatience.

"Madame," he said, dropping his urbanity, "did you come here to tell the truth?"

"I did."

"Let me ask you this—you are very angry at the police in this case because you were locked up as a material witness, aren't you?"

Charges Attempt to Bribe Her.

Mrs. Farry saw her chance. She grasped her handbag tightly and leaned forward. Her snapping eyes bored into Mr. Brothers.

"I am," she said with steadily rising inflection. "I am angry at you, too, and all the rest of them. I would not do what you wanted me to do."

"You are angry with me?" said Mr. Brothers incredulously.

"Yes, I am, and after you tried to bribe me"——

"I tried to bribe you?" said the amazed prosecutor.

"Yes, and you can have your $10 back."

Mrs. Farry pulled up her handbag and took a look at its contents.

"Tell the jury all about it," counseled Mr. Brothers.

"I will," said the witness, drawing her lips to a faint line.

The witness finally found what she sought. It was a $10 note neatly folded. She tossed it to the stenographer's desk in front of her with withering scorn.

"There's your dirty money," she said.

Mr. Brothers picked it up. He unfolded it and studied it.

"This is Mr. McDonald's $10, isn't it?" he asked.

"Yes, it is."

"Do you mind," Mr. Brothers inquired politely, "if I give it back to Mr. McDonald?"

"No, go ahead. That's why I gave it to you."

As Mr. McDonald bowed and pocketed the money court attendants went busily about trying to still the laughter.

It developed later that the money had been given to Mrs. Farry to defray her taxicab fare—she no longer patronizes any other form of transportation—after she had complained of the cost of riding to court from her home in La Fontaine Avenue, the Bronx.

"You couldn't buy my oath for $10—no, not for a million dollars," said Mrs. Farry, as, assuming a more comfortable posture, displayed pink stockings and gold slippers.

The examiner then tried to show, by reading from her testimony before the grand jury, that the witness had told a different story of the events at the Park Central on the night of the shooting of Rothstein. He did not get very far, the witness, with her capable hands folded in her lap, stoutly insisting that she was telling the truth.

Eventually Mr. Murray rose to cross-examine her. He was even more courtly than had been Mr. Brothers at the outset of the direct examination.

"Mrs. Farry," he said in his long-drawn New England drawl, "do you know Mrs. Putnam?"

This was a reference to Mrs. M. A. Putnam of Asheville, an earlier State's witness, who had testified to hearing a "crash" and to seeing a man, with hands clasped over his abdomen, walking in a third floor corridor of the hotel on the night Rothstein was wounded.

"She was in Room 320," said Mr. Murray.

"Oh, her? Oh, yes, I know her."

"Were you in the corridors of the third floor of the Park Central Hotel on the night of Nov. 4, 1928, between 10 and 11 o'clock?"

"Yes, sir. I was."

"Were you near the elevators on the Fifty-fifth Street side at 10:55 or 10:45 P. M. that night?"

"I was on that floor."

"Did you see Mrs. Putnam near the elevators on the Fifty-fifth Street side at that time?"

"No, sir. I did not see anybody."

"That's all," sang out Mr. Murray and the witness stepped down.

Meehan Admits He Lied to State.

Meehan, a dapper young man who did not lose his self-possession even when admitting that he had lied to the State's representatives on other occasions, took the stand. He was examined by Mr. Pecora. Slight of build, pale of face, Meehan had a slightly truculent air as he composed himself in the witness chair.

He had been the "host" at the stud poker and high card game which the State contends furnished McManus with a motive to kill Rothstein. Meehan had testified about the game on his first appearance on the stand, which had been last week.

"Meehan," said Mr. Pecora, "do you recall Nov. 4, 1928?"

"Yeah," said Meehan, registering boredom, "I recall it."

"Were you in the company of Arnold Rothstein?"

"Yes, at about 9 P. M."

"Where?"

"At Lindy's Restaurant, Broadway and Fiftieth Street."

"Did you go some place with him?"

"Yes."

"Where?"

"We went to the Fairfield Hotel in Seventy-second Street."

"Rothstein owned that hotel, didn't he?"

"I don't know."

"How long did you remain in his company?"

"I remained at the Fairfield about three-quarters of an hour. I sat in the lobby waiting for him to return from rooms upstairs."

Mr. Pecora asked where the witness and Rothstein had gone then. Meehan said they drove down to Seventh Avenue and Fiftieth Street in Rothstein's automobile, a limousine, and had walked over to Lindy's.

"What did you do there?"

"He walked in and I followed him."

"What happened then?"

"He walked out and I went out and we stood outside for about five minutes."

"Did you see him get anything while he was in Lindy's?"

"No."

"There was nothing in his hand when he came out?"

"No."

"You are sure of that?"

"Positive."

The "something" was a message, purporting to have been sent by McManus, summoning Rothstein to Room 349.

"What time was it when you walked out?" said Mr. Pecora.

"It was 10:25 P. M."

Denies Rothstein Had Message.

After being assured by the witness that his memory was good, Mr. Pecora read from the transcript of an interview he had had with Meehan on Nov. 8, 1928.

"Listen to this, Meehan," he said. "'Q.—Did you talk to Rothstein when you went to Lindy's? A.—No, I seen Arnold getting the message from the cashier. He had a slip of white paper in his hand. I bought three cigars.'"

The witness said that he did not recall having said that, but did remember buying cigars.

"Now after you came out of Lindy's," said Mr. Pecora resuming the trial examination, "what did you do?"

"We stood outside and the cop stationed there told us to move on. Arnold walked one way and I walked the other."

"Did he say where he was going?"

"He said 'I'll see you in half an hour.' He didn't say where he was going."

"What time was it when you parted from Rothstein?"

"The second time?"

"Yes."

"It was 10:35 P. M. Rothstein walked north to the newstand, about eight feet, and I lost sight of him."

Mr. Murray began his cross-examination by establishing that Meehan had known Rothstein seven or eight years.

"Did he give you a gun?"

"Yep."

"What time did he give you the gun?"

"At 10:20 P. M."

"What did you do with it?"

"I kept it on my person."

The defense lawyer had picked up the .38 calibre revolver which the State produced as the weapon with which Rothstein was shot. He toyed with it as he questioned the witness.

"That was a long barreled gun, wasn't it," said the lawyer.

"Yes."

"Where did he give it to you?"

"In the washroom."

Says Rothstein Had Pistol.

"Now when he gave you the .38 calibre long barrelled gun, didn't he have a short barrel gun, like this, in his overcoat pocket?"

"Yes, he did."

"That's all."

Mr. Pecora was plainly taken aback by the testimony. He drew from Meehan the fact that on each occasion the witness had been examined before trial he had added to his story of the eventful night.

"On four or five occasions you denied that you had had a gun didn't you?"

"Yes," said Meehan.

"Isn't this the first time that you ever mentioned a short-barreled gun?"

"Yes, I believe it is."

Judge Nott interposed to observe that the witness had not told why he failed to tell the District Attorney about the second weapon. The witness turned toward the bench.

"I didn't think he would be interested," he said in a low tone.

Mr. Pecora demanded to know why the witness had kept silent. Meehan said he was afraid that he might face a gun-carrying charge. He admitted, however, that his attorney, Isaiah Lebove, had obtained a warranty from the District Attorney that no charge would ensue.

"But that was for my lawyer," said Meehan, "not for me."

"You say," remarked Mr. Pecora, "that you received the gun in the washroom—when was that?"

"As soon as we came in. I saw the other gun in his pocket, the pocket of his suit coat. He didn't know which one to give me to mind. He said, 'Which one will I give you?' I said, 'Use your own judgment.' He gave me the long-barreled revolver."

Denies He Talked With Murray.

Meehan yawned at this point. He was asked if he had ever talked to Mr. Murray. He denied that he had.

"I suppose it would surprise you," said Mr. Pecora, "to know that Mr. Murray told me that you had."

"If Mr. Murray told you that, he lied," responded Meehan. "I talked to Mr. Murray once on the telephone and told him I knew nothing."

The witness said that he had given the pearl-handled Rothstein weapon to Sidney Stajer, close friend of the dead gambler. The transfer took place at midnight in front of the Polyclinic Hospital, whither the wounded man had been taken. Mr. Murray, on re-cross-examination, suggested that the second weapon had been found in a shop on the lower east side and turned over to the police. Mr. Pecora, on redirect, told the witness, for the benefit of the record, that the weapon had been turned over to a New York detective in Detroit.

Walter H. Walters, a man with one leg, was the first witness of the day's session. He said that he had been superintendent of the apartment house at 51 Riverside Drive, where McManus lives, during November, 1928. Walters said that he had seen McManus's chauffeur, William Esenheim, go to the apartment on the night of Nov. 4 and return with "a new overcoat owned by McManus." An overcoat of the defendant was found in Room 349 when the police searched it. The witness gave "flight" testimony, saying that he had not seen McManus for "weeks" after the shooting and that his apartment had been untenanted.

"I went into the apartment when the service bell got no response," said Walters, "and it looked as if it had been ransacked and left in haste."

Mr. Murray asked the witness if he had not "stolen everything in the apartment that had not been nailed down." The witness denied it, and also denied that he had been guilty of drinking five cases of ale, part of the McManus stock.

Tells of Delivering Whisky.

Jack Great, a pharmacist near the Park Central, testified to delivering two pints of rye whisky to McManus in the hotel. This was conceded by Mr. Murray.

Sidney Oringer of Chester Hill, Mount Vernon, N. Y., took the stand. He was the bridegroom who had occupied Room 347, next to the mystery room, on the night of Nov. 4. Oringer said that he had been married that afternoon and did not reach the room until 2 A. M. on Nov. 5. This was four hours after Rothstein had been shot. Mr. Oringer said he had heard nothing and he denied that he had told Detective Patrick Flood that he had been in the room between 10:30 P. M. and midnight of Nov. 4.

Arthur Carey, formerly deputy inspector, told of examining the clothing worn by Rothstein. He said that he had never seen McManus until he faced him in court.

The other witnesses were William Walsh, an undertaker's employe, who told of receiving some of the garments worn by Rothstein, and John Rochmord, who was the doorman at the Park Central on Nov. 4.

The trial will be resumed today at 10:30 A. M.

BRIDGET FARRY IN FILM.

Bridget Farry, witness in the Rothstein trial, not only appeared in court yesterday to offer testimony but also was seen and heard on the screen of the Embassy Newsreel Theatre, where she gave a condensed version of the shooting. Her speech follows:

Q.—What were you doing the night Rothstein was shot? A.—I was doing chamber work with the main housekeeper.

Q.—Where? A.—At the Park Central Hotel, New York City.

Q.—What floor were you on that evening? A.—On the third floor.

Q.—Did you hear a noise like a shot? A.—Yes, I heard a noise like a shot.

Q.—What floor were you on when you heard the noise that sounded like a shot? A.—I was on the third floor.

Q.—Where were you standing? A.—Between the room 349 and the service pantry.

Q.—What did you do immediately after that? A.—I just went right around the corner to room 302.

Q.—I see. Now these two men, what did they say to you? A.—As I was going around they asked me if I wanted some schnapps. And I turned around and said, "What do you mean schnapps?" And he said, "Do you want something to drink?" And I said, "No, I don't drink, but I can eat."

Q.—Do you know McManus? A.—No, I don't know McManus.

Q.—Who was that man in room 349? A.—Well, they called him McManus, and somebody else called him Mr. Richards, so I don't know who he is.

Q.—Well, tell us something about him. A.—Well, when I went to the door in the morning, and the door was open, he was in bed—a person was in bed, I don't know whether it was a man or a woman, and I removed—I heard the person sleeping, so I removed the service tray from the parlor floor, and I locked the door after me and went about my business.

Social Workers in Philippines Get Evidence in Esther Klein Case.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MANILA, Dec. 4.—Women social service investigators today announced the possession of evidence disproving the authorities' theory of suicide in the case of Esther Louise Klein, navy nurse found dead in a roadhouse here on Aug. 5.

Representatives of women's clubs here are planning a mass meeting on Thursday to unite social workers for an organized drive against white slavery. Reports alleging there is a segregated centre at Angeles near the Fort Stotsenburg army post are to be presented to Dwight F. Davis, the Governor General.

Representatives of the Women's Christian Temperance Union threaten to have pressure brought at Washington on the War Department to instruct Governor Davis to take action.

LEADERSHIP

A total of 214 advertisers, leaders in American industry, are represented in this record issue, on sale today.

The month of December, all issues having closed, has an increase of 23 per cent in advertising volume over December, 1928. Circulation in U. S. A. will reach a new high point for December.

The February issue of the LADIES' HOME JOURNAL has just closed with the largest volume of advertising ever carried in a February issue. This follows an increase of 22 per cent in the January, 1930, issue over January, 1929.

The circulation of the LADIES' HOME JOURNAL is also at the highest level in its history.

The February issue of THE COUNTRY GENTLEMAN closes December 15th, and has already booked considerably more advertising than was carried in February, 1929. Its circulation also shows a consistent increase from year to year.

MELLON, ON RADIO, GIVES ACCOUNTING

WAR OBLIGATIONS FUNDED

Constant Conservative Policy of the Treasury Department Is Stressed in Speech.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—In the first accounting direct to the people by radio ever given by a Secretary of the Treasury, Secretary Mellon recounted tonight the major activities of the Treasury during the past year, laying stress upon the manner in which the Federal Reserve System had prevented a general panic, following the stock market crash.

In discussing the history of the annual Treasury report, Mr. Mellon said the first regular accounting was given in 1801 by Albert Gallatin.

"In it," said Mr. Mellon, "he estimates that for the ensuing year the revenues will amount to $10,500,000, of which $3,500,000 will be required for ordinary expenditures of the government, and that the remainder can be applied in payment of interest and principal of the public debt."

Continuing he said that for the last fiscal year which ended June 30, 1929, total ordinary receipts were $4,033,000,000, and expenditures chargeable against ordinary receipts were $3,448,000,000, giving a surplus for the year of $135,000,000.

"This surplus has been applied to retirement of the public debt," he went on. "During the year the gross debt was reduced from $17,604,000,000 to $16,931,000,000, or a total reduction of $673,000,000.

"I might add that the war debt, which reached a peak of $26,594,000,000 on Aug. 31, 1915, has been reduced in the ten years ended Aug. 31, 1929, to $16,805,000,000, or an average of nearly a billion dollars a year for the ten-year period."

After explaining the new type of government security to be known as treasury bills, Mr. Mellon referred to the branch banking situation, saying:

"In banking, as in other enterprises of this country, there is increasing evidence of a movement toward larger operating units. The number of branches of banks in operation has increased and more recently there has been a growth also in the number of groups in which several independent banks are operated more or less as a single system.

"Both of these developments reflect changes in the underlying economic situation. The time has come when it would seem wise to undertake a thorough study of the situation, with a view to determining the soundness of the present-day tendencies, and more particularly the limits of the economic areas within which branch banking may be advantageously permitted.

"Hasty legislation either to liberalize or to constrict limitations now in effect should be avoided, for one banking structure is the product of many years of dearly bought experience and is part of an intricate economic fabric whose parts are closely adjusted to one another. A too rapid reorganization would be likely to create serious and costly disturbances that would affect the entire country."

Stating that under the Federal building program 334 projects had been authorized at a cost of $189,000,000, Secretary Mellon referred to the building program for the capital, saying:

"These buildings will form part of the monumental group of buildings on Pennsylvania Avenue and the Mall, extending from the Capitol to the Treasury, and with other plans now being made will add greatly to the beauty and dignity of the nation's capital.

"In so far as circumstances permit, the work on these buildings, both in Washington and throughout the country, will be pushed as rapidly as possible in order to carry out the President's sound and constructive policy for increased building activity, and so stimulating all other lines of endeavor during the months immediately ahead."

In conclusion he said:

"Such, in brief outline, are some of the major activities of the Treasury during the past year. They indicate that the government's business is in sound condition, and that the government itself is in a position to do its part in helping the country to tackle and solve the problems which are ahead—problems which, after all, offer no insuperable difficulties to a people so well-equipped with all the essentials of materials, organization, energy and determination to carry the nation forward to a development whose vast proportions we are beginning only dimly to perceive."

tions, each of which will have a delegate at the conference. In addition, a considerable number of outstanding business men have been invited to attend as individuals or heads of important corporations and companies. Some of the most conspicuous captains of industry and finance are included.

Among the organizations which will be represented are the American Bankers' Association, the American Petroleum Institute, the American Railway Association, the American Fruit and Vegetable Shippers' Association, the American Newspaper Publishers' Association, the Association of Life Insurance Presidents, the Wholesale Dry Goods Institute and the National Retail Furniture Association.

The radio broadcast of the proceedings, which will be handled by the National Broadcasting Company, will embrace forty-six associated stations of that company's chain The broadcast will begin at 10:15 o'clock, Eastern Standard Time, with the opening address of Mr. Butterworth, introducing President Hoover. Stations in California, Oregon and Washington State will broadcast the proceedings at the early hour of 7:15 A. M., Pacific Coast Time.

Stations WEAF and WJZ in New York City will participate in the broadcast.

John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, who is here to attend the President's conference, declared today that business is sound at the base, and by early Spring, perhaps March or April, will again go into high gear, after a period of arrested speed due to the recent disturbance in the New York stock market.

He commended President Hoover's business conferences as a constructive step, likely to have a healthy psychological effect on all lines of industrial and commercial activity. Mr. Raskob thought there might be some suffering this Winter in the form of unemployment, but this period of let-down, he asserted, would be short lived.

Mr. Raskob was the guest at luncheon today of Senator Robinson of Arkansas, who ran for the Vice Presidency in 1928.

Others present were Jouett Shouse, executive chairman of the Democratic National Committee, and Senators Walsh of Montana, Tydings of Maryland, Caraway of Arkansas, Hawes of Missouri, Swanson of Virginia and Pittman of Colorado.

Gives Interview in the Senate.

After the luncheon Mr. Raskob visited the Senate press gallery and had a round-table interview with reporters. He talked about the business situation, the tariff, prohibition and the prospects for Democratic success in the elections of 1930.

"President Hoover's action in bringing business together to take stock of the situation and the future was constructive and a move in the right direction," said Mr. Raskob. "Anything that could be done under such conditions to restore confidence and prevent undue fearfulness was bound to result in good."

Asked to state the reasons for the "panic" in the market, Mr. Raskob said:

"Prices were inflated; they have been pretty well deflated by this time. It looks as if credit was about to be eased, and this will provide funds to enable people in various sections of the country to go ahead with building operations, which have been slack for several months.

"We may see some slowing down this Winter, but by early Spring business ought to be going ahead again at its regular rate. The whole economic situation would seem to indicate that. The panic has passed. We may now look forward hopefully to the future."

Mr. Raskob was asked to comment on the statement in President Hoover's message that those who condone the traffic in liquor prohibited by law are "undermining society."

"I think it tremendously important," Mr. Raskob replied. "for all of us to think along temperance lines. Mrs. Raskob and I have eleven children and not one of them uses liquor in any form. People so situated have a vital interest in the social outlook.

"I am sure that unless we can restore temperate living and temperate thinking in this country we are riding for trouble. I do not think they can be restored by legislation. It must be done by education."

Chairman Raskob expressed disappointment that President Hoover had not been more explicit in his discussion of the tariff, notably the flexible provisions of the law. He asserted that the Democrats believed in such measure of protection as "would maintain existing standards of living in this country," but were opposed to protection that might lead to encouragement of monopolies.

He said the power to tax is inherent in Congress and should not be transferred to the President. In his opinion, the Democrats should stand pat on the Simmons amendment incorporated in the Senate tariff bill providing that Tariff Commission reports shall go direct to Congress instead of to the President.

"It will be recalled," he said, "that Senator McCumber, in reporting the tariff bill in 1922, stated that the power to change tariff rates as proposed was merely to meet post-war conditions and should not be retained permanently in the law."

"What do you think of Democratic prospects in next year's election?" Mr. Raskob was asked.

"I think they must be very good from what we hear from the country," he replied. "I think that if the people of the country can gain a proper understanding of the Democratic attitude on the tariff the results will be satisfactory from our standpoint."

Mr. Raskob was asked if it is his intention to remain at the head of the Democratic National Committee. He grinned as he answered:

"I did not think there was any question as to that."

Mr. Raskob said that the committee, with Jouett Shouse actively in charge of the work, was building up a strong national organization, a work that had never before been seriously attempted between elections by the Democrats.

Mr. Raskob was asked if he had given any serious thought to the selection of a Democratic candidate for President in 1932.

"It is not the function of the committee either to formulate party policy or choose candidates," he answered. "That is the duty of the national convention."

He was asked if he thought former Governor Smith would aspire to be the party standard-bearer in 1932.

"I have not talked politics with Governor Smith since the close of the 1928 campaign," he said.

The high command of the Democratic National Committee, he added, had not thought of making war on Senator Simmons of North Carolina, and other leaders of prominence who bolted the Smith-Robinson ticket a year ago.

Text of President's Message Transmitting Annual Budget

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—President Hoover's message transmitting to Congress the budget, and tables therewith, was as follows:

*$150,000,000 included in appropriations for 1930 for Federal Farm Board revolving loan fund. No corresponding figure included for 1931.

The foregoing table shows that the total of the estimates of appropriations payable from the Treasury in this budget is $145,696,000 less than the appropriations for 1930. The estimates in the budget, however, contain no amount for the revolving loan fund for the Federal Farm Board, for which $150,000,000 is included in the appropriations for 1930. Therefore, for purposes of comparison, $150,000,000 should be deducted from the amount of the appropriations for 1930. Eliminating this item from the 1930 total, the estimates of appropriations in the budget for 1931 exceed the appropriations for 1930 by $4,304,000.

Concerning the Federal Farm Board, I am simply delaying the presentation to the Congress of an estimate for an additional amount for the revolving loan fund until it is known more definitely what further amount will be needed. This will not in any way hamper the board, as it has sufficient funds at present, and an estimate will be presented to the Congress in ample time in advance of any requirements for more money.

Through non-recurring items and justified reductions in other items, funds have been found to make increases in certain of our activities without enlarging to any appreciable extent the total of the estimates for 1931 over the appropriations for 1930. I am indicating below, in round figures, the larger items of increase and decrease:

With regard to the increases for 1931, there are certain activities which I desire to bring especially to the attention of the Congress.

Rivers and Harbors, Flood Relief and Boulder Dam.—The estimates herewith contain an increase of $5,000,000 for flood control and $5,000,000 for rivers and harbors over the appropriations for these purposes for the current fiscal year. Moreover, the completion this year of the work on the Ohio River will release about $5,000,000 for other river and harbor work so that, in effect, the increase in the estimates for rivers and harbors is $10,000,000.

With regard to the Boulder Dam project authorized by the Act of Congress approved Dec. 21, 1928, the details have not been completed in time to permit of this project being included in the estimates contained in this budget. It is contemplated to present to the Congress at an early date an estimate to cover the initiation of this work.

Departments of State and Justice.—I am asking for considerable increases in the appropriations for these two departments for the fiscal year 1931 as compared with appropriations for the fiscal year 1930. I feel that the importance of the functions devolving upon these two departments in the conduct of our foreign affairs and in law enforcement and the administration of our penal system are of vital concern to the nation and that both departments require more generous appropriations. The increase requested for the Department of State is more than $2,443,000, or about 16½ per cent, and that for the Department of Justice is more than $4,079,000, or about 14½ per cent. I am satisfied that these increases will reflect benefits to the nation greater than can be measured in terms of the increased cost.

Indians.—As wards of the nation, the government has an obligation to the Indians which concerns not alone their present but their future welfare. To raise the standard of their living, to adequately provide for their health and education, and to advance their opportunity for profitable employment are the concern of the government. In order that we may meet more fully our obligations to the Indians, I am asking for an increase of something more than $3,100,000 over the appropriations for the current year. This increase is requested so that we may more adequately meet the need for educational and health work among the Indians and for their industrial assistance and advancement.

I do not feel, however, that we should wait until the next fiscal year to make a general improvement in our Indian affairs. Rather do I feel that we should commence this now. This will require additional funds for the current fiscal year for which an estimate will be presented to the Congress.

Forest Protection.—For the protection of our forests I am asking for a substantial increase in appropriations, amounting to more than $2,000,000. We have been spending in past years large amounts on the suppression of fires. In the last five years these expenditures have amounted to more than $8,000,000, and the best estimate is that $3,500,000 will be required this current fiscal year. We cannot hope to eliminate entirely the necessity for spending money in the suppression of fires, but our efforts should be to minimize this necessity by more and more adequate protection measures. This is essential, not merely to effect a saving in the cost of suppressing fires, but to prevent the inculculable loss which results from the destruction of our forests Such loss involves not only the timber itself, but the protection which it affords against soil erosion and floods.

As the custodian of the national forests, national parks and other public lands, the Federal Government is responsible for their protection. The obligations of this stewardship cannot be met within the limits of the present appropriation and it is for this reason that I am asking for an increase to commence a program of more adequate protection of our forests. The protection of our present holdings certainly outweighs in importance the acquisition of further lands which would add to the areas requiring protection. For this reason I am not submitting in this budget an estimate for the full $3,000,000 authorized for 1931 for the acquisition of lands for the protection of watersheds. The amount requested for such acquisition is $2,000,000.

BUILDINGS.

The public-building program authorized by the Act of May 25, 1926, and enlarged by amendments to the original act, is now proceeding at a satisfactory rate of progress. At the outset, unavoidable delays were experienced because of difficulties encountered in acquiring sites, it being necessary in some cases to resort to condemnation proceedings in the courts. Many of these difficulties have been overcome and it is expected that the work will now proceed expeditiously, resulting in the completion of thirty-four new or enlarged buildings in the fiscal year 1930, and forty in the fiscal year 1931.

The program calls for a total expenditure of approximately $300,000,000 in addition to the proceeds of sale of abandoned property. Individual projects have already been authorized by the Congress at a limit of cost in excess of $260,000,000. There were brought forward into the fiscal year 1930 appropriation balances aggregating $41,481,000. This is increased by appropriations made at the last session of the Congress, amounting to $39,475,500, making the total amount available for expenditure $80,956,599. Of this amount the Treasury Department contemplates spending about $59,500,000 in the fiscal year 1930.

The budget for 1931 carries estimates for public buildings, including the purchase of additional land in Washington, amounting to $30,000,000. Supplemental thereto, an estimate of about $5,000,000 will be submitted at a later date when the Treasury Department has concluded its survey of new projects which it is desirable to undertake at this time. The appropriation of these amounts will provide the Treasury with ample funds to continue the work during the fiscal year 1931.

The War Department is also carrying forward a building program, involving an ultimate expenditure of about $116,000,000, for the housing of military personnel, made necessary by the need for the replacement of World War temporary construction and to provide for the increase in the pre-war strength of the regular army. There has already been appropriated for this purpose $37,193,899, and $16,062,880 is carried in the estimates for 1931, with authority to make contracts for $3,000,000 additional. The estimates for 1931 also carry $3,311,000 for technical buildings for the air services of the army and navy, and $3,176,000 for other buildings for various purposes for the army, navy and Panama Canal.

For completing the $15,000,000 program for additional hospital facilities for the Veterans' Bureau $2,000,000 is provided for liquidating contracts previously authorized by the Congress.

New building construction for the Indian Service has been allowed for a total of $2,303,000, including reservation and non-reservation schools, hospitals and administration buildings.

Provision is made for construction projects at several Federal penitentiaries. For Leavenworth $22,000 is provided; for Atlanta, $79,000; for McNeil Island, $139,000, and $450,000 is included for continuing the construction of the industrial reformatory at Chillecothe.

In furtherance of the $10,000,000 program for houses and offices for our foreign representatives, $1,700,000 is included in these estimates. The annual appropriations under this program are limited to $2,000,000, but the lesser amount has been included in the budget because of the fact that the amount of the current estimate, added to unexpended balances from prior appropriations, will be sufficient to carry on the program during the fiscal year 1931.

Altogether this budget carries estimates of more than $59,240,000 for the construction of buildings, including the procurement of sites, with a contract authorization for a further expenditure of $3,000,000. To the sum of these two amounts there should be added the additional $5,000,000 for the public-building program for which, as stated, an estimate will be submitted later in the year.

NATIONAL DEFENSE.

The estimates for direct appropriations for the War and Navy Departments for 1931 provide a total of $719,089,000 for national defense. This is exclusive of all items of a non-military character.

In addition to the normal maintenance and operation requirements of these two departments, provision is made for carrying forward the Air Service programs of the two services, the housing program of the army and the requirements of the navy with regard to the modernization of old battleships and the construction of new ships authorized by the act of Feb. 13, 1929, as well as the light cruisers and submarines authorized by prior law.

With regard to the fifteen new cruisers authorized by the act of last February, provision is made for continuing work on the two cruisers already laid down and on the aircraft carrier and three cruisers to be laid down late in the fiscal year 1930 and for the commencement of the construction of the second and third blocks of five cruisers each in the fiscal year 1931.

AIR SERVICE.

Under the Air Service programs for the army and navy, I am asking for a total of $33,000,000 for the procurement of airplanes, their engines, spare parts and accessories. In addition to this, I am asking for the same puposes for the Coast Guard, Department of Commerce, and the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics a total of $460,000.

With regard to the army, provision is made for the procurement of the 443 airplanes pertaining to the fourth increment of the five-year program authorized by the Congress. This program calls for 1,515 planes to be on hand and on order on June 30, 1931, and it is believed that this goal will be reached or closely approached by the funds already appropriated and the amounts estimated in this budget. The present shortage in the program is about forty planes pertaining to prior increments. No amount has been specifically included in the 1931 estimates to make up this shortage, in view of the possibility of its reduction or complete elimination before the final increment is reached.

Concerning the Navy Air Service, the last, or fifth, increment of the five-year program authorized by the Congress will be reached in 1931. This program contemplates about 1,000 planes and two lighter-than-air ships to be on hand and on order at the close of that fiscal year. To accomplish this, provision is made for the procurement of 269 airplanes, including their equipment and for continuing the work on the two lighter-than-air ships now under contract.

In addition to the amounts which we are spending for the acquisition of aircraft, we are also spending large sums for lighting and equipping airways, the inspection and licensing of commercial planes and pilots and furnishing weather reports necessary to the carrying on of aerial navigation. For these purposes there is included in the estimates of the Department of Commerce $8,925,830 and in those for the Weather Bureau of the Department of Agriculture $1,400,000. It is estimated that by the end of the fiscal year 1931 there will be about 18,400 miles of airways lighted and equipped.

THE FRENCH DEBT.

In the message transmitting the 1930 budget to the Congress, the French debt was discussed. A portion of the indebtedness of France, representing surplus war materials purchased on credit, was due to mature during the fiscal year 1930, unless the agreement of April 29, 1928, providing for the funding of the entire indebtedness of France to the United States, should be ratified by both France and the United States, in which case this indebtedness would be merged in the general indebtedness of that government to the United States.

In the Spring of this year, it seemed clear to the treasury that the government of France would ratify the French debt agreement prior to Aug. 1, 1929, the maturity date of $400,000,000 face amount of these obligations mentioned in last year's budget message. The Congress of the United States was considering the question of recessing for two or three months and the treasury was faced with the situation that the debt agreement would be ratified by France, that certain obligations of that government would mature on Aug. 1, that the Congress would not be in session, and that there was no authority on the part of the executive branch of the government other than to submit the obligations on their maturity date for payment.

The matter was submitted to the Congress with a recommendation that, in the event the funding agreement was ratified by France, in accordance with its terms, prior to Aug. 1, 1929, the Secretary of the Treasury, with the approval of the President, be authorized to enter into an agreement with France providing for the postponement of the date of the maturity of the obligations in the principal amount of $400,000,000 from Aug. 1, 1929, to such time as the Congress should approve or disapprove the funding agreement, but in no event beyond May 1, 1930, provided, however, that France should agree to pay interest on such obligations, the interest so paid to be credited against the annuities first due under the funding agreement. After consideration, House joint resolution 80, embodying these provisions, was passed by both Houses of Congress, but failed to receive the formal approval of the Speaker of the House and the President of the Senate before adjournment, consequently failing to be enacted into law by Aug. 1, 1929.

The French government ratified the funding agreement under date of July 27, 1929. Relying upon the expression of the sentiment of the Congress on the matter, as contained in the joint resolution, the Secretary of the Treasury, with the approval of the President, in an exchange of correspondence agreed with France to extend the maturity date of the obligation in question upon the terms and conditions set out in the resolution. The House joint resolution was subsequently enacted into law, being approved by the President on Oct. 17, 1929.

The question, therefore, of the maturity of these obligations is temporarily disposed of. The French debt agreement will be submitted to the Congress in the early part of December. If it receives the approval of the Congress, all of the obligations of France representing the purchase of surplus war material on credit will be merged, under that agreement, in the general debt of France to the United States. The payments thereafter made will conform to the annuities specified in that agreement.

RECEIPTS AND EXPENDITURES.

The receipts and expenditures shown in detail in the budget are summarized in the following statement:

	Estimated, 1931.	Estimated, 1930.	Actual, 1929.
Receipts—
Customs	$602,000,000	$602,000,000	$602,262,786.17
Income tax	2,460,000,000	2,480,000,000	2,330,711,822.66
Miscellaneous internal revenue	640,000,000	635,000,000	607,307,548.95
Miscellaneous receipts	523,727,666	532,263,434	492,968,067.24
Total receipts	$4,225,727,666	$4,249,263,434	$4,033,250,225.05
Total expenditures (including reduction of the public debt required by law to be made from ordinary receipts)	4,102,938,700	4,023,681,900	3,848,463,189.63

These figures include net expenditures from the revolving loan fund of the Federal Farm Board to the amount of $200,000,000 in 1931, as compared with an estimated net expenditure of $75,000,000 for the same purpose in the current fiscal year 1930. Eliminating these figures, for the purpose of comparison, from the estimated expenditures of both years shows the estimated expenditures for all other purposes for the fiscal year 1931 to be about $46,000,000 less than those for the fiscal year 1930.

The amounts which are shown in this budget as representing the receipts, expenditures and surplus for the fiscal years 1929 and 1930 differ materially from those contained in the budget for 1930, as shown by the following table:

Expenditures	4,023,681,900	3,780,719,647
Surplus	$225,581,534	$80,576,182

1929.	Actual.	Estimated in the 1930 Budget.
Surplus	$184,787,035	$36,990,192

The increase in actual receipts for 1929 over the estimate can be attributed mainly to an unforeseen increase in receipts from the individual income tax. On the expenditure side, while there were a number of increases and decreases in particular items, the total expenditures are less than the estimate by $225,000,000. This is due largely to the fact that the estimates of appropriations for the fiscal year 1929 were drawn at a time when it was believed that the Congress would be in session during the Summer of 1929 and that it would be necessary to provide for the usual appropriations for rivers and harbors, flood control, public buildings, &c., which are customarily carried in the deficiency appropriation bills. Inasmuch as the Congress was not in session during the Summer of 1929, it was not necessary to provide for these items, and the estimates were reduced accordingly.

The increase in the estimates for 1930 over the actual expenditures for 1929 is largely accounted for by the increase in the estimates for the Federal Farm Board revolving loan fund, the Veterans' Bureau, the Department of Agriculture, the Department of the Interior, the Department of Justice, the Navy Department, the Postoffice Department, the War Department, the Public Debt and the District of Columbia.

pected revenue the surplus of $184,787,035 realized in the fiscal year 1929 "would have been converted into a deficit."

Income taxes returned by individuals for the calendar year 1928, he said, had been approximately $1,150,000,000, as compared with $830,000,000 in the previous year.

Sale of Capital Assets.

While wages and salaries and dividends had shown an increase, the outstanding item in increased income returned was a gain of approximately $2,000,000,000 in profits from the sale of capital assets. How much taxes on this form of income would be cut down by the drop in security values and losses taken on the exchanges, Mr. Mellon said was an unknown quantity.

In figures estimating the receipts and expenditures of the government for the fiscal years 1930 and 1931, Mr. Mellon indicated that no great loss of revenues was expected by placing anticipated receipts from income taxes (corporate and individual combined) at $2,480,000,000 in 1930 and $2,460,000,000 in 1931, as compared with $2,330,711,822 in 1929.

The figures presented by Mr. Mellon which put total revenues for 1930 at $4,249,963,434 and at $4,225,727,666 in 1931 were identical with those used by President Hoover in his budget report. The Secretary estimated that miscellaneous taxes of $635,000,000 in 1930 and $640,000,000 in 1931 would, in each instance, exceed those of 1929. His estimated customs receipts at virtually the same level, $602,000,000 for the three years.

Mr. Mellon devoted the first part of his report to a review of the period of exceptional industrial activity and high tax returns preceding the decline on the Stock Exchange.

Would Slow Up Branch Banking.

He expressed the hope that "any further extension of group and branch banking organizations will proceed with moderation and that hasty legislation, either to liberalize or to constrict limitations now in effect, will be avoided."

"The time has come," he added, "when it would seem to be wise to undertake a thorough study of the situation with a view to determining the soundness of the present-day tendencies, and more particularly the limits of the economic units within which branch banking may be advantageously permitted."

The report commented on the fact that the work on back tax cases of the Internal Revenue Bureau had virtually been brought up to date. It gave also a brief review of prohibition enforcement which ended:

"The operations of the Treasury Department in the enforcement of prohibition are becoming stable and more effective. The activity and cooperation of the several bureaus engaged in these operations are making the business of violating prohibition more difficult and hazardous."

Auto Production Sets Record.

The favorable business conditions, reflected in production of both manufactures and minerals, Secretary Mellon observed, were shown in volumes of production that were "higher at the beginning of the fiscal year than at any time during the preceding year, and each succeeding month showed substantial gains over the corresponding month a year earlier."

"The usual seasonal decline expected during the late Fall and early Winter months was not realized," he reported. "The total increase during the year was somewhat over 10 per cent. This increase more than offset a decline of 3 per cent between 1927 and 1928, but the net increase of 7 per cent over the two-year period represented an average annual increase which approximated the customary long-time rate of growth."

Automobile production during the last fiscal year set a new high record with an increase of approximately 53 per cent, ascribed partly to a resumption of work at the Ford factories after a period of idleness. This was reflected in the demand for steel, which increased 22 per cent, although "the demand for steel in other lines did not parallel that for automobiles."

Freight car loadings were found to have increased 4.3 per cent, despite a reduction in carriage of live stock and forest products.

The gain in business activity, which was pronounced general, with a few exceptions, was "accomplished partly through increased labor efficiency and the use of more machinery. During the fiscal year, however, there was a 3.6 per cent increase in factory employment and a 5.7 per cent increase in payrolls, in contrast to the downward trend noticeable in earlier years."

Commodity prices showed no important change, while "distribution of goods to consumers by chain stores, department stores and mail order houses showed a continuation of the trends of recent years."

Two notable features of the year included a rise in credit rates to the highest point in more than seven years and an increase in gold holdings of $200,000,000.

Open market rates for time loans rose about 2¼ per cent, bankers' acceptances increased about 1¼ per cent and rates on commercial paper went up 1½ per cent. Ample credit was available, but there was a "marked falling off" in bond issues, particularly of the foreign, corporate and government kind.

Considering business profits in calendar years, rather than fiscal, the report stated that "the data on hand indicate that the net income of corporations to be reported for tax purposes will have increased about 11 per cent over 1927." Based on figures from the Department of Agriculture, it was shown that "the gross income of agriculture increased during the fiscal year from 12.3 billions to 12.5 billions, or less than 2 per cent."

A section of the report in which financial conditions were summarized read as follows:

"The outstanding financial events of the fiscal year affecting either Federal revenues or expenditures were the continuance of an active and rising stock market, declining bond prices, a change in the character of security flotations, and the emergence of relatively high interest rates.

Stock Market Activity.

"Stock market activity was characterized by rising prices, increased turnover or sales, and increased brokers' loans. The number of shares of stock sold on the New York Stock Exchange alone increased from 720,000,000 during the fiscal year 1928 to 1,042,000,000 in 1929, an increase of 44.6 per cent. The total value of domestic capital stock issues increased from $2,243,600,000 to $5,259,000,000, or 124.5 per cent. The increase in the turnover of all stocks and in the issuance of new domestic capital stock accounts for a large increase in the collections from the stamp tax on capital stock transfers and issues. The gains realized from such turnover also account for a large part of the increased revenue from individual income taxes.

"There were significant changes in the character and amount of new securities offered, in the securities issued for refunding purposes, and in the offerings of new foreign securities. Securities offered solely by domestic business corporations amounted to $7,011,600,000, exclusive of refunding issues, an increase of $2,486,200,000, or 54.9 per cent over the preceding year. Of the amount offered $3,224,200,000 was in the form of common stock, an increase of 280 per cent, and $1,418,400,000 in the form of preferred stock, an increase of 46.8 per cent. The balance, representing bonds and notes, decreased 12.6 per cent.

"Issues of securities by domestic corporations for refunding purposes in the form of bonds, notes and preferred stock decreased from $2,039,400,000 to $603,600,000, while refunding through the issue of common stock increased from $154,400,000 to $505,400,000. Foreign securities offered in the United States, exclusive of refunding issues and consisting chiefly of bonds, decreased from $1,506,600,000 to $871,000,000, or over 42 per cent.

"Future Federal tax receipts should not be materially affected by the change in corporate financing, from bonds to stock, although the source of some tax receipts is shifted. Losses from taxes formerly collected from individuals upon their receipts of interest from corporations will probably be more than recouped from corporations because an equivalent amount of interest will no longer be deducted by corporations in computing their taxable net income.

Interest Rates.

"Under the pressure of demand for funds arising out of the extraordinary situation prevailing in the stock market, interest rates rose during the fiscal year and increased the interest cost to the Federal Government.

"Interest rates were rising at the beginning of the year, declined somewhat during the Fall months, and rose again, beginning in January. The discount rate was increased at seven Federal reserve banks from 4½ to 5 per cent in July, 1928, followed by advances at other banks, the 5 per cent rate prevailing by May 20, 1929. The New York bank raised its rate to 6 per cent on Aug. 9, 1929. Interest rates, measured by the yields of 60 high-grade bonds, rose from 4.50 per cent in June, 1928, to 4.73 per cent in June, 1929, and commercial paper rates during the same period rose from 4¾-5 to 5 per cent.

"Federal Government borrowing was effected at much higher costs than during the preceding fiscal year. The Federal Government floated issues of certificates of indebtedness with 3⅞ and 4 per cent coupon rates in June, 1928, but had to offer 4½ per cent in September, 1928, 4¾ per cent in October, 1928, and March, 1929, and 5⅛ per cent in June, 1929, there being but one recession in the advance in rates, that of a 4¼ per cent issue in December, 1928. These rates were distinctly higher than in the preceding fiscal year when the coupon rates varied from 3 to 4 per cent, so that the average rate paid upon the entire Federal interest-bearing debt at the end of the year was 3.95 per cent as compared with 3.88 per cent one year earlier."

Government Receipts and Surplus.

The government's total ordinary receipts for the fiscal year of 1929 were given as $4,033,250,225, "a decline of over $9,000,000 from the fiscal year 1928," while its expenditures chargeable against these receipts mounted from $3,643,819,275 in 1928 to $3,848,463,190 in 1929.

The surplus for the last fiscal year was $184,787,035, compared with profits realized in the calendar year of 1928 on the exceedingly active and constantly rising stock market."

After detailing the fluctuations in other taxation items, the report stated:

"The more important changes during 1929 were in the receipts from government-owned securities. Proceeds from government-owned securities, other than foreign obligations, were $22,500,000, or $151,000,000 smaller than in the preceding year.

"The Treasury's estimates for the fiscal year 1929 of receipts from the corporation tax and from back taxes were reasonably accurate, but owing to the unprecedented conditions, which it was impossible to forecast with any certainty, the receipts from individual income taxes were considerably underestimated. Customs duties, including the tonnage tax, were estimated at $582,000,000, an underestimation of $20,000,000. This increase is accounted for in large measure by the larger imports of sugar following the removal of Cuban control and by the imports anticipatory of the impending changes in our tariff rates, experience having shown that imports tend to increase prior to tariff legislation.

"Miscellaneous internal revenue receipts exceeded the Treasury estimates by $30,000,000. This difference between the actual miscellaneous internal revenue receipts and the receipts as estimated by the Treasury is accounted for principally by two items—$12,000,000 excess of estate tax receipts over estimates and the $13,000,000 increase in transfer stamp tax collections due to the unusual activity in security markets."

"Expenditures as compared with the budget estimate show an increase of $53,720,000. Though there are a number of decreases and increases in the expenditures of the various departments which to a large extent offset each other, this is accounted for principally by three items—$52,000,000 paid to the railroads, as mentioned above; an increase of some $38,770,000 in internal revenue refunds and a $12,167,000 loan to the Greek Government, or a total of $102,837,000. This amount of increase was partially offset by reduced expenditures in various directions totaling some $49,217,000."

The manner in which income and corporation taxes may be reduced, the reasons for the recommendations and alternative proposals for consideration by Congress, Mr. Mellon stated thus:

"The Treasury Department believes that the following program will provide a maximum tax reduction without incurring an unwarranted risk of a deficit in 1931.

"The enactment by the Congress of a joint resolution declaring:

"(1) That the normal tax rate on the income of individuals for the calendar year 1929, payable in 1930, shall be ½ per cent, 3 per cent, and 4 per cent, instead of the existing rates of 1½ per cent, 3 per cent, and 5 per cent.

"(2) That the tax rate on the income of corporations for the calendar year 1929, payable in 1930, shall be 11 per cent instead of the existing 12 per cent.

"This should result in a decrease of income tax collections during the calendar year 1930 of approximately $160,000,000, about equally divided between the fiscal years 1930 and 1931.

"A year from now, depending upon the revenue prospects at that time, the Congress may pursue one of three courses:

"(1) It may make the proposed rates for 1929 income permanent;

"(2) It may pass another concurrent resolution fixing the normal rates at this or some other point for 1930 income; or

"(3) By failure to take any action, existing rates would be automatically restored.

"Aside from introducing into our revenue system the principle of a flexible rate which Congress after further experience and consideration may well decide to adopt permanently, the proposed program applies the major part of the reductions along the very lines that the Congress would probably follow in a permanent revenue revision. It distributes the benefits as widely as possible and while giving all income taxpayers some measure of relief favors those of moderate incomes. As pointed out in the 1927 Report of the Secretary of the Treasury, corporations are, relatively speaking, overtaxed, and whichever theory be adopted as to the incidence of the corporation income tax, it can hardly be denied that the way to give the greatest Federal tax relief to the greatest numbers is through a reduction of the corporation rate.

"The number of individuals contributing directly to the support of the Federal Government through the Federal income tax has been strictly limited, and, of those contributing, the vast majority pay but an insignificant amount and at a very low rate. Of 2,434,000 individuals returning taxable income, 2,059,000 returned but $32,861,000 of income tax, while 375,000 individuals returned a tax of $1,109,000,000. The average rate of tax on the net incomes of the 2,059,000 individuals was 0.42 per cent, whereas the millions of individuals who owned stock in corporations were that year paying through the corporations 12 per cent on the profits of the business enterprises in which they were shareholders.

"For the calendar year 1927 all corporations reporting net income reported a net income (including tax-exempt interest) before all taxes, of $10,954,037,563. They paid, in taxes other than income tax, $1,549,516,930, and reported income tax of $1,131,000,000, making a total of $3,474,000,000. In other words, 24.66 per cent of their net income was taken by taxes. In the same year these corporations paid about $5,789,000,000 in cash dividends, which was 52.82 per cent of their net income. For every dollar paid in dividends, 46 cents were paid in taxes. If all corporations be included—that is to say, corporations reporting a deficit as well as those reporting net income—the percentage of net income paid in taxes is 34.84 per cent.

"In so far as the reduction of the income tax on the incomes of individuals is concerned, under our system of graduated surtaxes the reduction of the normal rate is relatively of greater benefit to those with small or moderate incomes than to those with larger incomes. Income from dividends would receive no benefit, since dividends are not subject to the normal tax, but those who receive dividends would of course benefit from the reduction of the corporation tax rate."

The public debt was reduced $673,082,615.83 to a total below $17,000,000,000, and the refunding of the third Liberty loan was completed early in the fiscal year. The year's work in this regard made a total reduction of 37.3 per cent in the interest-bearing post-war debt since the peak in 1919. The annual interest charges were reduced 41 per cent. This reduction was "quite similar to that of other post-war periods."

The maturing of 1924 Treasury certificates on July 15, 1929, brought to a close "one of the most interesting features of the war financing." Of an appropriation of $370,241,327.02 available for debt retirement during the fiscal year, $29.18 was carried over into 1930.

Federal Reserve and Money Rates.

The end of the fiscal year found money rates "at the highest levels in more than seven years," the report stated, but ample credit was found to have been available for industry and trade. The section on credit conditions, which Secretary Mellon considered separately from general financial conditions, follows:

"Toward the end of the calendar year 1927 the Federal Reserve system began to exert its influence in the direction of firmer money market conditions. This policy was adopted primarily because of continued growth in the volume of member bank credit at a time when credit requirements of industry and trade were not expanding and when the demand for credit from the security market was increasing. In pursuance of the system's firm money policy, a large outflow of gold to foreign countries during the first half of 1928 was permitted to have its full effect on member bank reserves, and in addition the reserve banks sold several hundreds of millions of securities.

"By the middle of 1928, the beginning of the fiscal year ending June 30, 1929, the country's stock of monetary gold had declined by about $500,000,000 from the level of the preceding June, and reserve bank holdings of securities had been reduced by about $170,000,000. This outflow of gold and the sale of securities by the reserve banks tended to deplete member bank reserve balances, and led to increased borrowing at the reserve banks to restore them balances to the level required by law.

"The volume of discounts for member banks averaged somewhat in excess of $1,000,000,000 in June and was larger than at any time since the beginning of 1923. Furthermore, the rates of discount charged by the reserve banks on member bank borrowing, which in the early Autumn of 1927 had been 3½ per cent at all reserve banks, were increased by the 7th of June to 4½ per cent throughout the system. Discount rates were further advanced to 5 per cent in July at the New York bank and soon thereafter at all other reserve banks, except four Western banks, which did not increase their rates until the Spring of 1929.

Increase in Acceptances.

"In August, 1928, the reserve banks, with a view to accommodating the seasonal demand for credit to finance the harvesting and marketing of agricultural products, increased their purchases of acceptances, and by the middle of November the banks' holdings of bills had grown by $300,000,000. The reserve funds made available to member banks by the purchase of acceptances enabled them to meet the increase in the demand for currency, which is usual at this period of the year, particularly in agricultural sections of the country, and at the same time to liquidate a part of their indebtedness to the reserve banks. The system's purchases of acceptances also had the effect of producing somewhat easier conditions in the money market, and of facilitating the financing of the seasonally heavy movement of commodities to foreign markets.

"During 1928, accompanying the Reserve system's firm money policy, there was a slowing down in the growth of bank credit. Total loans and investments of member banks in leading cities, following rapid growth in the early part of the year, declined somewhat between May and November, notwithstanding the growth in the requirements for financing commercial and agricultural operations. The volume of loans on securities remained relatively constant during this period, while investment holdings were reduced. In the latter part of the year, however, easier conditions in the money market were accompanied by renewed increase in the demand for credit in the security market, which was reflected at the end of the year in marked firmness in rates for open-market collateral loans. There was a further growth of member bank loans to brokers and dealers in securities as well as continued increase in the volume of such loans made by corporations and individuals, both foreign and domestic.

"Conditions after the turn of the year indicated the persistence of influences tending toward the excessive flow of credit through speculative channels and the continuance of firm money conditions. In February the Federal Reserve Board, in communications to the Reserve Banks and in published statements, took the position that individual member banks were not acting within the spirit of the Federal Reserve act if they were continuously borrowing from the Reserve Banks and at the same time expanding their loans on securities or even maintaining a large volume of such loans. In April and May security loans for member banks declined, and during May total loans and investments of member banks were in about the same volume as a year earlier, indicating that an entire year had elapsed without any growth in bank credit.

Rise in Security Loans.

"In June, however, there was a rapid rise in loans on securities, and in July, August and September a large growth of loans, chiefly for commercial and agricultural purposes. Although these increases were offset in part by a decline in investments, total loans and investments, which for member banks in leading cities averaged $22,646,000,000 during September, were about $330,000,000 larger than in January and $780,000,000 above the level of September, 1928.

"Money rates, which had advanced throughout the larger part of 1928 and the first half of 1929, were at the end of that period at the highest levels in more than seven years. The development of firm money conditions had its most pronounced effect on open-market rates, particularly rates paid on loans collateraled with stocks and bonds. Open-market rates on time loans on securities, at 8-8¼ per cent in June, were about 2¼ per cent higher than a year earlier, while rates on bankers' acceptances, at 5⅝ per cent, were about 1½ per cent above the level of the year before, and rates on commercial paper at 6 per cent, were 1¼ per cent higher.

"During the same period rates on loans to customers increased on the average by about one-half of 1 per cent for the country as a whole. Although rates on commercial loans, both in the open market and to customers, increased during the year, ample credit was available to accommodate the large volume of industry and trade. While there was some recession in the construction industry, there was no evidence that business activity in general was unfavorably affected. There was, however, a marked falling off in the volume of bond issues brought out during the period. This was particularly true of offerings of foreign corporate and governmental issues. Notwithstanding this sharp decline in long-term foreign financing in this country, foreign countries were able to continue the importation of American commodities in large volume and also to place funds in the United States to be used in the purchase of securities and in short-time loans to the security market.

Increase in Gold Stock.

"The movement of funds to the United States from abroad caused by the high level of money rates and the attractiveness of security investments resulted in the early part of 1929 in a considerable importation of gold by this country. By the end of June the total stock of monetary gold in the country was more than $200,000,000 above the low point reached at the middle of 1928, an increase which represented nearly one-half of the gold exported in 1927 and 1928. This increase in gold stock was the chief factor accounting for a decline in the demand for reserve bank credit in the early part of 1929. It was not, however, reflected in a decline of member bank indebtedness, but was taken up in the liquidation of reserve bank holdings of acceptances which proceeded rapidly during this period. Member bank indebtedness at reserve banks during June, at about $1,000,000,000, was in about the same volume as a year earlier.

"The decline in acceptance holdings in the first half of the year reflected in part the fact that the system's buying rates for acceptances were above the discount rate, a situation which was less favorable to the sale of acceptances to the reserve banks. In July and August, buying rates on acceptances were reduced, while on Aug. 9 the discount rate was advanced from 5 to 6 per cent at the New York reserve bank. As a consequence, bill holdings of the reserve banks increased and conditions in the money market became somewhat easier at the time of year when agricultural activities give rise to seasonal increase in credit requirements.

"A review of the policy of the Federal Reserve Board during the past year shows that it has endeavored to guard against an undue extension of credit through speculative channels, and to conserve the country's credit resources for the purpose of meeting future requirements of industry and trade. The gold that came into the country during the year ended June 30, 1929, was not added to member bank reserves and did not constitute the basis of expansion of the country's credit structure, but was used to liquidate reserve bank credit.

"Chiefly as a result of the inflow of gold, total reserves of all reserve banks increased by more than $300,000,000 during the year. Since the banks' total note and deposit liabilities showed relatively little growth, the reserve ratio for all banks combined increased from 68 per cent to 74.5 per cent and the volume of reserves in excess of legal requirements increased by about $300,000,000. At the end of the period, therefore, the reserve banks were in a stronger position than a year earlier, and were better prepared to meet any emergency demands that might arise, as well as to provide the basis for meeting the increase in the country's credit requirements growing out of year-to-year growth in the volume of industrial, commercial and financial activity."

Farm Loans and Group Banks.

The reorganization of the farm loan system, begun in 1927, has been completed, Mr. Mellon reported, and defects in national farm loan associations have been "cured by the application of appropriate remedies and the system as a whole has been greatly benefited by the closer supervision that has been accorded the associations by the board."

Foreign governments paid to the government during the fiscal year $199,131,508.90, which $38,790,661.67 was for account of principal and the larger portion for interest.

"Additional payments have been received between the close of the fiscal year and Nov. 15, 1929, aggregating $10,652,759.63, of which $10,183,528.63 was for interest due on the obligations given by France for surplus war materials purchased on credit, $226,000 was for principal and $243,340 for interest due on account of the funded indebtedness of Greece," the report added.

The Coast Guard "satisfactorily performed" its duties and "a very commendable record of service discipline was made," while it also had a "satisfactory" record in preventing the smuggling of liquor, Mr Mellon found.

As for prohibition enforcement, the Secretary said that all field offices had been surveyed and set up to act with maximum efficiency. "It is anticipated that examinations and certifications of the Civil Service Commission will permit the appointment of all agents under civil service laws within a short time." The agents have been instructed by experts as to procedure in making arrests.

"All agents now have specific instructions regarding the rights of citizens guaranteed by the Fourth and Fifth Amendments of the Constitution. The proper method of securing search warrants and executing them, and the technique of making investigation of the larger and more important cases, and the proper form of writing a report," the report explained.

The prohibition forces during the fiscal year were reported to have made 86,678 arrests and to have seized 7,299 automobiles and 89 boats.

A large expansion in the manufacture of denatured alcohol was ascribed to increase in the manufacture of radiator solutions for automobiles and other products, but "diversion of completely denatured alcohol for beverage purposes has practically ceased."

Receipts and Expenses for 1929 and Estimates for 1930 and 1931.

Condition of the Treasury on June 30, 1929.

All cash receipts of the government, except as otherwise authorized by law, are credited into the general fund and all expenditures are made therefrom. This fund shows the assets in the Treasury in the form of cash and deposit credits and certain current liabilities set off against such assets. The net balance of this fund represents the working cash balance required in connection with the receipts and expenditures of the government. The net change from the close of the previous fiscal year is accounted for as follows:

Net change in general fund balances during fiscal year.	Amount.
Net balance per daily Treasury statement, June 30, 1928	$265,526,980.79
Deduct net excess of expenditures over receipts in June reports subsequently received	5,336,649.94

WANTS $2,000,000,000 TO HELP REAL ESTATE

New Yorker Asks That President Urge Reserve Banks Lend Amount on Mortgages.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—To relieve the present serious depression in the real estate market, Murray W. Garson, described as a real estate operator of New York City, today asked President Hoover to urge a law, whereby $2,000,000,000 might be released by the government for five-year mortgage loans, on income producing property.

The message was contained in a telegram to Charles B. Barrett, legislative agent of the National Farmers' Union, who left it at the White House.

Mr. Garson suggested that the President recommend a change in the existing laws or an amendment to the Federal Reserve act, whereby the $2,000,000,000 be made available through Federal Reserve banks.

RUSH WESTCHESTER SEWER

County Board Members to Let $1,000,000 Contracts at Once.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Dec. 4.—Eugene Martin, secretary of the Westchester County Sanitary Sewer Commission, announced here today that the commission will let sewer construction contracts approximating $1,000,000 this month to carry out its part of the public works construction program recently urged by President Hoover. The contracts will be let for the construction of sections of the proposed Mamaroneck Valley and Hutchinson Valley sewer trunk lines.

Mr. Martin said that ordinarily the contracts would not have been let for several months. The commission will eventually spend in excess of $30,000,000 for the construction of five trunk sewer lines in the county, he said.

ARMY PILOT KILLED IN 500-FOOT LEAP

HIS PARACHUTE FAILED

Three Companions Land Safely, Suffering Minor Hurts in Alabama Accident.

Special to The New York Times.

GOODWATER, Ala., Dec. 4.—Lieutenant Ernest G. Schmidt, a former football star at West Point, was killed today in a fall of 500 feet from a burning army plane. Schmidt and three others leaped, but his parachute failed to open. The others, Lieutenant J. M. Gillespie, the pilot, and Sergeants Brenner and Capps, who leaped after Lieutenant Schmidt when the plane burst into flames at an altitude of about 500 feet, were slightly hurt in landing.

Lieutenant Schmidt's parachute failed to open and he was instantly killed.

The plane was being piloted from Langley Field, Va., by easy stages to Mexico City, and left Augusta, Ga., yesterday morning. Maxwell Field, at Montgomery, was the next scheduled stop.

Jump as Plane Blazes.

The fliers, however, were about sixty miles south off of their course, when, according to Lieutenant Gillespie, the plane developed motor trouble over Goodwater. He circled the town several times seeking a place to land, he said. Then the engine caught fire, and he headed for the open country to land.

As the flames spread, Lieutenant Gillespie told the others to jump, he said. Lieutenant Schmidt was the first to leave the ship, and Brenner and Capps followed. Lieutenant Gillespie said he quit the controls when he saw it was too late for a landing.

Gillespie and Capps landed in a swamp and Brenner landed in a tree. Schmidt's body was about 100 yards from the wreckage.

Scores of residents of this little town saw the giant plane circle the town and burst into flames, and watched awestricken as, one by one, the three passengers and pilot dropped from the ship.

The plane continued for several hundred yards after it had been abandoned and finally dived to the earth. An explosion followed, reverberating, which was heard for miles around the countryside.

Schmidt an Air Corps Student.

The body of Lieutenant Schmidt was sent to Alexander City, Ala., about fifteen miles from here, where it is held pending advice from relatives.

Lieutenant Schmidt was a graduate of the United States Military Academy at West Point, and was a star linesman on the squad of 1928. He was mentioned for all American honors. He was a native of New Jersey and was appointed to West Point from Iowa.

He was a graduate from the Air Corps primary flying school at Bridge Field and a graduate of the advanced school of Kelly Field. He completed the bombardment course in 1928.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Lorraine Curtis Schmidt, formerly of Dunlap, La., and an infant daughter, Lorraine Schmidt, both of Langley Field.

A board of inquiry appointed by Major W. R. Weaver of Maxwell Field, Montgomery, arrived here tonight to open an investigation of the crash.

JURY IN LIQUOR CASE LOCKED UP FOR NIGHT

Eight Members Reported to Favor Acquittal of Dry Agent and Two Army Base Employes.

After eight hours' deliberation the jury in the United States District Court in Brooklyn weighing the government charge of "conspiracy to remove confiscated liquor" from the army base at First Avenue and Fifty-eighth Street, Brooklyn, against a prohibition agent and two employes at the base, was locked up for the night, at 11 P. M. last night. Unofficial sources had the jury voting eight for acquittal, two for conviction and two doubtful.

Those who had been on trial before Federal Court Judge Grover M. Moscowitz and the jury for a week in the Brooklyn Federal Building are James Connaughton, prohibition agent, of 4,616 Avenue D, Brooklyn, now under suspension and facing another indictment growing out of the same charge; Edward Callahan of 74 Seventy-fifth Street, Brooklyn, an elevator dispatcher at the Army Base, and John W. Smith of 326 Forty-seventh Street, also Brooklyn, a foreman of packers at the base.

The jurors spent the night in the Clarendon Hotel, across the street from the Federal Building. The defendants were locked up in the Poplar Street precinct. The jury will resume deliberations at 10:30 this morning. Three times after the jurors' dinner hour, from 6 to 7 o'clock, they returned to ask the judge to redefine "conspiracy" and to review exhibits.

REMBRANDT IS RECOVERED.

Two Arrested Confess Robbing Massimo Palace in Rome.

ROME, Dec. 4 (AP).—A Rembrandt portrait, "The Head of an Old Man," which was part of the loot stolen from the Massimo Palace, was recovered by the police today.

Two men arrested by the police confessed that they had robbed the palace on several successive nights. They took jewels belonging to Princess Massimo on the first night, and then the Rembrandt and a painting of the Siennese School and valuable wrought silver. The paintings were valued at $50,000.

N. Y. U. Group Seeks $3,290.

A drive to raise $3,290 was started yesterday by the New York University Christian Association at Washington Square and will continue through Dec. 13. This sum is necessary to cover the cost of an extensive program begun on Oct. 1 and will provide sufficient funds until Dec. 31, 1930.

QUEENS POLICEMAN FREED.

Charge of Theft of $100 Stickpin Against Powers is Dismissed.

Magistrate Marvin in Ridgewood, Queens, court dismissed yesterday a charge of petit larceny against Patrolman Orie Powers, 30 years old, of 87 Whitelaw Street, Richmond Hill, Queens.

Powers, who is attached to the Richmond Hill precinct, was originally held in $1,000 bail upon the complaint of Harold Clark, 29, of 101-56 130th Street, Richmond Hill. Clark was taken ill on the street several days ago. He was removed to the Richmond Hill precinct station, where his personal effects were checked with Lieutenant Martin Burke.

Clark was taken to the Kings County Hospital. The following day when his wife claimed her husband's belongings, she said that a diamond stickpin valued at $100 was missing and Powers was arrested by his superior. Powers told detectives that on the day Clark was brought in he, the policeman, was wearing a sweater and that the pin might have been caught in the garment. The detectives accompanied Powers to his home and found the pin underneath the sweater, they reported.

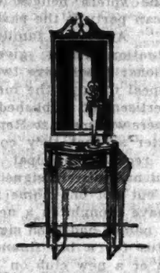
HATHAWAY'S

A Christmas pageant of lovely gifts

TO step into Hathaway's right now is to discover a whole new world of Christmas gifts. It is to find on every hand an array of beauty—memorable things to give, memorable to receive. It is to shop quietly and unhurried. It is to find prices that will please you whether you have either little or much to spend.



TO stand at this graceful mahogany console—to look into this mirror with its lovely mahogany frame—will be to remember the giver of such important, such friendly gifts. The console and mirror are priced alike—$27 each.

HAVE you thought of giving a fine piece of living room furniture—a handsome drum table like this one shown? It is fashioned of beautiful walnut and its pedestal and legs are carved. Brass tipped feet. Diameter 48". Its price is $85.

THERE is a friendly charm in a fine wing chair that makes a gift like this particularly appropriate. Custom made—all hair and down throughout. In a selection of delightful tapestries, $89. The mahogany end table is another thoughtful choice, $15.

THIS tea wagon in either walnut and gumwood or mahogany and gumwood, will win a very warm welcome. Drop leaves, removable glass tray, $29.50.

HAVE you thought of lamps? Hathaway's has a lovely array from which to choose. The ones shown are in the Chinese manner—so appropriate in almost any type of room. The one on the left is Celadon crackle on a teakwood stand. The finial is Soo Chow Jade and the shade a lovely silk brocade. The other lamp is green Celadon on a teakwood base with a shade of silk. Each is priced at $39.50 complete.

HERE is an XVIII Century open arm chair of truly distinguished proportions. The frame is mahogany and it is shown covered in an assortment of several handsome fabrics. The price is $63.

Bride Is Given in Marriage by Her Daughter, Mrs. Donald C. Greeff —Other Nuptials.

Mrs. Joanna Jones Lines, widow of Harvey Klapp Lines, was married to Henry Nott Ransom yesterday at the home of the bride, 1,148 Fifth Avenue. None but immediate relatives were present at the ceremony, performed by the Rev. Dr. Frank Warfield Crowder, rector of St. James's Church, Madison Avenue and Seventy-first Street. The bride was given in marriage by her daughter, Mrs. Donald Crabb Greeff, the former Miss Eleanor M. Lines.

C. Sutherland Ransom, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. There were no ushers.

Mr. Ransom and his bride will sail today on the De Grasse for a trip of two months and a half in Europe. On their return they will live at 1,148 Fifth Avenue. Both the bride and bridegroom come of distinguished ancestry. She is the former Miss Joanna Louise Jones, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. D. Shepard Jones. Through her mother, who was the former Miss Anna Evans, she is a granddaughter of the late Rev. Dr. James S. Evans of Philadelphia. She is also a descendant of William Floyd.

Mr. Ransom is a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Albin Ransom. Through his mother, who was the former Miss Cornelia Nott, he is a descendant of Eliphalet Nott, founder of Union College. He is also a descendant of John Taylor, first Lieutenant Governor of the State of New York. His first wife died some time ago. He has two daughters, the Misses Alice M. and Halette Nott Ransom.

The bride has three daughters, Mrs. Greeff of this city, Mrs. Beale B. Davidson of Philadelphia and Mrs. Thomas S. Buechner of Paolo, Brazil.

Adler—Sperber.

Miss Estelle May Sperber, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Sperber of 1,175 Park Avenue, was married to Bernard Adler yesterday at the Ritz-Carlton. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dr. Nathan Krass.

Miss Blanche Schlivek was maid of honor. The bridesmaids were the Misses Berenice and Pat Rosen, Sylvia Wolf and Dorothy Crayder. Emanuel Adler was best man for his brother. The ushers were Elliott Sperber, a brother of the bride; Ralph Adler, a brother of the bridegroom; Sol Polstein, Frederick Kerner, William Frankel and Jay Greenwald.

A reception and dinner followed. Mr. and Mrs. Adler will sail tomorrow on the Ile de France for a wedding trip abroad. On their return they will live in this city.

MISS 'SUNNY' JARMANN TO WED RICH BRITON

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—The engagement is reported today of Sunny Jarmann, American actress, recently in "Hold Everything" here, and Lieutenant Francis Francis of the Royal Horse Guards.

Lieutenant Francis tonight said that owing to a strict rule that no Royal Horse Guards officer shall marry an actress he sacrificed his army career and resigned his commission. Lieutenant Francis, whose mother was an American heiress, is now 23. At the age of 15 he was left a fortune of $10,000,000 in Standard Oil shares by his grandmother. Later he was the central figure in a fierce litigation surrounding $55,000,000 bequeathed to his sister Evelyn, three cousins in the United States and himself. Lieutenant Francis, despite an adverse verdict, received a large share and is believed to be a millionaire.

LONDON, Dec. 4 (AP).—Sunny Jarmann, an American actress who has been visiting England with her mother, today announced her engagement to Lieutenant Francis Francis of the Royal Horse Guards.

Lieut. Francis inherited a large fortune and a country estate recently. He also got a house in Berkley Square on the death of his father, Major Francis Francis, last year. His mother, who was an American, died when he was a child.

"We have known each other about five months and enjoyed a number of airplane flights together," Miss Jarmann said.

Miss Jarmann was born in New York City nineteen years ago and is now on her first visit abroad.

Lieut. Francis was one of the principal beneficiaries of the £2,000,000 left by Mrs. Bostwick, widow of Jacob Bostwick, the Standard Oil man and later the wife of Major Francis.

Luncheon for Elizabeth Detwiller.

Mrs. John Adams Mayer gave a luncheon yesterday at Sherry's for Miss Elizabeth Detwiller, whose engagement to E. Dean Richmond was announced recently. Other guests were Mrs. George Crawford, Mrs. Giraud Van Nest Foster, Mrs. Hendrick Vanderbilt Duryea, Mrs. Leonard Cox, Mrs. William E. Farnell, Mrs. Ralph Seward Allen, Mrs. Bruce Estelle, Mrs. John Harriman, Mrs. Consuelo Hatmaker, Mrs. George Leary Jr., Mrs. Paul Spear, Mrs. Frank Hurd, the Misses Elizabeth Remsen, Emily Wheelock, Martha Detwiller, Carolyn and Anne Storrs, Dorothy Battie and Geraldine Hall.

Honors Mrs. C. H. Matthiessen Jr.

Mrs. John M. Caldwell gave a farewell luncheon yesterday in the terraced restaurant of the Plaza for her daughter, Mrs. Conrad H. Matthiessen Jr., who will soon leave with her family to pass the Winter in Pasadena, Cal. The guests included Mrs. Kenyon Drake and Mrs. Charles A. Hagood of Charleston, S. C.; Mrs. William Kettig, Mrs. Arthur H. Woodward, Mrs. John Kaul and Mrs. Robert Jemison Jr. of Birmingham, Ala.; Mrs. Arthur R. Gray, Mrs. William G. Bibb, Mrs. Dudley B. Lawrence and Mrs. J. Campbell Maben.

Olive Knibbs Engaged.

Mr. and Mrs. John W. Knibbs Jr. of Mount Vernon, N. Y., gave a bridge party last night at the Siwanoy Country Club, at which they announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Olive Knibbs, to Dr. Ernest R. Granger, son of Dr. and Mrs. Arthur L. Granger of Pelham, N. Y.

ROCKEFELLER IN SOUTH DISTRIBUTES DIMES

'You've Broken Bank,' He Says at Jacksonville, but Brings Out a Handful of Nickels.

ORMOND BEACH, Fla., Dec. 4 (AP). —John D. Rockefeller Sr., 90 years old and apparently in the best of health, came back to this village today for his annual Winter sojourn.

Cold weather prevented him from getting the early start on daily golf which he had expected, but he told friends who greeted him at the station that he had to "get out and get in condition" to beat General Adelbert Ames, his usual opponent on the greens.

At Jacksonville Mr. Rockefeller greeted an Associated Press reporter in his drawing room and gave him four new dimes, the last of his immediate supply.

"There, you have broken the bank," he said. "That's all the money I have. But let me tell you many banks would not fall if their friends and their confidence were there."

The aged capitalist, however, was not so "broke" as he thought. He found a pocketful of new nickels, which reminded him of "a game we play at home."

"There is a bright, new nickel each morning," he said, "for each member of my household who goes to bed at night and never looks at his watch or worries about the time."

"The idea is that we should get a good night's sleep and plenty of rest and not be nervous over passing time."

"Neighbor John," which is the mode of address from friends here that he prefers, said he would stay at the "Casements," his Winter home, as long as heretofore, which would mean until April.

DECEMBER BALL TONIGHT.

Debutantes to Aid in Benefit for Grosvenor Neighborhood House.

The annual December ball for the benefit of Grosvenor Neighborhood House will be held tonight in the ballroom suite of the Ritz-Carlton. Many members of the younger set have been active in preparations and some of them will take part in a special entertainment.

Gustavus T. Kirby will act as master of ceremonies. The divertissements will include Russian dances in a peacock costume by Mme. Nina Susoff, popular songs by Miss Irene Franklin of the "Sweet Adeline" company, and exhibition dances by Miss June Blossom, a débutante of the season, and Ward Fox. During the supper hour a fashion show will be presented, with débutantes, under the leadership of Miss Lois Barstow, acting as manikins.

The débutante committee includes the Misses Molly Townsend, Janet Stone, Josephine Auguste, Marleigh Kramer, Alice Mary Anderson, Louise Munroe, Peggy and Theodora Barstow, Alison Morice, Leta Clews, Martha Milliken, Anne T. Cox, Katherine D. Pier, Mary Williams, Gladys Rockefeller, Katherine M. Rogers, Cordelia Dominick, Gertrude and Barbara Vander Poel, Frances Robbins, Sybil Whigham, Anne Vanderhoef, Marjorie Ferguson, Evelyn Lewisohn, Eleanore Leake, Margaret Gade, Elinor Ladd, Martha Hodge, Harriet Jackson and Mary Haskell.

Several dinners have been arranged to precede the ball, the hostesses including Mrs. Paris Phillips, Mrs. Reginald Whigham, Miss Louise Baker and Miss Mary Averell Brown. Others who have taken supper tables include Mrs. Edgar Appleby, Mrs. Stuyvesant Morris, Mrs. Herbert Wellington, Mrs. Joel Ellis Fischer Jr., the Misses Frances Ottley, Helen Seton and Margaret Davison.

TAKING RISKS FOR PEACE.

Prime Minister MACDONALD has more than once said that his government is willing to risk something for the sake of peace. Perhaps that was one reason why his Foreign Secretary, Mr. HENDERSON, joined Secretary STIMSON in addressing a note, partly of remonstrance, partly of appeal, to the Russian and Chinese Governments. In this the initiative was American. The immediate result is disappointing. All that Mr. STIMSON got from the Soviet Government was a tart reply, accusing him of unfriendly interference, and virtually telling the United States to mind its own business. Also, it must be admitted that the publication of Mr. STIMSON'S plea for the avoidance of war in Manchuria came most awkwardly just after the news of an approaching settlement between the Chinese and the Russians. Signs of mortification in the State Department at this outcome are not wanting.

It is safe to say, however, that Secretary STIMSON and President HOOVER were not thinking exclusively of the Manchurian imbroglio. Their endeavor to make the Kellogg treaty effective looked to something beyond that. A good part of Mr. HOOVER'S foreign policy is based upon the supposition that the treaty renouncing war is binding and will be operative. In his Armistice Day speech, for example, he founded his proposals for naval reduction, and dismissed as needless the discussion of the freedom of the seas, upon the theory that the Kellogg treaty has made any large war impossible. Yet here was a little war that might grow into a large one starting in Manchuria. The occasion invited an attempt to show that the treaty renouncing war is valid and will always be obeyed.

In the case in hand this did not prove to be exactly true. But it was the large principle which the Washington Administration was endeavoring to assert and maintain. A certain risk was involved. At first, partial failure might result, as it has resulted. But President HOOVER has made the initial test in trying to discover whether there is any way by joint agreement to enforce the obligations of the Kellogg treaty. If there is no such way, then he will be compelled to recast his foreign policy, especially his naval plans. In so important a cause, and for such a purpose as he has at heart, he was justified in facing certain hazards. These he did not altogether escape; but that will not greatly matter if he has succeeded in placing the international renunciation of war in a way to become firmly established and self-executing.

HOOVER ON THE WORLD COURT.

It was no surprise to find from the President's message that he believes the United States should now join the World Court. When the revisions and reservations in the statute of the court were made, largely owing to the initiative of Mr. ROOT, it was announced by Secretary STIMSON that they were satisfactory to the Washington Government. Mr. HOOVER confirms that statement, and declares that he will cause the official American signature to be added to the protocol of adherence. Yet he has decided to seek the approval of the Senate, and will submit to it at some convenient time the amended project. Some authorities have held that the President would be warranted in accepting the reservations as sufficiently adopted by exchange of diplomatic notes, in accordance with the original Senate resolution, and in proclaiming the treaty duly ratified, but he seems to have concluded that the more conciliatory plan would be to place the whole matter again before the Senate.

If he thought in this way to expedite action by the Senate, we fear that he will be disappointed. Senator BORAH has already given warning that the subject is too complex and delicate to be taken up in the regular session by a Senate overburdened with other imperative duties. This implies delay and something of a contest ultimately. But of course the President will not be deterred from his purpose to press the question upon the attention of the Senate. Three Republican Presidents have now urged the Senate to bring this country into the World Court. All reasonable objections have been met. As Mr. HOOVER says, no one can now doubt that the World Court has become "a true international court of justice," in which every interest of the United States has been fully safeguarded. Upon Senators who still oppose this peaceful agency for settling international disputes a heavy onus will rest. They will have to prove their case, or be compelled to abandon it under a cloud of popular displeasure.

THE FEDERAL BUDGET.

It has been the custom for Presidents to accompany the annual budget with a message to Congress. In this concise summary are set forth the proposed expenditures by the different executive departments and independent establishments, with the corresponding appropriations. Of course, the figures are not final. The Executive proposes, Congress disposes. But the budget and the budget message, supported by a wealth of detailed schedules, and with such side-lights as are afforded by the report of the Secretary of the Treasury and the President's annual message, reveal the position of Federal finances and the outlook for the immediate future with a balance and clarity that no document of the old system ever attained.

If Congress approves the budget as it stands, there will be a total expenditure for the fiscal year 1931 of $3,830,445,232. Leaving out the $150,000,000 in the Federal Farm Board's revolving fund, the new appropriations would exceed the old by a bare $4,304,000. The President has been able to keep the total increase down to that figure by pruning services here and there and by a number of fortuitous decreases. The way in which one bureau expands and another contracts is well shown in the Department of Commerce, where the Bureau of Census will be back much more nearly to normal by next Summer, with a consequent saving of $10,500,000, while the growing aeronautics branch is given an additional appropriation of $2,500,000. The architect of the Capitol manages to get several millions more next year for enlarging and improving the Capitol grounds, for a new House Office Building and for the long awaited building for the Supreme Court.

The big appropriations are for the Veterans' Bureau, $589,755,000; for the Navy Department, $380,392,526; for the War Department, $466,626,332; for the reduction of the principal of the public debt $635,324,000. Here is an item on which the ordinary politician always fixes a jealous eye. If expenditures must be increased and yet taxes reduced, why not postpone debt reduction? The President and the Secretary of the Treasury are unwilling to resort to any such expedient. Mr. HOOVER points out that the public debt, which, at its peak in August, 1919, amounted to $26,596,000,000, stood at $16,931,000,000 on June 30, 1929. "We are wisely committed to a policy which insures the further progressive reduction of the debt." Next year for the first time the annual reduction required by law will be greater than the annual interest charge.

THE TREASURY FORECASTS.

That important part of the Treasury report which concerns itself with the immediate future of government finances was prepared under unusual difficulties. A very few months ago a handsome surplus revenue appeared to be assured for the fiscal year ending next June and for the ensuing twelvemonth; but the financial crash has greatly obscured the outlook. Immediately following October's Wall Street panic the government virtually pledged a lowering of income taxes to the amount of $160,000,000 for the calendar year 1929. Afterward came the White House promise to speed up Federal plans for public works, with a view to averting unemployment. Nobody knew exactly to what extent this would affect the government's expenditure.

Secretary MELLON'S report, in its routine estimate of public revenue and expenditure for the fiscal years ending with June, 1930 and 1931, estimates a substantial increase for both periods over the fiscal year 1929, in collections from the income tax and in total revenue. It forecasts larger expenditure, but nevertheless finds an indicated surplus of $225,506,000 for the fiscal year 1930 and of $122,700,000 for 1931. But these figures were necessarily based on revenue and expenditure under existing laws; furthermore, they were apparently prepared without allowance for a possible heavy reduction in the taxable incomes of the calendar years 1929 and 1930, through deduction of losses in the 40 or 50 per cent break in stocks. Not only is income tax yield reckoned by these estimates as greater in the immediate future than in the fiscal year ended last June, but the estimated increase of expenditure—$40,700,000 in the current fiscal year and $79,200,000 more in the next—is wholly occasioned by the larger compulsory public debt redemptions and by advances to the Farm Board.

The Secretary frankly recognizes the resultant uncertainties. We are, he writes, "confronted with the difficult problem of determining what effect the precipitous decline of security values lately witnessed will have on the profits from security transactions," which "unquestionably yielded a very large income" up to last September. His suggestion is to make the income tax rate "flexible." That is to say, the proposed reductions in the normal rate should be made by Congress, but only by joint resolution applying solely to the calendar year 1930. A year from now, with the trend of public revenue and expenditure determined and with the size of the future surplus or deficit clearly indicated, Congress would have three possible courses of action before it—to make permanent the reduction now proposed, to fix for the next calendar year the same rate or a different one, or, finally, to do nothing, so that the lower rate fixed for 1930 would automatically cease to operate and the present tax rate be restored.

It is too early to predict what the governing circumstances a year from now will be; that depends on the as yet undetermined scope of losses in the Wall Street crash which will be deducted from income tax returns next March, and on the scope of increase in public expenditure under the Administration's "relief plans."

A HAPPY REVERSION.

Amid the general chorus of approval that has greeted the arrangement by which Mr. DWIGHT MORROW is to be appointed, at some future date, to serve out Mr. EDGE'S unexpired term in the Senate and to be a candidate for Senator in the Jersey Republican primary next year, nobody seems to have had time to think of the unflattering implications which this method of selection and the deserved applause that followed cast on the direct primary. That oracle of the people's will was not consulted. A coterie of officeholders and politicians and the representatives of the State and national Republican organizations picked out Mr. MORROW. A "boss-dominated" convention could do no more. It was, in effect, a return to the old discarded system.

At the end of Mr. BAIRD'S ad interim altruism, New Jersey will have a Senator variously and eminently fit for the post. The Jersey Republican oligarchy of erring politicians, backsliding into ancient bad habits, has chosen this man of admirable qualifications. It is their voice, not the celebrated "voice of the people," that has called him. It is idle to say that this was a matter of appointment only, and so the direct primary has nothing to do with the case. What direct primary in New Jersey, in either party, has produced a Senator to be compared with Mr. MORROW? Observe, too, that however great his reputation is he has been politically obscure in New Jersey.

The Republican managers turned to him because they needed him in their business. It is impossible to believe that he would have consented to go into the primaries next year without the powerful machine sponsorship and the actual service in the Senate which will be behind him. What chance would he have had on his own merits? He would have been an intruder, a "highbrow," an unfortunate, unofficial candidate, whereas even marooned "JOE" FRELINGHUYSEN has his machine, his backers and rescuers, long years of advertising and experience and of nestling or trying to nestle in the heart of the people.

The bosses were in distress. At one time it seemed as if most of the fat was in the fire. They had the happy thought of going outside the pale and letting New Jersey have a Senator to be proud of. Their blessing and protection will accompany him. Presumably the oracle will give the answer it is expected to make. It does seem a little curious or ironical that out of the old fields cometh this new corn.

JUDGE CRAIN'S STAFF.

The method employed by the District Attorney-elect of New York County to obtain efficient aides in his office is direct and commendable. His letter in The New York Law Journal, asking for applications, opens the list to any lawyers who can meet his requirements, which are sensible though searching. Perhaps some promising candidates may not be able to obtain the two endorsements required before Dec. 7 at 4 P. M.—the time limit set by Judge CRAIN for qualifying—but the chances are that any uncommonly good credentials that are necessarily delayed will receive consideration. Certainly Judge CRAIN has made it clear that politics is not to be the test of employment, and in this attitude he stands by his campaign pledges. His questionnaire not only calls for non-political endorsements, but pointedly fails to ask the party affiliation of any lawyer who may seek to join his staff.

A wholly non-political conduct of the District Attorney's office would be welcomed by the city. In the recent campaign Mr. COUDERT put Mr. BANTON on the defensive by revealing the number of his assistants with Tammany connections or backing. It is not to be assumed that applicants who may have the endorsement of lawyers active in politics, or who have shown political interest themselves, will be barred. And it would be expecting too much, under our system of government, for Judge CRAIN to appoint numerous assistants who have been busy in Republican city politics. But the general trend of his announcement is toward legal and not political qualifications. He is under no obligation to Tammany to take care of its members, having made that clear from the start of his campaign. Probably he realizes that he was asked to join the Walker ticket largely for the strength that he was expected to give it. While Judge CRAIN has always been affiliated with Tammany, his judicial record has been one of independence and fairness. His "advertisement" in The Law Journal is notification that he intends to continue that course so far as public office is concerned.

BYRD'S OWN STORY.

Admirably proportioned is Commander BYRD'S account, now completed, of his flight to the South Pole. He recounts with restraint the moments of suspense when the plane was laboring to clear the "hump" of the glacier to the right of Mount Axel Heiberg. The detailed story shows that it was no easy thing to navigate an airplane at such an altitude amid such thickening perils. Nothing but skill and prompt decision in emergencies could have carried the explorers through.

It was sound judgment not to attempt a landing at the Pole, because, to get the plane into the air from the plateau, weight and gas had to be considered. At an altitude of 10,000 feet or more it would have been dangerous to experiment. Failure might have exposed the party to severe storms. The camp would have been 800 miles from the base at Little America, with no prospect of relief except the sending out of the second plane.

To make doubly sure that he had reached the Pole in December, 1911, AMUNDSEN, after taking careful observations, sent out three men to march, in directions laid down, a distance of twelve and a half miles from his camp. Commander BYRD followed the precedent by flying for several miles to the right and left of the point he had calculated to be the goal and then adding several more miles in a flight straight ahead. It had been his plan to go fifty miles beyond the Pole but the need of ample gasoline for return to the mountain area deterred him. Geographical exploration was served by the discovery of a new mountain range running north and south when the plateau had been gained.

"A few more weeks' work and then 'Home'!" exclaims Commander BYRD. A part of that work will probably be a flying excursion into King Edward VII Land and another into Victoria Land to map what can be seen there. Last February discoveries of mountain ranges were made in King Edward VII Land. Writing in September, 1928, about such phases of exploration, Commander BYRD said that the flights would be "started from inland bases, so that it will be possible to dash out and back again as a precaution against being caught in a storm."

CONSERVATION OF OIL.

The important position of Sir HENRI DETERDING in the oil business of Europe lends special interest to the address which he delivered on Tuesday before the American Petroleum Institute in Chicago. To the non-technical public most relevant will appear his remarks about overproduction and excessive exports of oil at low prices with the probability that the United States will have soon to import oil at higher costs.

Geologists and oil men are by no means agreed about the extent of oil reserves in this and other countries. For years it has been commonly said that they are being rapidly exhausted. Yet oil production has steadily increased, new fields have been discovered, improved processes of extraction have been developed; and although old wells have gone dry, there is at present a glut of oil on the market. Not yet forgotten is the statement last Summer by the president of the Independent Petroleum Association of America that there are reserves enough to last for at least a century, even if the present rate of consumption continues to increase.

However, Sir HENRI'S warning should not be discounted on the ground that the policy which he advocates might further his own interests. The Royal Dutch-Shell groups not only have extended their services throughout Europe and the East but are now among the active competitors in the home markets of the United States. To the general public the possible commercial implications of this are less important than the broader aspects of available and potential supplies. It is not to the nation's interest to use up its oil so rapidly that it will become dependent on foreign sources.

The suggestion, sponsored by Mr. HOOVER, that the operators agree voluntarily to restrict production and attempt to eliminate waste was not enthusiastically received last Summer. The oil producers have been reluctant to admit interference with their methods. To the charge of wastefulness they have replied that the nature of the materials with which they deal, with the peculiar processes of extraction, makes waste inevitable. The argument does not apply to overproduction. It is a short-sighted policy, unless our known oil reserves are so enormous that the danger of exhaustion is remote.

ORDERED WHAT TO LIKE.

Meek submission to the dictates of any arbitrarily established authority on matters of taste in literature or the drama is not going to be tolerated in England if Mr. JOHN GALSWORTHY and the editor of The Manchester Guardian have their way. The latter expresses suspicion of the newly formed Book Society, which Mr. HUGH WALPOLE recommends strongly. Mr. GALSWORTHY, in a letter to The London Times, registers his "dismay and distaste" for the dramatic criticism freshly poured on the British public by the radio play-adviser. Both protests are aimed at the Olympian attitude which presumes to take away the pleasure of free choice and discovery from people who are traditionally opposed, as Mr. GALSWORTHY hopefully says, to being "led by the nose."

By insinuating publicity, readers can be led to a certain book, but they cannot be made to like it. The prestige of the authors on the "selection committee" will probably insure initial success for the enterprise, but subscriptions will not be renewed unless customers feel that the books chosen for them are those which they would perhaps have selected for themselves. If they are glad to have had them called to their attention, relieved at being spared the necessity of searching, the Book Society will be rewarded with an increasing clientele. No matter how unfair the arrangement may be to writers passed over, it will continue if the patrons are satisfied. It is possible, too, that readers lured into the club will increase their range of reading. Allusions by writers to other books have often proved irresistible, and may do so again, even if the first writer is among those prescribed by the society.

The case of the radio dramatic critic is different. We have such broadcast recommendations in this country, but they have stirred up no resentment. Our radio critics are numerous and speak from many stations. They are far from unanimous in their opinions, and their competition, like that of magazine and newspaper reviewers, saves them from anything like a dictator's position. In the single English station the dramatic critic is supreme. In his voice is concentrated, not the mixed chorus of all the writing critics, but a powerful and solitary note which reaches readers and listeners with equal force. No matter how able and just he may be, he is an autocrat. It is not surprising that Mr. GALSWORTHY objects to so insidious and insistent a power in the hands of an individual. The astonishing thing is that members of the theatrical profession and the dramatic critics have quietly accepted such control.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

A New Glory for the Goldenrod.

If Mr. EDISON'S rubber from goldenrod materializes, and its production can be stretched to meet the demand, another industrial revolution will have been accomplished.

While scientists examine details of the plan, and the rubber growers of British Malaya, the Dutch East Indies and Liberia plan to brand this product of the goldenrod as utterly unworthy of standing—or stretching—beside the product which comes from the sap of the Hevea brasiliensis, American farmers will begin buying up neighboring fields and planning for the world's greatest goldenrod crop.

The only fly in this ointment is the potential sneeze of the hay-fever victims, whose number, during the goldenrod season, is legion. The goldenrod has been threatened with banishment from city lots and is one of the greatest reasons why city folks stay home and country dwellers seek relief in Manhattan when the pollen of the goldenrod is wafted gently through the countryside. If Mr. EDISON'S ingenuity has enabled him to harvest his rubber crop before the goldenrod flowers, he will add to his other claims for gratitude the joint titles of rubber king and hay-fever destroyer.

Another Rare Ben Johnson.

Members of the political group in Washington will not be surprised to read the news from Kentucky that BEN JOHNSON, chairman of the State Roads Commission, has refused to resign at the request of Governor SAMPSON. Mr. JOHNSON is as well remembered there for his willingness to stand eternally by an assumed position as for his personal abilities and striking physical presence. As chairman of the House Committee on the District of Columbia in the Wilson Administrations he shared in many controversies, but never, so far as one can remember, did he give ground. Whatever may be the merits of Governor SAMPSON'S endeavor to appoint an entirely new Road Commission, Washington will be certain that Mr. JOHNSON will stand by his guns to the last.

If there is anything in heredity, it may have something to do with his case. The former Congressman is a great-grandson of that Colonel RICHARD M. JOHNSON who was Vice President of the United States and was credited with having killed TECUMSEH with his own hand at Tippecanoe. He is descended also from those aristocratic English Catholic families which accompanied Lord CALVERT to Maryland. His custom is to say the frank though upsetting thing in politics. Once when he was a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Governor he suddenly withdrew, remarking that no Catholic could be chosen. When his friends remonstrated, he replied: "I said it because it's true."

Not yet has it been disproved. When SMITH ran for President Kentucky gave Mr. HOOVER—though a Republican—the greatest majority in its history.

Music as a Morning Alarm.

In their habits of sleeping, people may be divided into two classes, the larks and the owls. For the lark school of sleepers nothing is simpler than cheerfully popping out of bed at a set time. For the owls, to whom night is the time for waking, early morning rising is the hardest piece of work in the day's grind.

Alarm clocks are at once the salvation and the curse of reluctant risers. Even their hideous din is sometimes not equal to the task of getting a sleepyhead out of bed. In an effort to soften the rigors of the morning reveille, radio fans have arranged devices by which the broadcasting of early morning setting-up exercises are substituted for the ringing of the alarm clock.

Going a step further, a clever German has invented a contrivance for attachment to a phonograph so that the owner may be awakened by the playing of his favorite tune. For something like five dollars, the pleasant experience of being brought back to consciousness by the sweet strains of "I Arise From Dreams of Thee" can be repeated every morning. If something more in keeping with an early morning mood is desired, "The Heart Bowed Down" or a modern blues record might be substituted.

Commenting on the wisdom of selecting a favorite tune as a substitute for the conventional alarm, an English writer remarks: "I have an idea that the tune which brought me from my bed would in a comparatively short space of time cease to be my favorite air."

A Noble Mansion.

Many maidens who day-dream of marrying the Prince of WALES and trailing down the grand staircase of Buckingham Palace in their bridal gowns have probably never heard of Knole House in Kent. That ancient seat of the SACKVILLES, near Sevenoaks, excels Buckingham Palace and most other royal residences as the place for a wedding. When the Hon. DIANA SACKVILLE WEST took Lord ROMILLY in marriage there this week the mists of history were wreathed about the heads of the bridal pair, and the finest country-house architecture in England formed their canopy.

After the ceremony the country folk stood about to cheer the young people, and bells pealed all over that part of Kent, as they have done for weddings at Knole since the days of King JOHN. His vassal the Earl of PEMBROKE was its owner and after him Archbishop BOURCHIER, who remodeled it probably under the inspiration of JOHN THORPE. At the time of the Dissolution HENRY VIII seized it from CRANMER and the See of Canterbury, and later ELIZABETH gave it to her favorite, the Earl of LEICESTER. Finally, Lord DORSET, a SACKVILLE, had it from ELIZABETH, and the family has owned it since.

Many kings and queens have slept beneath its roof and hunted in the deer-park. There are Van Dycks and Gainsboroughs for envious collectors, and the purses of multi-millionaires are not full enough to purchase the furniture. If you would know what Knole is like, read what the Duke of Dorset told Zuleika Dobson when he asked her to marry him and described the house they would live in.

No Less Cash Available.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I believe that insufficient stress has been laid upon the fact that there is just as much actual cash here as there was before the Wall Street fiasco.

Undoubtedly there has been a large shifting of funds which has thrown business out of balance, but the only thing that we have actually lost is a mass of inflated values.

LICHENS.

Between the street and tracks where snorting trains
Carry rocks explosives have disheveled,
Half-way down to the dinosaurian cranes
A thing which pleases me lies bright, unraveled.
There lichens map the flattened granite globes
With new Eurasias, olive green and gray,
Lettuce green, the frosty green of robes
That reckless elves in April cast away.
Flowers are fancies of one fickle June,
Confetti of a gala Mardi-Gras,
And snows are transient as that face the moon
Spreads on the grass; but fresh through heat and thaw
The lichens live, like words by Sappho spoken,
Forever fair in a world forever broken.

POOR LITTLE RICH BOYS.

They Need Attention as Well as Their Less Wealthy Brethren.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

I read with great interest the letter of Mabel E. Macomber of the Playground League of New York, published in THE TIMES of Nov. 24. This champion of more and better playgrounds as a potent agent in lessening delinquency among children strikes a note that is not only praiseworthy but decidedly practicable. The great army of workers in the field of childhood and youth second Miss Macomber's plea, hoping that the playground movement will become effective not only in New York City but in every other community where such a need is felt.

The communication referred to makes me wonder just how much is being done for that type of problem boy sometimes called "The Poor Little Rich Boy."

The lad who comes from a poor home is by no means the only type that is in danger of becoming delinquent. Many wealthy youths, with the hard materialistic attitudes they are assuming, their desire for speed in all things, and their very superficial interest, if any at all, in the work of the schools, present a problem that certainly may be included in "the tainted apples in the humanity barrel," to use Miss Macomber's term. These boys know the speakeasies, the questionable plays, the risque publications, and the trickiest jazz palaces. Many of them, despite the money lavished on their educations, are failures, and it is not because of lack of brains, but frequently because there is not the parental supervision and intimate interest that we find in the lives of their less moneyed brothers.

Now, from long experience, I know that these boys with their backgrounds of wealth and culture, together with their native cleverness—and they are clever—are all worth giving a thought to, and it is obvious to many of us that they need missionary work as much or even more than their less "fortunate" contemporaries. Again, it will be an economic project to save these fine minds and their power to project and accomplish great undertakings as a distinct asset to the community and the country generally. These boys are possessed of splendid possibilities, but they are in greater danger of going to seed, under the present code, than the poor boy for whom we are all gladly doing so much.

A Precedent.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The President's series of conferences suggests the similar series arranged by the curé of Cucugnan, who felt obliged to take unusual measures to save his flock from the perdition toward which they seemed surely headed, all of which is veraciously recorded by Alphonse Daudet in "Lettres de mon Moulin":

"I shall start not later than tomorrow and, to do the work well, we must proceed in regular order, in groups, as they dance at Jonquières. Tomorrow, Monday, I shall confess the old men and women; that will be nothing. Tuesday the children; that will be short. Wednesday the young men and women; that may take some time. Thursday the men; we shall cut that short. Friday the women; I shall say, 'No histories.' Saturday the miller; it will not be too much to give a whole day to him."

The tale relates that since that memorable week the perfume of the virtues of Cucugnan spread for ten leagues around, and the good curé had a happy vision of entering salvation with his flock "in splendid procession with myriads of lighted candles and clouds of incense." Let us hope that the efforts of the good curé at Washington will end as happily.

St. Kitts Epidemic Mild.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

With reference to the paragraphs which appeared in THE TIMES in regard to an epidemic in the Leeward Islands, more particularly that in the issue of Nov. 25, I have now had a telegram from the Governor of the Leeward Islands, dated from Antigua, informing me that the illness of filariasis has been of a very mild character in St. Kitts (St. Christopher), with only 10 per cent mortality, and that the situation is most encouraging and the disease rapidly subsiding.

I therefore should appreciate it if this were printed in an early issue so as to relieve the minds of residents of this district concerning their friends and relatives in St. Kitts.

Saxe on Speculation.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The truth of the old saying that "Pride goeth before a fall" is well exemplified in the poem of the late John Godfrey Saxe, written about the middle of the last century and aptly quoted in today's TIMES by your correspondent, Dr. Blair. To drive the point home perhaps the doctor will allow me to complete the stanza:

Old John McBride one fatal day
Became the unresisting prey
Of Fortune's undertakers;
And staking his all on a single die,
His foundered bark went high and dry
Amidst the brokers and breakers.

Congressional Aid for Veterans.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

For the veterans of the World War we have established hospitals, provided life insurance, paid a bonus or adjusted compensation, all of which is inadequate and a disappointment. I believe that the time has now come when Congress should enact a comprehensive pension system for these veterans and their dependents, along the lines of the Civil War pensions, and that the people will gladly commend such legislation.

A "HIGH HAT" PARTY.

One States Reasons for Local Unpopularity of Republicans.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The question is constantly and especially lately being asked "What's the matter with the Republican party in this city?"

In a recent editorial in which you discussed this question you said, with some degree of irony but quite correctly, that the matter with the Republican party in this city is that it needs more votes. Well, I'll tell you one thing that is the matter with the Republican party, that stands in the way of the party getting more votes in this city, and particularly in the borough of Manhattan.

The Republican party of this city is considered by the mass of the people as the aristocratic, the "high hat" party. The coterie, not the nominal leaders, who are patent in the Republican party in this borough unwittingly are doing many things to keep up and intensify that feeling. They do very little to attract the votes of the so-called middle class. They unintentionally do things that make the voters believe that the Republican party is the party of the "swells." Any one familiar with the situation could give many illustrations; I will give two:

An appeal through the medium of an advertisement published in the newspapers was made to Republicans to register so that they could vote at the recent municipal election. Powerful names were signed to that appeal, but not one name in seven would have brought in a new voter. If those names had been signed to a prospectus for a big financial corporation or a new club on Long Island, they would have produced results, but not on an appeal designed to enlist new voters. If that appeal had been signed by say one-third "high hats" and two-thirds members of the party whose names would have appealed to everyday men and women, it would have accomplished a real result.

The Republican club of nearly every Assembly district gives a ball or an outing and sometimes both every year. One of the purposes is or should be to increase the number of Republican voters. The Republican Club of the Fifteenth Assembly District, which is a part of the Congressional district which Ogden Mills, one of the very big men of the Republican party of this country, represented for a number of years, and which is now ably represented by Mrs. Pratt, gives a ball. The next morning the newspapers contain a list of those present, furnished by the management of the ball. That list reads like a page from the Social Register slightly diluted.

THE TIMES and other newspapers have recently published articles that President Hoover is alarmed about the Republican situation in this city. He has made very few appointments to high office from this city that will change any votes from the Democratic party to the Republican party or bring to the latter the ballots of independent voters in this city. Apparently very few of the President's appointments have been made with the idea that through the local popularity of the appointees the Republican party would be strengthened in this city. Men have been appointed by the President to high offices whose names were not known to one thousand men and women in the greater city of New York. Nearly all President Hoover's appointments have been made from the "upper ten" of the party or brought about by the "upper ten."

Presidential appointees should not only be thoroughly capable men and women, but persons whose appointment will strengthen the party locally.

It is the duty of every man to be right, but it is also his duty, if he can legitimately and properly do so, to get into a position where he can enforce the right.

All the members of the Republican party should do everything they can to enlist the earnest support and cooperation of all worthy citizens of high or low degree, so as to put the party in this city on the map not only in the national elections but also in local elections. When that is accomplished there will be no trouble in getting able men and women to run for and be elected to important municipal offices.

SAFEGUARDING COAL MINES.

Rock-Dusting Urged in All States to Prevent Explosions.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Newspapers recently reported a coal-mine explosion at West Frankfort, Ill., which killed seven men, while fifteen others at work some distance away escaped because the mine had been rock-dusted. And the news dispatch adds: "Because the blast was localized, little damage was done to the mine."

Practically all "major" disasters in coal mines are caused by coal-dust explosions. Fatalities from this type of accident have increased at an appalling rate in recent years. Such explosions, however, are needless. They can be prevented by spraying rock dust over the highly explosive coal dust which settles on the walls and in the passages of the mine, the resulting mixture being non-explosive.

In England, where this remedy is made compulsory by law, disasters due to coal-dust explosions have been wholly eliminated. In 1922 less than half a dozen coal companies in the United States had installed the rock-dust safeguard. At the present time the list has grown to more than 300 companies. The urgent need is to make the practice universal.

Seven States—Utah, Indiana, Ohio, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Wyoming and West Virginia—have enacted legislation providing for the sprinkling of bituminous coal mines with rock dust.

Prompt action is needed by the Legislatures of the remaining eighteen bituminous coal States. The cost of safeguarding the mines with rock dust is less than 1 cent a ton of coal mined. Action will be hastened if the public is fully informed that a remedy is at hand.

ITALIAN SOVEREIGNS CALL ON POPE TODAY

First Rulers of United Nation to Visit Pontiff Will Get Magnificent Reception.

ROUTE IS KEPT A SECRET

Trip Will Be Made in Closed Autos With Police Guard, Lacking Pageantry Till Arrival.

ROME, Dec. 4 (AP).—King Victor Emanuel, accompanied by Queen Helena and the royal court, will tomorrow make the first visit that a King of United Italy has ever made to a Pope. The visit is considered extremely significant because it gives a public sign of the King's approval of the Lateran treaties, which settled the Roman question.

Rome was filled tonight with visitors flocking to see the King drive to the Vatican, but they will be disappointed by the absence of the splendor and pageantry usually attending royal processions. The King and the Queen, as well as their court, will ride in closed automobiles instead of using the carriages of State flanked by cuirassiers of the royal body-guard and outriders. Only an escort of motorcycle police will accompany the royal party.

For reasons of privacy and better protection, the route that the King will follow to Vatican territory has not been made public. He will leave the Quirinal Palace and drive incognito to the Castle Santangelo. From this point to the Vatican the streets will be lined with Italian troops.

The royal procession will be considered unofficial until it reaches Vatican territory, where the ceremony will begin. Heralds and students of ceremony of the royal and papal courts have been busy for months working out the details of the meeting at the Vatican, and the reception will be magnificent.

The King's visit will be divided into three sections. The first will be an interview between the King and Queen and the Pope, which will be strictly private; the second an interview between the King and Queen and Cardinal Gasparri, Papal Secretary of State, and the third a visit by the King and Queen to St. Peter's basilica.

All the papal armed guards will be drawn up at various points on Vatican soil to receive the Italian sovereigns. High church dignitaries will welcome them and members of the papal nobility will escort them to his Holiness. Pius XI will receive them in the Throne Room behind closed doors.

The great St. Peter's Square will be entirely cleared of people, as well as the streets and courtyards within Vatican City.

Mgr. Caccia-Dominioni, papal major domo, will walk on the King's right on the way to the papal throne room, and Prince Ruspoli will offer his arm to Queen Helena.

After the royal interview, the King will present Foreign Minister Dino Grandi and others of his following. Count de Vecchi, Italian Ambassador to the Holy See, will be present. The Pope will present his visitors with religious gifts, probably mosaics. The King and Queen will worship for a few minutes in St. Peter's before returning to Rome.

DEPARTS FROM RENO TO JOIN EX-HUSBAND

Wife Who Divorced Francois Church Nov. 25 Will Sail From San Francisco.

RENO, Nev., Dec. 4 (AP).—On her way to keep a tryst in Rome with her ex-husband, whom she divorced here Nov. 25 on grounds of non-support, Mrs. Agnes Aurelia Church departed yesterday for San Francisco in an automobile which she purchased Monday, immediately after receiving a draft for $10,000 from the law firm of Hughes, Shuman & Dwight of New York City.

The $10,000 draft was the first payment of a $50,000 settlement made on the former wife of François Louis Church for getting a divorce in Reno to satisfy the Church family. Thirty thousand dollars more is awaiting her at the Palace Hotel in San Francisco, while the other $10,000 went to pay her attorneys' fees in the divorce case.

Waving a telegram from her ex-husband, telling her that he would meet her in Rome, Mrs. Church bade good-bye yesterday afternoon to Reno friends, who confirmed reports from New York that the former telephone girl, now 25 years old, intends to marry him again.

Joseph M. Torrisi, a member of the law firm of Dawson & Dawson, 36 West Forty-fourth Street, who served as Mrs. Church's legal adviser in preliminary matters connected with her divorce, said yesterday he would not be a bit surprised to hear that she had remarried her former husband.

"From what we know of this young woman in the office," he said, "there is no question about her love for Mr. Church. She really loves the man.

"Mrs. Church never intimated that she might rejoin her former husband in Europe and remarry him. The last word we received was a telegram from Reno, in which she said she was bound for a steamer on her way to Europe."

The ex-husband, who resides with his mother, Mrs. Marie Louise Urdang at 277 West End Avenue, is twenty-five years old.

Before her marriage in Hoboken, N. J., on Jan. 26, 1925, Mrs. Church was Miss Agnes Riggles. She is a niece of the late Albert Stetson of Brooklyn, a well-known patent attorney.

SEVEN AID MRS. ARNOLD.

Witness at Divorce Trial Support Testimony on Broker's Visits.

Seven witnesses took the stand for Mrs. Bessie S. Arnold of 270 Park Avenue in Justice McCook's part of the Supreme Court yesterday, when trial of her divorce suit against Ray H. Arnold, investment broker, entered its second day. In the main their testimony tallied with that given Monday, when a negro butler told of the defendant's visits to the home in Crestwood, N. Y., of Mrs. Margaret Crenshaw West, who is named as corespondent.

The witnesses were Ambrose W. Clayton, circulation manager of a religious periodical; Harry D. Snyder, chemical engineer and professional investigator; Joseph Pevnick, ambulance driver and process server; Mrs. Elizabeth Arrington, a servant for Mrs. Arnold, and Mrs. Florence Harris, a negree employe at the Arnold home in Greenwich, Conn.

The trial continues today.

NAVY DECORATES BRIG. GEN. R. H. DUNLAP

He Receives the Distinguished Service Medal for Record in Nicaraguan Occupation.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Brig. Gen. Robert H. Dunlap of the Marine Corps, obtained the Navy Distinguished Service Medal today for "meritorious service" during the occupation of Nicaragua, where he commanded the Eleventh Regiment of Marines and was in charge of operations in the northern area, the most disturbed part of the country.

After the return of Major Gen. Logan Feland to the United States, he commanded the Second Brigade, until he was relieved by Brig. Gen. Dion Williams. He was promoted from Colonel to Brigadier General last month.

General Dunlap is a native of the District of Columbia. During the World War he was at the front in France. The citation was as follows:

"For exceptionally meritorious service to the government in a position of great responsibility as commander, Eleventh Regiment, and as commander, Second Brigade United States Marine Corps, during the period of Jan. 19, 1928, to Aug. 20, 1929. Throughout this time these forces operated in the Republic of Nicaragua for the protection of lives and property against the attacks of hostile bandits and in restoring law and order out of the chaotic conditions then existing. Colonel Dunlap was in charge of all operations in the northern area of the country prior to, during and after the Presidential election on Nov. 4, 1928.

"Through his display of military skill, tact, justice and kindness the bandit forces were contained, the election successfully carried out without disturbance and order restored to the country. He later distinguished himself by his wise guidance and coordination of the activities of the Nicaraguan volunteer forces so that they operated harmoniously and successfully with his own in the further restoration of law and order."

HOOVER WOULD EXPAND OUR FOREIGN SERVICE

Proposed Budget Increase Is Part of Plan for Its Enlargement and Improvement.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—The desire of President Hoover and Secretary Stimson to improve and expand the foreign service is reflected in the budget estimates, which call for an appropriation of $17,238,659 for the State Department in the fiscal year 1931, an increase of $2,443,713 over the present fiscal year.

The most important increase would be in salaries for present and additional officers, the amount recommended for salaries being $1,854,765, as compared with $1,340,000 for the current year. Other increases would be distributed among a variety of items, such as expenses of special boards and commissions, purchase of office equipment, general administrative purposes and the like.

A decrease from $2,000,000 to $1,700,000 is asked for foreign service buildings, which, with unexpended balances, would be sufficient to carry out the building program authorized for 1931.

Among the salary increases would be an advance in pay for the Under-Secretary of State from $10,000 to $12,000 and advances from $9,000 to $10,000 for each of the four Assistant Secretaries of State. This would bring the latter for the first time above the level of foreign service officers, the maximum pay of whom is $9,000 annually.

Increases in salaries among foreign service offices through promotion and the bringing of additional personnel to the department would be provided for by an increase in the allotment for this purpose from $3,001,000 in the present fiscal year to $3,298,500.

Included in this sum would be $167,500 for sixty-seven new officers, in addition to the forty now on temporary detail to the department, whom it is proposed to send into the field after they have been replaced by permanent personnel, and $130,000 for the promotion of 178 officers.

MISHAP HALTS TEST OF AMERICAN AUTO

Chrysler Car Overturns on Berlin Track When Driver Is Blinded by Fog.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Dec. 4.—The American Chrysler car which had been speeding round the Avus race track here since 5 P. M. Sept. 29 in an attempt to establish a world non-stop, motor endurance record met a mishap last night, as a result of which the run today was officially called off. Up to the time of the accident the automobile had reeled off 86,489.1 kilometers (57,678.7) miles in 69 days 2 hours 5 minutes.

While turning on the south loop of the track in a fog at 8 o'clock last night the driver lost his bearings and the car hit the embankment, then completely capsized. Although it was righted after two hours and the run continued uninterruptedly up to 1 P. M. today, Chrysler officials decided to terminate the run as the non-stop provisions had been violated through last night's delay.

In view of its past performance the automobile was expected to reach 100,000 kilometers by the middle of this month. It had been running steadily through all sorts of weather with stops of only five minutes for refuling and to change drivers.

A report of the activities of the society for the past year was read by George P. Nichols, retiring secretary.

WINSLOW RUSSELL, INSURANCEMAN, DIES

Vice President of the Phoenix Mutual Drops Dead While Talking With Friend.

KNOWN AS A DRY LEADER

Also Advocated Many Reforms in His Field of Business—Began as a Bookkeeper.

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, Conn., Dec. 4.—Winslow Russell, vice president of the Phoenix Mutual Life Insurance Company, for which he was formerly superintendent of agencies, dropped dead of heart disease early this afternoon in the Heublein Hotel grill as he sat chatting with Maurice B. Sherman, editor of The Hartford Courant, with whom he had just lunched.

Mr. Russell, who was a prominent prohibition advocate and a leader in religious and boys' club activities, complained during the forenoon of pain in the back of his head. Otherwise he seemed in normal health up to the moment he died.

Mr. Russell was born in Nantucket, Mass., in July, 1871, and began his life insurance career with the Connecticut Mutual Company as bookkeeper and later as cashier. In 1898 he became an agent for the Phoenix Mutual in Boston. Twenty years ago he was called to the home office and appointed assistant superintendent of agencies; in 1911 he became agency manager. He was elected a director in 1914 and in 1918 vice president.

Mr. Russell had been a leader in reforms in the life insurance business and in changing the attitude of the public toward the life insurance representative. With others he was responsible for the Association of Life Agency Officers, having served as chairman of the executive committee and of the educational committee. In 1917 he was elected president of the World Salesmanship Congress; during the war he was on the government's committee of classification of personnel in the army and also served as assistant director of the War Risk Insurance Bureau.

NEW NAMES ARE ADDED TO HOUSE COMMITTEES

Readjustments Increase Proportion of Republicans on the Larger Important Bodies.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—New names were added to several of the more important committees in the House of Representatives today to fill vacancies caused by the readjustment of party membership necessitated by the Republican victory in the country in the last election. So far-reaching was the shake-up in the House, that the larger committees, those of twenty-one members, which formerly had thirteen Republicans and eight Democrats, had to be readjusted to the proportion of fourteen and seven.

Assignments to vacancies announced late today following a meeting of the committee on committees were as follows:

Steering Committee—Crampton of Michigan.
Committee on Rules—Sproul of Illinois.
Appropriations Committee—Wigglesworth of Massachusetts.
Judiciary Committee—Bachmann of West Virginia, Sparks of Kansas, Jonas of North Carolina and Swan of Iowa.
Interstate and Foreign Commerce Committee—Wolverton of New Jersey.
Rivers and Harbors Committee—Bolton of Ohio and Culkins of New York.
Committee on Agriculture—Snow of Maine and Garber of Virginia.
Committee on Foreign Affairs—Crail of California and Ellis of Missouri.
Military Affairs Committee—Cochran of Pennsylvania, Stafford of Wisconsin, Pritchard of North Carolina and Kaynor of Massachusetts.
Naval Affairs Committee—Coyle of Pennsylvania, Lankford of Virginia, Hess of Ohio and Mrs. McCormick of Illinois.
Post Offices and Post Roads Committee—Baird of Ohio and Pittenger of Minnesota.

The Democrats are expected to make their choices tomorrow.

W. C. BULLITT ASKS DECREE.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 4 (AP).—William C. Bullitt, diplomat, author and newspaper man, filed suit today for divorce from Mrs. Anne Moen Louise Bryant Reed Bullitt, charging her with "personal indignities."

Aspects of the case were concealed, even the present whereabouts of both parties.

At the age of 24 Mr. Bullitt became an assistant in the State Department, in 1915, and was an attaché to the American Commission to Negotiate Peace.

Testifying before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on one occasion, he caused some surprise by stating that Secretary of State Lansing believed the peace treaty "bad."

During 1918-19 Mr. Bullitt was on a special mission to Soviet Russia to investigate conditions there for the government and in 1926 his novel, "It's Not Done," came out.

The couple were married in 1923 and have one daughter, Anne Moen Bullitt.

Louise Bryant, as Mrs. Bullitt is known as a writer, was the widow of John Reed, American newspaper man and author, who died in Russia in 1930.

M. I. DAVIS KILLS HIMSELF.

Stock Losses and Illness Blamed for Philadelphian's Suicide.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 4.—Malcolm I. Davis, president and treasurer of the Ingraham Manufacturing Company, mattress makers, died this afternoon about three hours after he had been found unconscious in his Mount Airy home with a bullet wound in his head and a .32-calibre revolver in his hand.

Losses in the recent stock market upheaval, coupled with illness, led him to end his life, according to the opinion of police. They said Mrs. Davis had feared the results of her husband's worried condition and had hidden the revolver two weeks ago and was not aware that he had found it.

Dr. George B. Palmer.

Special to The New York Times.

GREENWICH, Conn., Dec. 4.—Dr. George B. Palmer, a dentist with offices at 475 Fifth Avenue, New York, died at his home in Sound Beach near here, today after an illness of about a year. He was born in Dorchester, New Brunswick, sixty-five years ago and was graduated from the dental department of New York University.

Rules Indiana Auto Drivers Cannot Share in Poor Funds

FRANKLIN, Ind., Dec. 4 (AP).—Floyd Owens, Franklin Township trustee, today announced a policy of refusing to extend poor relief funds to persons who drive automobiles.

Mr. Owens declared he has recently had several requests for aid from persons who operate cars.

In telling his policy, Mr. Owens said: "If these persons can afford to keep an automobile, buy gas and oil and keep the machine running, they do not need any of the taxpayers' money and they will not get it as long as I am trustee."

D. A. GARBER DIES; FORMER BUILDER

REBUILT BROOKLYN BRIDGE

Since May, 1928, He Had Been Manager of Associated General Contractors at Capital.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—Daniel Anderson Garber, retired, president of the Northeastern Construction Company of New York, and since May, 1928, general manager here of the Associated General Contractors, died this morning of post-operative pneumonia after two operations had been made in an effort to save his life. He is survived by his widow, his son, Daniel Mason Garber of Winston-Salem, N. C., and three granddaughters.

He was born on June 7, 1860, in Richmond, Va., and educated in the schools of that city. Mr. Garber early entered the construction industry, serving an apprenticeship and accumulating a detailed understanding of all branches of the work. In 1887 he married Miss Sarah E. Taliaferro, daughter of W. F. Taliaferro of Richmond. He became president of the Northeastern Construction Company in 1904 and erected many structures in the eastern half of the United States. He made his home in Ridgewood, N. J., where he served several terms as Mayor.

Under his direction the original buildings for the College of the City of New York and the Chelsea piers, between Fourteenth and Twenty-third Streets, New York, were constructed. Mr. Garber also had charge of the alteration of Brooklyn Bridge, involving the reconstruction of the piers and certain portions of the bridge.

The work was carried through to completion without interruption to traffic or loss of a single life. He resigned in May, 1928, to become general manager of the Associated General Contractors, of which he was the first president when it was started, in 1918.

He was active in working for improvement of conditions under which construction contracts are awarded and for high ethical standards in the industry.

The program, which was being carried out under his direction, reached into all fields of construction business and involved such far-reaching reforms as the development of a sound credit system within the industry, a system of prequalification of bidders on public construction work, a sound merchandising structure and a general revamping of procedure in order to assure the public of skill, integrity and responsibility in the performance of construction contracts.

ARCHIBALD B. PATON.

Woolen Manufacturer of Dover, N. H., Dies at Clifton Springs.

CLIFTON SPRINGS, N. Y., Dec. 4 (AP).—Archibald Browning Paton, 69 years old, active for many years in the woolen industry in New England, died today in Clifton Springs sanitarium and clinic after an illness of six months.

Born in Tillicoultry, Scotland, he came to this country at 7. He had been engaged in the woolen industry since he was 17. He had been identified with the Hazard Woolen Mills at Peacedale, R. I., and Chase Mills in Webster, Mass.

In 1888 he moved to Dover, N. H., where he introduced the worsted industry in the Sawyer mills, later identified with the American Woolen Company. For fifteen years he was general manager of the George H. Gilbert Manufacturing Company at Ware and Gilbertsville, Mass. He then established his own mills, the A. B. Paton Mills, at Stafford Springs, Conn. For twenty-two years he was agent of the Sawyer Mills of the American Woolen Company at Dover, N. H.

The funeral will be held on Saturday in Dover.

REGINALD F. VASS.

Town Treasurer of Montclair, 29, Dies After Illness of Nine Weeks.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., Dec. 4.—Reginald F. Vass, town treasurer of Montclair for three years, died today at the Mountainside Hospital after an illness of nine weeks. Mr. Vass, who was 29 years old and unmarried, made his home with his mother, Mrs. Laura D. Vass.

He was born in Ridgewood, N. J. In 1926 he was appointed town treasurer by Mayor Phillips, then Commissioner of Finance and Revenue. By virtue of his position, Mr. Vass was also custodian of public school money and was treasurer of the police and firemen's pension funds.

The Rev. Amos Gorham.

ROY F. DIBBLE DIES; HUNTER PROFESSOR

Doctor of Philosophy of Columbia University Was 42 Years Old.

WROTE NOTED BIOGRAPHIES

Among His Works Were "Mohammed," "John L. Sullivan" and "Martin Luther."

Roy F. Dibble, Professor of English Literature at Hunter College and author of several biographies, died on Tuesday night in the Presbyterian Hospital. He was 42 years old. He is survived by his mother and a brother.

Born at Portland, Chautauqua County, N. Y., on March 12, 1887, the son of George E. and Miriam H. Quilliam Dibble, he was graduated from the high school in Westfield, N. Y., in 1906. He received his degree of Bachelor of Arts from Clark College in 1912, and nine years later was made a Doctor of Philosophy by Columbia University. For his doctoral thesis he wrote the first of a series of biographies, the life of Albion W. Tourgee.

In 1916 Professor Dibble became an instructor in English at Columbia. He remained there for nine years. In 1927 he joined the faculty of Hunter College. In 1923 Boni & Liveright published Professor Dibble's "Strenuous Americans," containing vivid sketches of Mark Hanna, Jesse James, Frances Willard, Admiral Dewey, P. T. Barnum, James J. Hill and Brigham Young.

In 1925 appeared "John L. Sullivan," published by Little, Brown & Co., which was termed in a full-page review in THE NEW YORK TIMES, "A most excellent book, most excellently done." The following year "Mohammed" was issued by the Viking Press, which also brought out his last biography, "Martin Luther."

Professor Dibble had written several signed articles for the Magazine Section of the Sunday TIMES, and contributions to The Nation, American Mercury, The Century, The Forum and other magazines.

SCIENTIST VISIONS MENTAL SUPERMEN

Von Economo Says Evolution May Even Produce Race With New Organs of Thought.

SEES LAW OF PSYCHIC GAIN

Higher Functions Continually Increased by Nature, He Tells Psychiatric Group.

LIGHT IS SHED ON GENIUS

Evolution is breeding a race which eventually will be endowed with the minds of supermen, Dr. Constantin von Economo of the University of Vienna told a group of world-famous psychiatrists yesterday at the closing session of their two-day meeting at the Psychiatric Unit of the Medical Centre, 722 West 168th Street.

Not only is there a constant movement in the mental capacities already present, but entirely new organs of thought may be developed in the future, for, he declared the limit of development has not yet been reached. Dr. von Economo has been studying the cellular architecture of the brain since 1917 when he recognized and described lethargic encephalitis, or sleeping sickness. Some of the fruits of his research were presented yesterday for the first time.

Although Dr. von Economo did not apply his theory concretely, others at the meeting declared that his conclusions hinted at an interesting vista of possibilities. It would be possible if his theory is sound, they said, to envision an age in which Einstein's theory of relativity was as easily understood as Newton's law of gravity, an age in which men would fly as easily as they now go motoring, and an age in which a sixth sense would appear.

Isolated 107 Brain Areas.

Dr. von Economo's paper was entitled "Cyto Architectony and Progressive Cerebration," ponderous words which mean the structure of the brain and constant development of the mind through successive generations. Although only twenty different areas of the brain had been described on a basis of structure up to 1913, Dr. von Economo said he had been able to isolate 107 up to the present. To some of these he has succeeded in ascribing definite roles in brain activity, but others he has been unable to classify according to function.

The study of the brain of animals, he said, shows that in them there is a lack of development in the areas to which, in man, are ascribed the higher psychic functions and speech. Passing from the lower animals to man, it is noticeable that there is an increase not only in the mass of the brain but in the number of areas of different structure as well, he said. Through the study of skull casts of prehistoric man, Dr. von Economo said, an increase of the critical areas to which are ascribed the higher human functions, is noticeable. Thus, he said, it is possible to trace man's intellectual development anatomically.

"This species of vertebrate, which we call homosapiens," he asserted, "reveals not only a corresponding increase in the mass of the brain, but primarily an increase in the fineness of structure and differentiation of new cerebral organs. This process of increased mass in the brain in the upward trend of one species, as well as its progressive differentiation of architectonically specific structures, is what I call progressive cerebration."

"General Law of Nature."

The development through the centuries of various animal species, Dr. von Economo said, seems to "represent a general law of nature which states that there is a continuous and general increase in the higher psychic functions in the living creatures of this planet."

Whether this continued increase in intelligence is a development trend, inherent in the germ plasm or whether it is a result of natural selection in the struggle for existence is beside the point, the professor said. One thing is certain, he declared, and that is that the development does take place, not only qualitatively in the capacities already present, but possibly also in the "development of new cerebral organs in the cortex."

This possibility, he said, in turn "makes the development of new psychic capacities possible, a circumstance which opens up an entirely new perspective for the development of man, for we believe that the law of progressive cerebration has not yet stopped functioning."

Discusses Developing Genius.

Dr. Ernst Kretschmer, Professor of Psychiatry and director of the Neurological Hospital and Clinic of the University of Warburg, Germany, read a paper on "The Breeding of the Mental Endowments of Genius."

Genius and great talent of any sort are bred in the possessor and not instilled in him by environment, he declared. Had Goethe's mother and father not have been so temperamentally different, he said, the poet might have been a passable rhymester but never a genius. Similarly, Bismarck was a great statesman because he came of a long line of ancestors who had devoted themselves to statecraft.

Proof of the importance of heredity, he declared, was provided in a study undertaken recently among 1,000 school children. It was demonstrated that the children's school records showed the same deviation from the normal that had been noticed in the records of their parents and grandparents, he said.

Undoubtedly, he continued, the mating of two persons with marked similar talent in music, art or politics will produce offspring endowed with the same talent. But, he added, such "clan-bred talent" tends to produce experts with a decided lack of understanding of things outside their own sphere. Such progeny, he said, are likely to be dull and stupid, cherishing rigid forms and traditions.

Genius, on the other hand, results from the crossing of "dissimilar high mental traits," he said, resulting in a "complicated psychological structure in which the components of two strongly opposing germ plasms remain in polar tension throughout life." This tension, he explained, exerts a driving force and produces that instability of temperament, emotional pressure and restive impulsiveness which are the earmarks of genius. Such crossing of temperaments, however, Dr. Kretschmer declared, creates a "predisposition to psycho-pathological complications" and points the soundness of the old theory that genius and insanity are not so widely separated.

Says Drugs Aid in Some Cases.

The use of drugs and chemicals in treating mental disorders was described by Dr. W. F. Lorenz, Professor of Neuro-Psychiatry at the University of Wisconsin, where experiments along this line recently have been completed.

It was found, he said, that the administration of sodium amitol often serves to bring patients out of depressive periods in which they refuse to talk, eat or move. The action of the drug produces a deep sleep, and upon awaking from it patients are able to converse normally with friends and relatives, seem to have a remarkable memory of things that happened while they were in a stupor and behave normally in other respects. The drug, however, loses its effect after four or five hours. Similar results have been noted with the use of carbon dioxide, Dr. Lorenz reported.

Papers were read also by the following:

Dr. FRANKLIN G. EBAUGH, Professor of Psychiatry at the University of Denver.
Dr. ERNEST JONES of London, former president of the International Psychoanalytical Association.
Dr. WALTER SPIELMEYER, Honorarius Professor of Psychiatry in the University of Munich.
Dr. ADOLF MEYER, Professor of Psychiatry at Johns Hopkins University.
Professor C. MACFIE CAMPBELL, Professor of Psychiatry at Harvard University.

MR. ZERO, EVICTED, PUTS 'TUB' IN CELLAR

Urbain Ledoux, better known as Mr. Zero, was evicted yesterday by City Marshal James J. Larkin from the six-story building at 12 St. Marks Place, which he rented two years ago to enlarge the welfare activities of The Tub, the institution well known for its five-cent meals for the unemployed.

He continued serving food yesterday until the officials appeared at 9 A. M. to evict him, and there were 1,000 men at The Tub before that hour for breakfast. Because it was a last breakfast he included in the menu two pieces of pie for every man. Next Monday he will open his doors again in the cellar at 33 St. Marks Place, where he started The Tub ten years ago.

Difficulties with city officials over the work he was trying to do; a sudden decrease in contributions to his work following the crash in Wall Street and a landlord who refused to wait for rent payments, forced him to leave the enlarged Tub, Mr. Zero said yesterday.

Mr. Zero's difficulties with the city arose over his plan to provide lodgings at The Tub at 25 cents per guest. He was cited twice for maintaining lodgings in a building for which he had only a dwelling permit and finally decided he would have to abandon that part of his work.

More than 400 beds and bedding had been purchased for his lodgings and he turned these over yesterday to the St. Francis Home for the Aged, the Jewish Teacher's Seminary and other charity organizations, emphasizing the fact that none of them would be sold.

One organization, the Madonna Benefit Shops, had loaded six beds with mattresses and bedding on a truck and was about to carry them away yesterday afternoon when Mr. Zero paused to enquire how the shops would use the beds. When informed that they would sell them, he demanded that the beds be unloaded and returned.

Twenty-five "old bucks and lame ducks," as Mr. Zero calls the guests at The Tub, were busy all day helping to carry the chairs, tables, beds and other furnishings to the celler at 33 St. Marks Place. Ten of the men were hired by the marshal for the work, but the rest were volunteers.

WOMEN STORM COURT TO AID CHIROPRACTOR

Patients Stage Demonstration When Staten Island Man Is Convicted.

Indignant at the conviction of Christian P. Eifertsen, a Staten Island chiropractor, on a charge of practicing medicine without a license, a hundred of his women patients yesterday staged a demonstration, in which two of them fainted, in the Court of Special Sessions at Port Richmond, S. I.

Eifertsen's attorney, John C. Judge of Brooklyn, said he would take steps today to obtain a new trial. The chiropractor, who has an office at 56 Bay Street, St. George, was sentenced to three months in the Richmond County Jail. Eifertsen, who said he had about 500 patients, denied the charge, which was brought by Mrs. Bertha Greenwald of Manhattan, an inspector for the State Educational Department, who was the only witness against him.

Mrs. Greenwald said she visited Eifertsen twice in July and twice in August. She testified that after giving chiropractic treatment, he diagnosed her physical condition, saying she had slight blood pressure and spinal trouble.

On June 5, after having been brought to court previously on several occasions on charges of practicing medicine without a license, Eifertsen was found guilty and sentenced for three months. This sentence, however, was suspended and he was put on probation for three months.

OTTO FOUND GUILTY ON PERJURY COUNT

Convicted for Denying He Knew Daniel O'Connell Was Linked With Baseball Pool.

JURY OUT FOR 5½ HOURS

Reaches Verdict 15 Minutes After It Had Reported Deadlock and Judge Urged Decision.

James J. Otto, one of the Albany baseball pool operators, was convicted yesterday of having given perjured testimony before the Federal grand jury on Feb. 25 about the pool's activities. He will be sentenced today. The maximum penalty is five years in prison and a fine of $2,000.

The jury deliberated five hours and thirty-eight minutes. After the jurors had been out five hours and twenty-three minutes, they sent word to Federal Judge Alfred E. Coxe that they were unable to agree. After conferring with United States Attorney Tuttle and George Z. Medalie, attorney for Otto, Judge Coxe sent a note to the jury saying that, from every standpoint, a verdict was desirable. Fifteen minutes later Otto was found guilty.

The indictment contained three counts alleging that Otto had given perjured testimony before grand juries on Feb. 21 and 25 and on March 15. Judge Coxe threw out the count relating to Otto's testimony on Feb. 21 and told the jury to consider only a part of his testimony on Feb. 25 and all of it on March 15. He was not convicted on the March 15 count, that part of the second count of which he was found guilty was:

"That he, the said James J. Otto, never talked to Daniel P. O'Connell (Albany Democratic leader) during the year 1927 concerning the Albany baseball pool; that he did not know anything about Daniel P. O'Connell's connection with the Albany baseball pool." These were denials Otto had made before the two grand juries.

Otto was permitted to remain at liberty until today under his $10,000 bail. One juror said the first ballot showed ten for conviction and the second nine for conviction. The disagreement, he added, had been reported to Judge Coxe after the second ballot.

Following the verdict Mr. Tuttle declined to make any statement about the case, but said he intended to speak at length this morning when Otto is brought in for sentence.

In his charge to the jury Judge Coxe stressed the point that testimony before a grand jury must be "truthful and straightforward."

Judge Coxe told the jury that Otto had testified before the grand jury that he did not talk to O'Connell about the pool, that he did not know O'Connell's connection with it and did not know why O'Connell had pleaded guilty to charges brought against him in Boston in 1927 in connection with the activities of the pool. Otto had further testified, said Judge Coxe, that he had never examined the pool's books, had no knowledge of its profits and had never paid money to O'Connell or received money from him.

Judge Coxe called attention to the testimony of William F. Buchanan, an associate of O'Connell in the pool and one of its first operators, and said it had been corroborated by other witnesses. It was for the jury, he concluded, to determine the credibility of Buchanan and those who corroborated his material testimony.

Mr. Medalie, who has contended that Buchanan was seeking revenge, asked Judge Coxe to charge that the motive of the prosecution's witnesses might be considered in a test of their credibility.

REHEARING DENIED I.R.T. IN ELEVATED FARE RISE

Transit Commission Rules Company Violated Injunction in Asking for Ten-Cent Rate.

The Transit Commission denied yesterday the petition of the Interborough Rapid Transit Company for a rehearing of its application for a ten-cent fare on its elevated lines. The company announced that it would take prompt steps to obtain a writ of certiorari so that it could prosecute its plea in the Appellate Division.

The application was filed on June 19 and a hearing was held on Aug. 1. On Sept. 18 the application was dismissed, but with the proviso that it could be renewed if the company won in the pending Supreme Court litigation brought by the city and the commission to enjoin the company from increasing the fare on both subway and elevated systems. In dismissing the application the commission held that it was improperly brought because violating injunction orders of the Supreme Court.

The company's application for a writ, it was hinted yesterday, would be opposed on the ground that its ten-cent fare petition was only conditionally denied. The same injunctions that barred the bringing of the original application, the commission will contend, must bar the granting of a certiorari application. The company has four months within which to begin proceedings to obtain a writ, but is expected to act much sooner, probably when Supreme Court Justice Phoenix Ingraham hands down his decision in the pending Transit Commission suit for specific performance of the company's five-cent fare contracts with the city.

Fifty Years in Postal Service.

William J. Ross, 68 years old, of 455 Marlborough Road, Brooklyn, assistant superintendent of the classification department at the main postoffice, celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of his entry into the postal service yesterday afternoon. Postmaster John J. Kiely, master of ceremonies, presented the veteran employe with a spray of flowers, commended him for his long and faithful service and gave him the afternoon off. His fellow-workers presented an easy chair to him.

Almazan Hopes to Repeat Don Quixote's Tour; Would Travel on Horse, but Ignore Windmills

SEVILLE, Spain, Dec. 4 (AP).—General Juan Andreu Almazan, the victorious Federal commander in the Mexican revolt of last Spring, hopes to make a "Don Quixote" tour of Spain on horseback.

Now that the brilliant military leader knows the war trails of Mexico by heart, he wishes to follow the trail of Don Quixote on a better-fed Rosinante.

"I am returning to Spain next year to fulfill my long-cherished dream of making a journey as nearly as possible over the route of Don Quixote's wanderings," General Almazán said here today.

He added that he had no intention of tilting at any wind-mills and admitted that he might even abandon Rosinante for an automobile sometimes.

General Almazán has been traveling in Europe for some months since accompanying former President Calles to Paris.

Previous dispatches from Europe have stated that General Almazán planned to sail for New York today with General Calles, who is widely considered the controlling power in Mexico and the chooser of that country Presidents.

Mexicans in Europe were quoted as saying that General Almazán was slated for the portfolio of Secretary of War in the next Mexican Cabinet and eventually to fall heir to the mantle of General Calles. He has been mentioned frequently as a potential President of the southern republic.

J. P. NOONAN DIES, A VICTIM OF FIRE

WAS ON MANY COMMITTEES

Labor Leader Was Author of Paper Read at Peace Conference—Began Life Work at 14.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—James P. Noonan, 58 years old, president of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers since 1919 and fifth vice president of the American Federation of Labor, died at Emergency Hospital today from burns suffered when he fell asleep while smoking in his apartment at the Wisteria Mansions, 1,101 Massachusetts Avenue.

Mr. Noonan was alone in his quarters. Shortly after 3:30 A. M. passers-by noticed smoke coming from his window and turned in the alarm. Members of the rescue squad administered to the victim, who was partly suffocated, and then took him to the hospital. He was badly burned on the face and head; hands and upper body.

Mr. Noonan was born on Dec. 15, 1871, in St. Louis, and served on many national committees, including President Hoover's St. Lawrence Waterway Commission, the United States committee on seasonal employment in building industry in 1924, of which President Hoover was a member; the national public safety committee in 1924, the industrial lighting committee of the National Research Society the same year, and the Penn Giant Power Commission, also in 1924.

Attended Peace Conference.

He had been a member of the executive council of the American Federation of Labor since 1924. He served on the executive council of the building trades, a Department of Labor body, for the past seven years, and in 1922 he was a member of the jurisdictional board of awards for the building trades industry.

Mr. Noonan was the Labor delegate on the American committee at the World Peace Conference in London and was author of the paper on "Labor's Part in Power Production," which was submitted to the conference. He has been editor-in-chief of the Electrical Workers' Journal, an ex-officio post, for ten years.

He was an active member of the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, and of the Congressional Country Club.

Began as Worker at 14.

Mr. Noonan, the son of a farmer, left school after completing the elementary grades and began work in a mill at the age of fourteen. He quit his mill position to enlist in the Eighteenth United States Cavalry at the outbreak of the Spanish-American War, as a private. At the end of the war he entered the electrical trade.

Mr. Noonan is survived by his widow, now in Florida, and two sons, all of whom reside in St. Louis. Mrs. Noonan made her home in that city because of the numerous travels of her husband in connection with his many duties with the several organizations with which he is connected.

THREE HURT IN BRONX FIRE.

Two Firemen Fall Through Floor and Third Is Badly Burned.

Three firemen were injured early yesterday morning at a three-alarm fire that burned out a two-story brick office building at 3,750 White Plains Road, the Bronx. Traffic on White Plains Road was tied up for more than an hour.

Those injured were Lieutenant John J. Murray of Hook and Ladder 32, who was severely burned on the face and head when he was caught in a back draft; Lieutenant James W. O. Wood and Fireman Patrick Mahoney, both of Hook and Ladder 51, who fell through a weakened floor. They were treated by Dr. Harry M. Archer, Fire Department surgeon, and sent home.

The blaze was discovered in the basement by Patrolman Beedy of the Wakefield station. By the time apparatus arrived the flames had reached the first floor, occupied by the F. and F. department store. The fire soon reached the second floor, spreading to a dentist's office and a vacant apartment. The third alarm brought Chief John Kenlon, who directed operations until the fire was put out.

WILL BUILD PIERS OF TRIBOROUGH SPAN

WILL END LONG DELAY

Bridge Foundation Will Cost City $150,000 More Than It Would Have Under Earlier Bid.

After being delayed for several weeks because of the failure of the Albert A. Volk Company of 1,819 Broadway to perform its contract, tower and pier foundation work on the Triborough Bridge has been assigned to the Arthur McMullen Company of 50 Church Street by the Department of Plant and Structures at a contract price of $706,800, about $150,000 more than the Volk bid, it was learned yesterday.

When the bids were originally advertised about the middle of October, twenty concerns submitted bids ranging from the $563,235 figure of the Volk Company to $1,440,400, the bid submitted by the Phoenix Construction Company of 41 Park Row. The Volk bid was about $100,000 lower than the next highest bid. After the Volk Company had posted a forfeit of $20,000 guaranteeing completion of the work it received the contract. The $20,000 was forfeited because of its failure to carry out the work.

Commissioner Albert Goldman and Chief Engineer Edward A. Byrns of the Department of Plant and Structures said yesterday that the Volk Company had apparently made an error in its estimate for the job. The bids were readvertised and opened on Nov. 27, with only eight bidders competing for the work.

The McMullen Company, which is working on the Hudson River Bridge at 178th Street, was the lowest bidder this time and received the contract.

Commissioner Goldman explained yesterday that the bids had been readvertised promptly to avoid delay in the construction of the bridge. The work to be done is the construction of pier foundations in Astoria Park and on Ward's Island. The contract awarded to the McMullen Company was before the Finance Department yesterday, and actual construction will begin as soon as that department submits a favorable report.

SIX IN LIQUOR RING GET SENTENCES TO PRISON

Wylk Receives Two Years for Long Island Operations—Bail Pending Appeal Denied.

Rudolph Wylk and five others, convicted recently of conspiracy to violate the prohibition and customs laws through the operations of the so-called Long Island liquor ring, were sentenced to prison yesterday by Federal Judge John M. Woolsey. Bail was refused to all pending appeal.

Wylk was sentenced to two years in Atlanta Penitentiary and fined $10,000. Captain Michael Gillom, who commanded the Vinces, one of the ring's rum-running vessels, was sentenced to fifteen months at Atlanta. Captain Karl Lounberg of the rum-runner Litchfield, Fred Rohrer, Ernest Whitehead and Peter Blohm were sentenced to six months each in the Federal House of Detention at Eleventh and West Streets.

Bernard Molitor and Otto Diercks, who were arraigned under the same indictment, were cleared of the charges at the close of the trial. Diercks was acquitted by the jury and Judge Woolsey dismissed the indictment against Molitor.

Soon after imposition of sentence the six men were taken to the Federal House of Detention and began serving their terms. David P. Cahill, Louis Halle and Raymond S. Wise, counsel for the convicted men, intimated they might move before a United States Circuit Court of Appeals judge for bail pending appeal.

The ring was alleged to have imported millions of dollars worth of liquor into this country. The ring controlled two large Long Island estates and six sea-going vessels which carried liquor from Jamaica, Nassau, St. Pierre et Miquelon and other foreign ports, it was brought out. It also operated several smaller boats used to bring the contraband ashore.

'JERSEY KID' SEIZED IN AN UPTOWN FLAT

Wanted for Two Murders and a Hold-Up, He Gives Up as Police Trap Him.

GIRL WITH HIM ALSO HELD

He Fires on Detectives, Headed by Coughlin, but Quits When Companion Is Imperiled.

John Murray, who in a burst of eccentricity several years ago had tattooed on his body his name, several of his aliases and the high-sounding phrase, "Death Before Dishonor," was arrested yesterday morning in an uptown apartment. He surrendered after firing two shots at detectives and after being assured that he would not at once receive the "death" of his coat-of-arms.

Last evening, while the Jersey Kid—which was one of his more familiar aliases—was sitting gloomily at Police Headquarters, saying nothing, district attorneys from three counties were converging on New York with certified copies of indictments. The attorney from Philadelphia charged him with two hold-ups, the prosecutor from Monmouth County, N. J., charged murder, and Essex County, N. J., wants him for another murder.

He was arrested by New York detectives working with those from Philadelphia following a long search, with alarms and raids, which swept across the country. Among those who had tried their hands at his capture were S. S. Van Dine of detective-fiction fame and John D. Coughlin, chief of New York detectives until Commissioner Whalen abruptly dismissed him because of "age." Mr. Coughlin was the one immediately responsible for his being located.

Held-Up Sifted by Coughlin.

The most recent chapter of the Jersey Kid's adventures began Aug. 3, when a 76-year-old paymaster, George Danielson, was killed at Bradley Beach, N. J., during a hold-up. Five men took part in the affair and they escaped with $7,280. Mr. Van Dine, an honorary police commissioner at Bradley Beach, whose real name is Willard Huntington Wright, was called in, but he got nowhere in particular. Then the council asked Mr. Coughlin's help; a day or so later two men were under arrest.

Mr. Coughlin continued his investigation quietly. He found that the car which had borne the fugitives away went to Philadelphia. He asked the police there to trace it. Going farther, the detectives found a girl with whom the Jersey Kid was friendly, and late in November they followed a moving van as it brought her furnishings from Philadelphia to an apartment at 609 West 196th Street. The detectives then settled down to wait.

Early yesterday morning the authorities believed they knew all the habits of the Jersey Kid. They knew that he was desperate; that he probably would not be afraid to shoot. They knew of the inscription tattooed on his arm—"Death Before Dishonor." So, shortly before daylight they assembled at the apartment house. They were led by Inspector William J. Connelly of Philadelphia, with six assistants. Mr. Coughlin and police from the Wadsworth Avenue station.

While men guarded every possible exit from the apartment, Mr. Coughlin and several detectives stood at the door. The former inspector knocked loudly, but there was no answer. Then he started to open the door with a pass-key. The Jersey Kid suddenly called out. Mr. Coughlin told him that the police wanted to get in; the Kid only snarled. When the police were about to force the door, the man inside suddenly announced that he would come out in five minutes. Instead of coming out, he piled furniture behind the door. The detectives sent for tear bombs, but did not use them.

Fires at a Detective.

While the police at the door deliberated their next move the tide of battle turned to the rear. The Jersey Kid, looking out of the window, had seen a detective move and he fired. The detective promptly fired back. Then the Kid called for the police to let the girl out safely. The detective at the rear gave him permission. The young woman, tall and with flaming red hair, climbed to the ground and was taken into custody.

Meanwhile, the fugitive was bickering with the police at the door. He said he would come out at once, and as a symbol of peace he opened the door on a crack and tossed out his pistol. There were four bullets in it and two empty shells from the cartridges he had fired from the window. Assured that the police did not mean to shoot him, the Kid opened the door wider and stepped into the hallway.

Before taking the prisoner to headquarters, the police looked around the apartment. It was tastefully but plainly furnished, and its most conspicuous item was an expensive radio. In a dresser in the bedroom were several bullets, each with its tip filed off to give it a "dum-dum" effect. On a table was a bankbook with entries of $700, and on the back of an old envelope was written: "Peg and mother, good-bye—Frank." The Kid explained that he had intended to commit suicide, but lost his nerve.

While the girl—who gave her name as Mabel Davis and her age as 20 years—was being arrested as an accessory after the fact, the Kid was removed first to the Wadsworth Avenue station and later to headquarters. At both places the police sought to straighten out the tangled web of his names, his aliases and his alleged crimes.

His Weakness for Tattooing.

The Kid, a tall man of thirty or so with sideburns after the manner of the late Rudolph Valentino, apparently had a weakness for tattooing. Besides the thought on dishonor, there were hearts, arrows, the words, "Just Married" and "Liberty Girl," and his most familiar nickname—"The Jersey Kid." There were also the names Frank McBrien and John Murray, both aliases. He gave the name Charles Davis yesterday, and he was known elsewhere as McBrien, McBride and Green.

When he was questioned by Philadelphia and local police at Headquarters he refused to say anything. The detectives asked him about the crimes with which he is charged; then asked him about others in which he is suspected. He said that he would answer none of them "without a lawyer." He seemed interested in Mr. Coughlin, however, and when the latter left the room for a moment the Kid asked who he was. "Oh yes," he said on being told, "I've heard a lot about him. I'm glad I didn't shoot at him."

Where the prisoner will be taken for trial was still undecided last night. Philadelphia wants him, so does Newark and Bradley Beach. In such cases it is the custom to extradite the prisoner to the county seat which has the best case against him. But all three counties seeking the Kid said their cases were air-tight. So the matter was put over until today, when he will be arraigned in Washington Heights court as a fugitive from justice.

Of the five charged with the Bradley Beach hold-up and murder, only one is still at liberty. The Jersey Kid and the missing man, James Sargert, who is also known as Weston, Browne and California Eddie, are said to have done the shooting. Robert Tully, alias Arrowsmith, and Russel Baxter, who are said to have driven cars in the hold-up, are in jail, and Joseph Crane, said to have played only a small part in the affair, was arrested and released in custody of his attorney.

Newark has an indictment against Murray—as Frank McBrien—for the murder of George B. Lee, night receiver of a Public Service Garage on Lake Street during a hold-up on Oct. 15, 1928. At the trial of three alleged confederates—Louis Melanga, Victor Giampetro and Joseph Rado—McBrien was named as the actual slayer. The trial in question started last November but was called off because of the illness of a juror. It will be resumed in January.

In Essex County Joseph L. Smith, the prosecutor, as soon as he heard of the arrest, sent a detective to Governor Larson for his signature to extradition papers and then told him to get Governor Roosevelt's. Captain Philip Sebold of the Newark detectives went to headquarters in Manhattan to question the prisoner. Sebold said they had spent $10,000 in an effort to capture the fugitive and had traced him from Mexico to Canada.

Sebold said that the fifth man accused in the slaying of Lee Frank Orlando was killed some time after the murder in a pistol duel with a Chicago policeman. He said that McBride had been hunted in Chicago at that time but had gotten out just in time. He was surprised that the police had been able to capture the Jersey Kid so easily.

Under the name of John Murray the prisoner is wanted for two robberies in Philadelphia. One, in which six men took part, was at the pawnshop of Abe Brooks in Market Street last June 17. Jewelry valued at $64,000 was taken. Only one man has been convicted of participation. Murray is also wanted for a $3,500 robbery of a branch office of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company in Philadelphia.

Inspector Connelly asked Murray about several other Philadelphia hold-ups preceding that of the Metropolitan Life, but the prisoner maintained his silence. When the Inspector asked whether he had taken a train to New York, then Buffalo, Detroit and finally Chicago after that particular robbery, he only smiled. Already being called by the police a "second Jesse Wittemore," he refused to talk.

CALLS PLANETS' ORIGIN STILL A CHIEF MYSTERY

Shapley Says Speeds of Rotation Are Also Problem—Wonders if Byrd Really Hit Pole.

Professor Harlow Shapley, director of the Harvard Observatory, continued his exposition of his classification of all material systems in the known universe last night in the third of his series of lectures at the Commerce Building of the College of the City of New York. He discussed satellitic systems, planetary structures and double and multiple stars, which are classes 0 to 3 in the scheme of classification Dr. Shapley has devised to include everything from the atom to the space-time complex.

An attempt to explain the formation of the sun's family of satellites and planets brings forth one of the most baffling mysteries astronomers have to face, Dr. Shapley said. He told how modern research had upset the old nebular hypothesis when served for so many years, had replaced it with the planitesimal hypothesis, and in turn modified that with the tidal evolution hypothesis.

"No theory of the origin of the planets is wholly satisfactory," Dr. Shapley said, "though the tidal evolution hypothesis accounts for the major features of the system. To account for the observed rotation of the sun, Dr. Jeffreys of England has recently proposed the theory that the planets were formed not through the tidal disruption of the sun by the near approach of another star, but by the actual glancing collision of our sun with another star. The shearing force of such a collision could account for the rapid rotation."

Speeds of rotation and revolution of the planets and the sun constitute one of the most disturbing problems, Dr. Shapley confessed. He cited the various motions of the earth and the speeds and remarked:

"Commander Byrd dropped a flag on the South Pole. Let us hope that he hit it. The Pole moves from day to day. It moves as much as fifty feet in a year."

"Perhaps if Commander Byrd did not strike the exact spot with his flag," he commented as he pointed to the diagram, "the Pole will find the flag."

The time will come, millions of years from now, Professor Shapley said, when the lunar month and the day will correspond and the day will then be as long as forty-seven of our present days. In the beginning the lunar month and the day were only five hours long. When they came together again, through the retarding of the earth's motion by tidal friction, he said, the moon will start to approach the earth through the tidal effect of the sun. Then, if the sun does not lose its heat so that the oceans freeze, the moon will approach to the point where it is within two radii of the earth and it will be disrupted. The earth will then have a ring system such as Saturn displays.

Rogers Deduces From Message What a Bad Way We All Are In

To the Editor of The New York Times:

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Dec. 4.—Mr. Hoover delivered his prescription to Congress yesterday on the "condition of the country." It was 12,000 words long. That's how bad shape we are in. And he hinted to Congress that they was the one that got us that way, but that if they would get busy and do something at this session, he hoped to cut our "conditions" down to maybe 6,000 by the time he enumerates our troubles again.

Yours,
WILL ROGERS.

60-INCH TELESCOPE TO BE TESTED TODAY

Instrument to Be Installed by Harvard in South Africa Will Be Third Largest in World.

COST TO BE $225,000

Lens, Made in Pittsburgh, to Add Hundreds of Light-Years to Human Vision.

3 YEARS IN THE MAKING

Huge Glass Will Be Used to Study "Clouds of Magellan" and Remote Star Galaxies.

A sixty-inch reflecting telescope designed to add hundreds of light years to the range of human vision will receive its final tests at Pittsburgh, starting today. It is the new instrument of the Harvard Observatory to be installed at the South African station of Harvard Kopje near Bloemfontein, and has just been finished by J. Walter Fecker, after three years of painstaking work. It will cost approximately $225,000 when installed, and will be the largest telescope in the Southern Hemisphere.

Professor W. P. Garrish has already made a preliminary test of the instrument, and today Professor H. H. Plaskett will arrive in Pittsburgh to make the final tests of its mechanism and efficiency in actual observations before it is finally accepted. Then it will be taken down, boxed and sent to South Africa. Professor Harlow Shapley, director of the Harvard Observatory, may make the long journey to Bloemfontein himself to see that the instrument is properly assembled.

However, Dr. J. S. Paraskivopoulus, superintendent of the station, has assembled a twenty-four-inch instrument similar in construction, and it is possible that he may mount its larger brother.

Is Third Largest in the World.

There are only two larger telescopes in the world, one at the Mount Wilson Observatory and one owned by the Dominion (of Canada) Observatory. Conditions for astronomical observation are much more favorable at Bloemfontein than at either of these places.

The telescope is the gift of the International Education Board. It was authorized three years ago. Harvard will eventually have eight instruments at the station, Professor Shapley explained yesterday. None, however, will be as large as the one now being tested.

Bloemfontein, capital of the Orange Free State in South Africa, a town of 29,000 white inhabitants, has cooperated fully with the university in establishing the observatory there. It voted bonds of $20,000 to build a road up to the station, and has donated the services of its engineers and architects to help in planning the development there. Besides the Harvard Observatory the University of Michigan has a station there, and the University of Berlin is planning to build one. Climatic conditions make the location an excellent one. There is an even, equable temperature, with a large percentage of clear days.

Will Reveal Remote Galaxies.

When the new telescope is in position for use its main function, Dr. Shapley explained yesterday, will be a study of the two clouds of Magellan, our nearest outside "universes." A study of these two systems, he declared, will give a better understanding of our own galaxy.

Then in addition, he said, the large telescope will afford an opportunity to study remote galaxies and will permit a chemical analysis of stars by spectroscopic study. This use of the stars as an "experimental laboratory" will afford a knowledge of the behavior of common elements, such as iron or calcium, in a gaseous state under tremendously high temperatures, he pointed out. Such temperatures cannot be attained in earthly laboratories under conditions permitting study.

FIRE CAPTAIN'S FATHER ACCUSED OF MURDER

Formal Charge Is Filed Against Dominick Tartis, Now in Hospital—Other Witnesses Paroled.

A formal charge of murder in the fatal shooting of John J. Tartis, Newark fire captain, was filed yesterday against Dominick Tartis, 68 years old, father of the dead man, by Police Captain Theodore McNally. The father is under treatment at the Newark City Hospital for self-inflicted head injuries, and will be arraigned when discharged from the institution.

Miss Anna Tartis, sister of the slain man, was arraigned before Judge Nicholas Aibano in Fourth Precinct court on a material witness charge, turned over to the prosecutor's office and paroled in custody of her counsel, Louis J. Beers.

Four other material witnesses were paroled by the court for appearance when called. Among these was a new name, Michaele Naputano of 713½ Frelinghuysen Avenue, Newark. Police said he was a storekeeper in whose store the elder Tartis had sought to establish an alibi. The other three were Mrs. Josephine Tartis, widow of the fire captain, Thomas Lada, her partner in a store in Orange, and Maurice Joy.

Mad Pole Kills Six of His Family.

WARSAW, Dec. 4 (AP).—A 25-year-old peasant named Czeslaw Kobiczny in a village of Poniszla murdered his mother, three of his brothers and his two sisters in a sudden fit of madness. He killed them with an axe and seriously wounded another brother.

Are You, Too, Looking for an Enlarged Field of Activity?

AMONG the many types of men who have doubled and tripled their former incomes by taking up life underwriting work for The Equitable are salesmen, engineers, teachers, civil service workers, county farm agents, advertising specialists, merchants and store managers. Some business experience is desirable but not essential, nor is a knowledge of selling necessary, as The Equitable has special courses in Salesmanship and Training for all new representatives.

Life underwriting, on a commission basis, particularly for a Billion Dollar Company such as The Equitable, has many opportunities for men of character and industry. Not only is an immediate and annually increasing income possible, but a permanent profession without age limitations is assured. The requirements as well as the advantages are set forth in a booklet which The Equitable will be glad to send you on request. Personal interviews also invited.

Schubert Memorial Concert.

The Schubert Memorial, Inc., gave its only concert of the present season last night in Carnegie Hall. The two young artists chosen to appear as soloists at this concert were Phyllis Kraeuter, 'cellist, and Ruth Posselt, violinist. Miss Kraeuter played the Saint-Saëns 'cello concerto. Miss Posselt played Goldmark's violin concerto. The orchestra of eighty players from the Philharmonic-Symphony, conducted by Artur Bodanzky, played Mozart's overture "Figaro" and Wagner's Prelude to "Die Meisteringer" as introduction and interlude to the solo performances.

It was felt last season that the Schubert Memorial had unwisely restricted its selection of young soloists of talent from circles in and near New York. This season nation-wide regional contests were held before the final examination of nine applicants selected from 152 young artists who competed for the privilege of an appearance with orchestra in Carnegie Hall. From the nine the two who appeared last night were finally chosen. The names of the judges on the committees which listened to the applicants establish beyond a doubt the disinterestedness and impartiality of these proceedings.

Miss Kraeuter played the Saint-Saëns concerto with the seriousness and musicianly purpose for which she is well known. But the style of this concerto is apparently not for her. She did not play the music with the French elegance, clarity, polish which it demands. Her cantilens, on occasion, was warm and full of sentiment—too heavy sentiment for the character of the concerto; and her tone, partly because of a rather inferior instrument, was inclined to woolness. She had a tendency to force and press and by this act to limit the warmth and vibrancy of the instrumental song. We have heard better things from Miss Kraeuter, who has previously proved her worth in solo and ensemble playing. This could not be called a brilliant performance, or one with special distinrtions, and one, as noted, in consonance with Saint-Saëns's style.

Miss Posselt has an extremely sure and brilliant left hand and an unnaturally disagreeable tone—this in spite of a fine instrument. She played bravura passages with a certainty and celerity which must be inborn, as well as cultivated, but her tone in singing passages was neither warm nor expressive. She apparently tried to recompense for this shortcoming by a very exaggerated vibrato, so slow and so wide that the tone gave the repeated impression of being off pitch, which, in passing seconds, it was, and which, essentially, it was not. This lack of expressiveness and musicality is a regrettable shortcoming and one which Miss Posselt, who has undoubtedly an unusual violin talent, might yet correct. It appears as if her study had been spent entirely in the direction of virtuosity and almost not at all in the direction of making music. All in the speed and accuracy in the world cannot by themselves make a performance interesting or convincing or interpretative of the purposes of the composer. In fact, the Goldmark concerto, which is a good virtuoso piece if it is nothing more, was tedious long before the end was reached, in spite of digitol dexterity.

These most recent results of an enterprise laudably designed to bring young artists with transcendant talent and limited opportunities before the great public and critics of New York are, frankly, discouraging. They indicate one of two things: Either there is an exceptional dearth of exceptional talent in America, which we do not for a moment believe, or there is a poorly functioning process in the selection or the training of it.

It is not pleasant to say these things or to comment in a dampening manner upon an idea which would indeed be of great benefit to art in America if its results justified its proclamations and its hopes. But thus far the results have not done this. If the Schubert Memorial is to become a series of concerts for fairly gifted students to gain experience with orchestra, that is one thing. But if the organization expects to discover and establish successful virtuosos it must find some better way to locate it, since the public that it seeks for its protégés will not pay money to hear anything less than unusually interesting performances. Only by producing some great talents, and not by critical indulgence or by warm and charitable purpose, can these concerts justify themselves.

LEONORA CORONA AGAIN 'DON GIOVANNI' HEROINE

Mme. Rethberg, Although Indisposed, Sings Elvira—'Tannhauser' and 'Romeo et Juliet' Next Week.

Mozart's "Don Giovanni" had its second performance at the Metropolitan last evening, following the previous week's revival of a musical classic known to New York for more than a century. Mmes. Corona, Rethberg and Fleischer, Messrs. Gigli, Pinza, Rothier, Ludikar and d'Angelo reappeared and Mr. Serafin conducted. There was an interested and brilliant audience for the pre-holiday season, and the opera's mingled comedy and tragedy held the attention throughout ten rapid scenes.

Leonora Corona received much applause as a personal recognition of the American soprano's creditable undertaking of the leading tragic rôle among Da Ponte's three heroines. The "opera jynx," which had disabled Rosa Ponselle from her intended place in Mozart's opera, was transferred on this occasion to Mme. Rethberg, who consented to sing Elvira although indisposed, according to a printed note distributed with the programs.

Mr. Pinza as the Don gained in familiarity with his stellar rôle and he had in large measure mastered the nervousness that had resulted in a flesh-wound for Rothier, as the Commendatore, in their duel on an earlier occasion. Spectators again found novelty in the sight of Conductor Serafin accompanying the "recitatives" at a piano with muted strings. The entire house was sold out, including its full capacity of standing admissions.

Both "Tannhäuser" and "Romeo et Juliette" will be added next week to some twenty current operas, while a new American tenor, Edward Ransome, will be heard in "Il Trovatore." The seventh week is introduced by a Sunday concert enlisting Mmes. Corona, Mario, Oltrabella and LaMance and Messrs. Tokatyan, Tedesco, Tibbett and Wolfe. The concert is a benefit for Camp Sussex, and a guest artist for the occasion is the French 'cellist, Lucienne Radisse.

Operas for the week will include "Romeo et Juliette" on Monday with Bori and Gigli; "Walkure" next Wednesday, Stueckgold, Manski, Kirchhoff and Whitehill; Thursday matinee, "Don Giovanni," with the usual cast; Thursday night "Manon Lescaut," Alda and Martinelli; Friday "Tannhäuser," Jeritza, Matzenauer, Laubenthal and Tibbett; Saturday matinee "Cavalleria," with Rakowska and Jagel, and "Pagliacci," with Lauri-Volpi, Guilford and Tibbett, and Saturday night, Dec. 14, "Il Trovatore," with Rethberg and the tenor, Ransome, who makes his début.

THE PLAY

By J. BROOKS ATKINSON.

Another Police Victory.

HEADQUARTERS, a "new police play" in three acts, by Hugh Stange. Staged by Joseph Graham; settings by P. Dodd Ackerman; produced by Sidney Wilmer, Walter Vincent and Alfred E. Aarons. At the Forrest Theatre.

Sometimes Hugh Stange's police drama, "Headquarters," which was mounted at the Forrest last evening, does seem a little derivative. You feel that in many respects it has not sprung full-armed from Mr. Stange's playwriting forehead. In the task of presenting William Farnum as a heroic police inspector it commits a double murder, betrays double infidelity, shuffles around several packages of heroin, introduced passionate letters from both sides and audaciously reveals the silken love nest where a loose motion picture actor has been keeping his mistresses within arm's reach. While the police are searching the living room after the shooting, they find the steel door of a huge wall safe concealed behind the bookcases. What do you suppose is on the other side? Signs of wanton living? "Drill, Harry, Drill!" cries the inspector. Mr. Stange has not been reading good books.

Since he first wrote the script of "Veneer," which is now or of the finest studies of character in town, he has apparently been going to the theatre; and like "Tin Pan Alley," which was produced in 1928, "Headquarters" is the product of what he has seen. Although Inspector Regan is in charge of the detective bureau, and not a pin drops in town without his hearing the report, he never dreams that his own wife is a deceiver. Like ever so many respectable women she has succumbed to the fascination of a motion picture star. And now that he is tiring of her, he is transferring his blandishments to her step-daughter. Clearly, the head of the detective bureau ought to be more cynical in the home.

Being blind to the faults of those whom he loves, he gives Mr. Stange and Mr. Farnum considerable opportunity for showy melodrama. Snatching clues out of the air, giving orders right and left, not without a burst of manly profanity, they disclose what Inspector Regan describes as one of the prettiest little shooting mysteries in his career.

Mr. Farnum is a romantic actor. The gruff domineering manners of the theatrical police squad do not blend with the instinctive grace of his acting. Although the combination may result in a police inspector of high family breeding, it does not make for the staccato illusion of the swift crime play; and what Mr. Farnum achieves as the most accomplished and individual actor in the cast is interesting without being appropriate to the part. Likewise, Florence Johns is an actress of subtlety and perception in the portrayal of character. She is cast in "Headquarters" as a drug fiend and serpent who plots the murder of her husband.

So the author of one sensitively imagined play and two actors of unusual distinction move in unison, and a minor crime plaything is born. Even a minor crime play is most enjoyable when it represents the best work of which its author and actors are capable. The muggs and the thugs—they are criminologists in whom you dare not disbelieve.

ERSKINE VIEWS MUSIC AS UNIFYING FORCE

At Greenwich House Dedication He Stresses Need for Education of Masses.

The new music school of Greenwich House, 44 Barrow Street, was dedicated last night before an audience of 150 sponsors and friends of the movement started by the institution in 1913 for the musical education of neighborhood children. John Erskine, author and head of the Juilliard Musical Foundation, outlined the alms and ideals of the music school and the far-reaching effects they have on the cultural life of the people.

"The service of such a school as this," he declared, "is distinct from that of the ordinary music school. The great conservatories require severe preparation This and others like it discover talent at its source. It is a tragedy that the gift of the average person for the arts is usually undeveloped."

The professional musician, the speaker pointed out, is finding present economic conditions difficult to cope with, and there is less and less opportunity for singers and instrumentalists. While genius should not be neglected, he said, greater scope for neighborhood schools lay in fostering love for music among the masses.

"From the point of view of the worried virtuoso there are too many musicians," he said. "From the point of view of culture there are never enough so long as human beings possess a talent which is undeveloped. If all the music schools succeed in reaching all the available talent, we shall eventually take music entirely out of the economic field and begin to consider it as a form of expression essential to a sane and complete spiritual life, a social force binding the community together, and one community to another, more closely than any other language at our command."

Those who took part in a musical program were a string quartet composed of Frank Guilino, Jacob Lufschutz, Dante Bergonzi and Eolo Testi; the Fortnightly Chorus, led by Will J. Stone; a string orchestra conducted by Enrique Caroselli; and Rosemarie Loy, Sidney Coolman and Mary Kirschmann, pianists.

Mrs. Henry Lorrillard Cammann, the chairman, who introduced the speaker, said that an endowment fund had been established to carry on the work of the institution.

ROSA LOW GIVES RECITAL.

Rumanian Soprano's Warm and Colorful Voice Pleases.

Rosa Low, Rumanian soprano, gave a recital last evening at Town Hall. Her program comprised one group of early English songs, another of Rumanian folk-songs, representative lyric works in German by Schubert and Schumann, and "a first performance" of Veretti's "Sei Stornelli."

Miss Low's voice had color and warmth, and her manner of delivery unusual charm. Her interpretation of the English group was delightfully quaint and playful. Schumann's "Der Himmel hat eine Träne geweint" was exquisitely and movingly done.

It was only in florid passages that the singer's intonation became somewhat indeterminate and her decrescendoes disconcertingly abrupt. But even here, there was a disarming charm which made the auditors forget momentary lapses. A large audience recalled the singer insistently and often, and there were many flowers.

Walter Golde played excellent accompaniments.

SEIDEL BARBIZON SOLOIST.

Violinist and Miss Inga Hill, Contralto, Applauded in Recital.

Toscha Seidel, violinist, and Inga Hill, American mezzo-contralto, presented a program of music yesterday evening at the Barbizon.

Mr. Seidel's solos included Vitali's Chaconne and a group of short pieces, among them Loesser's "California," on a tune by Paladilhe. The violinist's technical elegance and emotional interpretations won him much applause from the auditors gathered in the intimate salon. Accustomed to large recital auditoriums, Mr. Seidel's intense and full tone seemed to call for a slight adjustment.

Miss Hill, whose program comprised songs in German by Schubert and Brahms and an English group, revealed a voice of genuine contralto quality, and one possessing power, color and body especially in the lower register. It is a voice which promises much.

Both artists were recalled many times.

HONOR SWEDISH SCULPTOR.

Trustees of Foundation Praise Prof. Milles at Luncheon.

The trustees of the American-Scandinavian Foundation honored Professor Carl Milles of the Royal Academy of Art in Stockholm, Sweden's leading sculptor, at a luncheon yesterday at the Harvard Club. Professor Milles has returned recently from Chicago, where he superintended the erection of his large "Triton Fountain."

Professor W. W. Lawrence of Columbia University said the sculptor "combined old Swedish traditions of sculpture with great individuality." Professor Milles, responding, said he had had a "wonderful time" in America and everybody had been hospitable. He said that he had noticed no old people in the streets of American cities and wondered what we did with our aged.

Professor Milles will be the guest today of the Architectural League of New York at a luncheon.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

After a week's run at the Theatre Masque, "The Amorous Antic" will close on Saturday night. Instead of moving to the Royale on Monday night, as previously announced, "Rope's End" will be transferred from Maxine Elliott's to the Masque, the theatre in which it began its New York engagement.

Frederick Kerr, recently seen in "The Middle Watch," has been engaged for Dwight Taylor's comedy, "Trevelyn's Ghost," which A. L. Erlanger and George C. Tyler will presently produce. Rehearsals will start next week under the direction of Mr. Kerr and the author.

Lester Lonergan will direct Edwin Justus Mayer's "Children of Darkness," in which Basil Sydney and Mary Ellis will soon be seen.

The Irish Theatre's next production will be "The Playboy of the Western World."

Leo G. Carroll, last seen here as the junior police officer in "The Perfect Alibi," will have a rôle in "The Novice and the Duke," opening at the Assembly Theatre next Monday.

"The Ship" will end its engagement at the Gansevoort Theatre this week. Chesterton's "Magic" will open there next Wednesday.

JESSEL TO QUIT FILMS FOR LEGITIMATE STAGE

Signs Contract With John Golden to Appear in "P. S. He Got the Job," With Scenes in Egypt.

George Jessel's return to the theatre, which has been considered imminent for some time, became definite yesterday with the signing of a contract with John Golden. Mr. Jessel, who has been devoting recent months to the talking films, will be seen in a play by Bertram Bloch, tentatively entitled "P. S.—He Got the Job." The scenes are laid in Egypt of biblical times, and Mr. Jessel's rôle will be that of Joseph. The play is said to be written in modern terms, and in it Mr. Jessel will sing a number of ancient Hebrew songs.

The play will open in Brooklyn on Jan. 6, and is expected in New York late in January or early in February.

Wilva Davis Wed to Paul Martin.

Wilva Davis, general understudy for the feminine rôles in "It Never Rains," was married on Tuesday night to Paul Martin, stage manager of that production, it was announced yesterday. Miss Davis played the feminine lead in the Chicago company of "The Front Page" last season.

"WHIRLPOOL" WITHDRAWN.

First Production of New Group Closes After Two Days.

"Whirlpool," presented at the Biltmore Theatre on Tuesday night as the first production of the American Playwrights, closed last night after playing only three performances. The play, by William Jourdan Rapp and Walter Marquiss, was first produced in Hempstead on Nov. 15 where it was performed under the title of "War Within," and was seen in Wilmington, New Haven and Hartford.

The American Playwrights, a new group in the New York theatres, are headed by Myron S. Falk, president, and include C. A. Leonard, Charles D. Morris, Mr. Rapp and Mr. Marquiss. The organization was formed last Spring for the purpose of producing native plays.

TILDEN TO BE ENTERTAINER.

He Has Engagement for Cabaret "Turn" in London Restaurant.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—William T. Tilden 2d, Davis Cup tennis player, will make his début as a cabaret entertainer on Monday, when he is booked to appear as an evening dress "turn" at the Trocadero Restaurant for a fortnight.

Mr. Tilden is apparently unconcerned over his latest unfortunate theatrical venture. The play in which he was acting closed after a preliminary tour of the provinces.

BRINGS JERSEY CASE INTO RADIO HEARING

Senator Kean Asks Why New York High-Power Stations Move to His State.

TERRELL EXPLAINS CHANGE

Radio Division Chief Also Declares That One Board Should Handle All Communications.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—The New Jersey broadcasting situation was injected today into the Senate hearing on the Couzens general communications commission bill, during the examination of William D. Terrell, chief of the Radio Division of the Department of Commerce, when Senator Kean of that State asked why most of the New York City broadcasting stations were shifting their transmitters to New Jersey and retaining their studios in New York. He asserted that the presence of high-powered transmitters in New Jersey is blanketing part of the State, and that smaller stations cannot be heard.

Senator Wagner of New York asked Senator Kean what small stations he had in mind. Mr. Kean could not recall the exact stations.

Mr. Terrell explained that the marshland of New Jersey appeared to be more suitable for radio transmission than the sandy ground of Long Island. He contended that a high-power transmitter would not "blanket" a radius of more than two miles.

William C. Green, employed by the Senate Interstate Commerce Committee for the hearings on the Couzens bill, cross-examined Mr. Terrell and obtained his statement that the radio act should be amended to give equality of frequencies in the five radio zones.

Says Entire Equality Is Impossible.

He said it was practically impossible to have also equality of power, number of stations and "time on the air." Equality in all these matters "cannot be worked out satisfactorily," he said.

The functions of the Radio Division, of which he is the head, were explained by Mr. Terrell, as they have existed since the organization of the Radio Commission in 1927. He said that his division has police duty in the air, inspects radio on ships, makes inspections for granting licenses, monitors broadcasting stations to ascertain whether they are on their frequencies and reports results to the Radio Commission.

The Radio Division and the commission, Mr. Terrell declared, were cooperating very closely. He said there would be no difficulty in combining the work of the Radio Division with a general communications commission, as proposed by the Couzens bill, and did not think it would disrupt the work of that division. He was convinced that all radio administration should be under a single body and that it would make for "greater efficiency."

Celler Introduces Radio Bill.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4 (AP).—While the radio hearing proceeded before the Senate committee today Representative Celler of New York introduced a bill providing for a commission of five members to regulate interstate telegraph and radio communication and the transmission of electrical energy.

Mr. Celler's bill would provide for the appointment of the commission by the President, with the approval of the Senate, each member to be chosen from one of five zones, into which the United States and its possessions would be divided by the measure.

The commissioners would serve terms ranging from two to six years at an annual salary of $10,000, but their successors would continue in office for six years.

State Seeks William H. Boyes as Model of His Strange Craft Reappears Here.

The reappearance in a downtown show window of the model of the strange aircraft which William H. Boyes, inventor, said recently would "cross the Atlantic with 1,000 passengers," caused Assistant State Attorney General Watson Washburn to renew yesterday his search for Boyes, who has not been heard from since the latter part of July.

Acting on several complaints of persons who had purchased stock from Boyes in the William H. Boyes Airship Company, Mr. Washburn subpoenaed Boyes and, after questioning him, told him to incorporate his company and deliver stock to those who had paid for it. An adjournment of the matter was then taken for one month, during which an actual machine of the type displayed by Boyes as a model was to be constructed.

The "month of grace," as Mr. Washburn called it, ended in August, but Boyes did not reappear. Efforts to locate him failed, and Mr. Washburn said he had thought it likely that Boyes had taken his model with him and that New York would hear no more of either. Then the model reappeared in the show window and the search for Boyes is on again.

Boyes, who gave his home address as 57 Herkimer Street, Brooklyn, told Mr. Washburn his aircraft had been patented in 1929 and that he had received about $5,000 in subscriptions and donations through the sale of postcards and literature to aid him in promoting his invention.

Boyes declared his aircraft would rise vertically from ground or water, would remain stationary in mid-air and would land with equal ease and safety on land or water. He said the craft could carry 1,000 passengers or eighty airplanes.

The model shows four duralumin gas bags, between which runs a long cabin. It indicates that an elevator could be lowered by cables to take on passengers. The actual machine, it was said, would have twenty-four motors, with a total of 7,200 horsepower and twenty-four propellers. The circulars set forth that it could be propelled backward or forward at the same speed.

SAYS SCHOOLS DISTORT DEMOCRACY'S MEANING

Dr. Kieran at Hunter Phi Beta Kappa Service Warns of Standardization as Menace to Learning.

"There can be no democracy of thought except among the unthinking," declared Dr. James M. Kieran, president of Hunter College in a protest against the standardization of colleges at the initiation of junior members into Phi Beta Kappa in a formal chapel service yesterday.

"When the college world adopts this as a major premise the menace of standardization will be destroyed. Perhaps our political philosophy has somewhat clouded our vision. We have rightly emphasized democracy in education as in government, but in so doing we have distorted its real meaning. College degrees have come to be merely means of labeling a large class. We have encouraged a kind of leveling of all ranks of educated college-bred men and women."

Dr. Kieran then criticized the recent epidemic of "youngest presidents" of colleges and universities.

Hunter College, the president asserted, possessed the chief means of attaining the true objectives of a college—a student body that lacked neither earnestness nor ability and a staff fully competent to direct.

'CHAMELEON' CARS SHOWN.

Cars finished in colors that change under varying lights are drawing the attention of visitors at the twenty-fifth annual showing of the Automobile Salon, being held this week at the Commodore. Exhibitors continued yesterday to report "a considerable volume" of retail sales. All the cars shown are custom-built, with bodies by American and European coachwork makers.

The color changes effected in these "chameleon" cars include blue to gray and vice versa, black to blue, tan to yellow, &c., in addition to varying shades of individual colors. The exposition will continue until Saturday, daily from 10 A. M. to 11 P. M.

MUSIC-RADIO DEAL AIMS BLOW AT JAZZ

MELODY TO OUST "NOISE"

Policy of New Concern Announced as Improvement of Music in General.

Radio and music became more closely allied yesterday by the organization of a new music publishing company affecting two leading music publishers, Carl Fischer, Inc., and Leo Feist, Inc., and the National Broadcasting Company, the third incorporator. The organization is to be known as the Radio Music Company. Incorporation papers were filed in Albany yesterday.

E. C. Mills, former chairman of the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers, is president of the company, the offices of which are at 711 Fifth Avenue, the headquarters of the National Broadcasting Company. B. F. Bitner and Walter S. Fischer are the vice presidents.

"The operating policy of the organization will be almost revolutionary," said Mr. Mills. "While in the final analysis the Radio Music Company will be a commercial music publishing venture, nevertheless the scope of its activities will be so broad as to have the real objective not primarily in profits but in making an active and intelligent use of the tremendous facilities of the NBC system placed at its disposal for the purpose of enhancing and improving the whole trend of American music.

"The new firm will have its influence in putting jazz in the background of the American musical picture. We have had perhaps too much jazz, and as there is no denying the influence of music upon the trend of the people's inclinations, it seems about time for some one to assume leadership in a movement away from jazz. I think we should go back to melody and let it serve instead of noise to give us the inspiration which we expect from music."

M. H. Aylesworth, president of the National Broadcasting Company, said that the new company was aligned with the foremost American composers, including writers of popular tunes and classical compositions.

Mr. Aylesworth is to be chairman of the board of the Radio Music Company. Others on the board include Paul D. Cravath, lawyer; John Golden, producer; David Sarnoff, executive vice president, Radio Corporation of America; S. L. Rothafel (Roxy), managing director Roxy Theatre; E. E. Shumaker, president Radio Victor Corporation; Hiram S. Brown, president Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation; Leo Feist, president Leo Feist, Inc.; E. C. Mills; H. P. Davis, vice president, Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Company; B. F. Bitner, vice president and general manager, Leo Feist, Inc., and Walter S. Fischer, president, Carl Fischer, Inc.

LORD SLATED FOR SENATE.

Assemblyman Is to Be Named to Succeed the Late B. R. Wales.

Assemblyman Bert Lord of Chenango County will be nominated by the Republicans of the Fortieth Senate District, composed of Broome, Chenango and Cortland Counties, to succeed State Senator B. Roger Wales, who died recently. The late Senator Wales was a resident of Broome County.

The nomination was offered to Mrs. Wales, but she declined. Assemblyman Lord was then selected for the nomination. The vacancy is to be filled at an extraordinary election, called by Governor Roosevelt for Jan. 3.

Mr. Lord has served in the Assembly continuously since 1924 and prior to that time saw service there from 1915 to 1921. During his absence from the Assembly, Mr. Lord was a Deputy Tax Commissioner and director of the New York State Motor Vehicle Bureau.

MEXICAN HAS NO FEAR OF IMMIGRATION ROW

Arturo M. Elias, on Mission to Meet General Calles, Says It Will Be 'Easily Adjusted.'

Mexican-American immigration difficulties can be "easily adjusted" and Mexicans have "an amiable feeling" toward the United States, according to Arturo M. Elias, Director General of the Mexican Postoffice, who arrived in New York yesterday with a party of twelve of his countrymen.

The group is here in a "purely unofficial capacity," Mr. Elias said, to greet General Pluarcho Elias Calles, former President of Mexico, who will arrive on the Bremen about Dec. 10.

The health of General Calles, who has been in Europe for a rest cure since August, is greatly improved, Mr. Elias ssaid he had been informed. Upon his return to this country, the former President, who has been a controlling factor in Mexican politics for many years, is expected to depart at once for Mexico. He would not stop at Washington for a conference there with President Hoover and Pascual Ortiz Rubio, President-elect of Mexico, Mr. Elias declared.

Mr. Elias was for some years Mexican Consul General at New York and is a half-brother of General Calles. He said General Calles on his return to Mexico would hold no political office, but would confine himself to a rehabilitation of the Mexican railroads.

Another member of the party is Colonel Pablo Sidar, Mexico's best-known flier, who completed an aerial tour of South America last month. Others in the group are General Arturo Bernal, Chief of Staff of the War Department; Filiberto Gomez, Governor of the State of Mexico; General Saturnino Cedillo, Governor of San Luis Potosi; Alberto Tejeda, Governor of the State of Vera Cruz, and a number of Congressmen and business men.

NO FINER GIFT THAN A

SCHMIDLAPP WILL CHALLENGED IN SUIT

Validity of Testament Left by Son of Cincinnati Financier Is Questioned in Action.

ESTATE WORTH $2,000,000

The New York Supreme Court has been asked to determine the validity of the will of W. Horace Schmidlapp, son of the late Jacob G. Schmidlapp, financier and political leader in Cincinnati, and brother of Carl J. Schmidlapp, vice-president of the Chase National Bank, under which an estate of more than $2,000,000 is to go equally to Cornell University, the Sigma Chi Fraternity chapter at Cornell, and the University of Cincinnati if his wife and four children contest the will, it was learned yesterday.

The suit has been filed by the Bankers Trust Company as trustee of a fund created by Jacob G. Schmidlapp on Jan. 14, 1915, from which he had the income during his lifetime and which went to his sons, Carl J. and W. Horace Schmidlapp, upon his death. The action is brought against Mrs. Jean N. Schmidlapp, widow of Horace, of Cincinnati, who is a daughter of the late Lawrence Maxwell, prominent attorney of Cincinnati, and her four children, Lawrence, Jacob, Carl, and W. Horace Schmidlapp Jr.

The complaint said that W. Horace Schmidlapp died last Jan. 28 while on a Southern cruise, and that by his will, filed for probate in Cincinnati, he attempts to dispose of half the trust fund left by his father, on the ground that the trust deed provided for the distribution of his share of the fund upon his death. His will leaves $650,000 in cash to his wife and divides the residuary estate among the four sons.

Rose Krier, formerly a saleswoman in a Cincinnati department store, to whom Mr. Schmidlapp was known to have been attentive for years, received $100,000 cash with the suggestion that she consult with the trust officer of the Central Trust Office of Cincinnati as to investing it, or with John H. Druffel and Graham P. Hunt, who had been personal attorneys for Mr. Schmidlapp. A trust fund of $250,000 was also left for Miss Krier, from which she is to have the income until she dies or marries, after which the fund is to become part of the estate. She also received the contents of the Schmidlapp apartment at 983 Park Avenue, except the furnishings in Mr. Schmidlapp's laboratory there, which were left to his secretary, William J. F. Roll, together with $50,000 in cash and the testator's stock in a moving picture company.

In addition to a share of the residue to each son, Mr. Schmidlapp provided that $15,000 was to go to each if he had completed the required credits leading to a degree from Cornell before reaching the age of 25 years. The will provided that if the sons attended another university with his approval, and got the necessary number of credits for a degree, that $7,500 should be paid.

The Bankers Trust Company, in applying for a decree as to the legality of the will in attempting to distribute half the principal of the trust fund, said that it was unable to turn over the share of the fund belonging to the Schmidlapp estate because of doubt as to the validity of the will under the laws of Ohio. In that State it is subject to contest within one year after it was admitted to probate last May 15, or within a year after the sons, who are under age, attain a majority.

At the time of Mr. Schmidlapp's death dispatches from Cincinnati said that his wife had been living apart from him for years and had filed a divorce action three years ago which she did not press because of the possibility that her husband would cut off his family if she got a decree.

ZEPPELIN CHIEFS PLAN TO PERMIT SMOKING

Will Allow It if the Necessary Helium Can Be Obtained Here —New Ship Must Be Larger.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, Germany, Dec. 4.—Zeppelin passengers will in the future be permitted to indulge in smoking, providing the Zeppelin Company can obtain the necessary quantities of helium gas from the United States, where negotiations are now being carried on.

In view of the fact that helium has less lifting power than hydrogen, the new Zeppelin will be built slightly larger than originally planned. In order not to loose any considerable quantity of the expensive helium, double compartments will be constructed, of which the lower will contain helium and the smaller compartments arranged above will be filled with hydrogen, which can be blown off when the airship mounts or lands.

The fuel gas will be kept in compartments below those with the helium, and between the latter will be constructed the passengers' gondolas and smoking room.

Now! Milk of Magnesia Wafers

for Sour Acid Stomach

Instantly neutralize acid, stop indigestion, heartburn, headache, with a pleasant-tasting wafer

Everybody knows how milk of magnesia quickly neutralizes stomach acidity. It never fails to give instant relief. It is so mild that doctors prescribe it for infants. But millions object to its unpleasant "earthy" taste.

Now science has found a way to give you true milk of magnesia in pleasant wafer form. A tasty tablet that you chew anytime, anywhere. These tablets are called Milnesia Wafers. Delicately flavored with wintergreen, they are as easy to take as a candy lozenge.

Many physicians prescribe Milnesia Wafers in place of old-style liquid magnesia. Undiluted with water, Milnesia Wafers form a protective alkaline film that instantly neutralizes excess stomach acid. That's why they are most effective when used for unpleasant breath, sour stomach, sick headache, indigestion, biliousness and constipation.

Milnesia Wafers are so pleasant, so amazingly effective that they have taken the place of unscientific stomach remedies, soda, indigestion powders and dyspepsia tablets, in thousands of homes.

All druggists carry Milnesia Wafers at 60c a package and the handy vest pocket package at 20c.

Special to The New York Times.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 4.—Bill Mehlhorn, runner-up in the Professional Golfers' Association championship a few years ago, was eliminated by Al Espinosa of Chicago, runner-up last year, in a forty-hole match that featured the second round of the P. G. A. tournament at the Hillcrest Country Club today. The match was decided by a full stymie on the fourth extra green.

Mehlhorn, until recently the playing representative of the Fenimore Country Club in New York, now competing unattached, held a lead of two holes with four to go, but he lost the thirty-third hole by taking three putts. Espinosa ran down a twelve-foot putt for a 2 on the thirty-fourth green.

They halved the next two holes and the first three extra holes. On the fortieth, a hole measuring 565 yards, both were on the green in three shots, some distance from the cup. Mehlhorn's long approach putt on the slanting green ran about five feet below the hole. He never had a chance to make the putt, for Espinosa's try for a 4 stopped directly in his line, about three inches short of the hole, a perfect stymie.

Homebred Golfers Survive.

The results of the eight matches played today, all of them involving American-born players, leave eight homebred golfers, six of whom were born in New York, to compete in the quarter-finals tomorrow. Six of the eight were members of this year's Ryder Cup team.

In third round matches tomorrow Espinosa will play Al Watrous of Detroit, who came home in 31 this morning for a splendid 66 to run up a lead that gave him a one-sided victory over Larry Nabholtz of Houston, Tex. In the same half of the draw Johnny Farrell, who won over Henry Ciuci today, will meet Craig Wood of the Forest Hill Field Club, Bloomfield, N. J., victor over Neil Christian, Portland, Ore.

In the lower half the four survivors include Leo Diegel, the present champion; Gene Sarazen and Walter Hagen, who between them held the title every year from 1922 to 1928, inclusive and Tony Manero, unattached pro from Elmsford, N. Y. Diegel plays Sarazen tomorrow and the winner will meet Hagen in the semi-final round Friday, provided Tagen is not beaten in his match with Manero. Manero put out Bobby Cruickshank in the P. G. A. championship at Dallas two years ago, but Hagenn beat him, 10 and 9, the next day. At Baltimore last year Manero lost to Diegel in the first round, 9 and 8.

Beats Schultz, 6 and 5.

Manero won today by 6 and 5 over Eddie Schultz of the Troy Country Club. Tony scored a 71 to be 6 up in the morning, and he went out in 35 this afternoon.

Hagen had a 69 this morning to gain a lead of 5 up on Charley Guest of Los Angeles, and the match ended 5 and 4. Diegel again won by a one-sided score of 10 and 9, his victim today being Herman Barron of the Tamarack Club, Port Chester, N. Y.

Barron underwent a minor operation on the foot before teeing off this morning and it proved a severe handicap to him on the double walk over the hilly course. Diegel again was in brilliant scoring form. He came home in 33 for a 70 this morning, and went to luncheon 8 up.

Sarazen was only 1 up at noon against the long-driving local professional, Fred Morrison, the medalist, but he increased his lead to 3 up at the twenty-seventh hole and ended the match in spectacular fashion on the thirty-fourth green when he holed a chip shot for a half.

The fight between Farrell and Ciuci was one of the keenest of the day, although neither was playing his short game as well as usual. It was surprising to see these two metropolitan stars, both of whom ordinarily play fine golf from eighty yards in, take three and four strokes to hole out from points on and around the greens. Ciuci's approaching especially was bad, and had he not holed two shots on the incoming play from just off the green, one with a putter and the other a chip, he would not have finished this morning play all square.

Farrell Squares Match.

Farrell lost the first hole by overapproaching. He got a two on the second, but lost the drive-and-pitch third hole to a 5. On the fourth both took three putts from less than 20 feet. Ciuci became 2 up by holing a 3 on the fifth but Farrell got down a long putt for a 2 on the sixth. Both approached badly on the eighth, but Farrell, although he took three more from off the green, squared the match with a 5, Ciuci taking four strokes to finish the hole.

On the tenth Ciuci putted in from off the green. Henry ran down a twelve-footer to be 2 up on the eleventh, but his strokes to the greens were trapped on both the twelfth and thirteenth and Farrell was able to square the match with pars. Ciuci lay only six feet from the pin to 2 on the 523-yard fourteenth, but he failed to hole the putt, and Farrell, making a splendid recovery, after a trapped second, got a half in 4.

Both were trapped on the 150-yard sixteenth. Farrell took a 4, and Ciuci, getting out of the sand but not out of the grassy part of the bunker on his second, chipped in for a winning 3.

Ciuci's one-hole lead was thrown away when he missed a short pitch shot on the seventeenth. The eighteenth was halved in 4s, both being home in 2.

Sinks Six-Footer for Birdie.

Ciuci won the first hole in the afternoon by sinking a six-foot putt for a birdie. He took three putts on the twentieth green and lost that hole. A drive which came to rest in a tree basin cost Farrell a 5 on the twenty-first hole, putting him 1 down. Ciuci got a half on the twenty-second by sinking a four-foot putt after exploding out of a trap which caught his third shot. On the twenty-third Henry overapproached and the match was all square again. Farrell then won two more holes. He got the par 3 243-yard twenty-fourth when Ciuci put one out of bounds. On the next Johnny dropped a nine-foot putt for a 3. They halved the next five holes in par figures.

Ciuci took three putts on the thirty-first hole, leaving him 3 down with 5 to go. Then the little Connecticut golfer put two great wood shots together on the 523-yard thirty-second and holed a four-foot putt for an eagle 3. On the next hole, Farrell was trapped, and he lost that hole, 5 to 4. On the 150-yard thirty-fourth, Ciuci's tee shot was only ten feet from the hole, and Farrell was thirty-five or forty feet away.

There seemed to be a strong possibility the match would be squared, but Farrell's putt ran clear across the green and into the hole for a 2. Ciuci missed his ten-footer, and the match ended when the next hole was halved in 4s.

Sarazen in Driving Form.

Morrison is one of the longest drivers among the Pacific Coast pros, but there was little difference between his tee shots and those of Sarazen. Neither played particularly well on the first eighteen. Morrison messed up the short second hole, and Sarazen sank a fine putt on the fourth to become 2 up. He dropped an eight-footer for another birdie on the fifth, making him 3 up.

Gene lost one hole of this early lead when Morrison holed out from off the green on the seventh, but went to 3 up again on the eighth, where Morrison's second was trapped. The New Yorker three-putted the ninth green and lost the tenth to Morrison's birdie 3.

Now only 1 up, Sarazen went over the green on his second shot on No. 14, 523 yards, and lost the hole to Morrison's 4. The short sixteenth was halved in 4s, Sarazen being short and Morrison over. Morrison's drive on the eighteenth was in a tree basin, putting him 1 down at the half-way mark.

Sarazen Increases Lead.

A 36 going out in the afternoon was good enough to increase Sarazen's lead to 3 up. A par on the twenty-eighth made him 4 up. Morrison being short on his second. Gene took a 5 on the twenty-ninth, but won the next hole when Morrison missed a short putt. They halved the thirty-first and thirty-second holes, but Sarazen picked up on the thirty-third after a bad drive and a missed second shot.

Three down with 3 to go, Morrison seemed to fair way to win back another hole when he got his 3 on the short thirty-fourth, but Sarazen, after being trapped on his tee shot and over the green on his second, sank a chip shot on the next from a distance of about twenty feet for a half that ended the match.

Wood won by 3 and 2 over Christian, holder of the Pacific Northwest open championship. After gaining a three-hole lead by going out in 33, Wood was pulled back to even on the early holes of the second nine, but he regained his lead by finishing 3, 3, 4 to win the last three holes from Christian.

Wood lost the second hole when his tee shot was to the left of the green, but Christian was in trouble on the third, fourth and sixth. That put him 2 down, and he holed a long, curling putt on the seventh green for a birdie to keep from going 3 down.

Trapped approaches on the eleventh and fourteenth lost Wood those holes and he also lost the twelfth to Christian's 2. On the sixteenth Wood had a deadly tee shot and his opponent was trapped. The Forest Hill pro had another approach inches from the cup on the seventeenth and he won the eighteenth when Christian took three to get down from a far corner of the green.

Christian Stages Rally.

Christian won back those three holes after playing only six holes in the afternoon, two as a result of ten-foot putts for birdies and one as a result of Wood's three-putting the twenty-first green. After squaring the match, Christian lost the twenty-fifth, twenty-sixth and twenty-seventh in succession to Wood's par. They played on practically even terms thereafter, each being 2 under 4s until the match ended on the thirty-fourth green.

Watrous came home in 31 this morning for an eighteen-hole total of 66 to become 5 up after he and Nabholtz had turned all square. Nabholtz was par for the round, but his pars were no good against the extraordinary putting Watrous flashed on four of the first five incoming holes. Watrous holed putts from five to twenty-five feet for birdies. He had a putt for a 3 on the home green. In the afternoon Watrous went out in 36 to increase his lead to 7 up, and the match ended two holes later.

MRS. MAXWELL LOSES IN PINEHURST GOLF

MISS WARING ALSO BEATEN

Last Year's Medalist Carries Match to 19th Hole to Lose to Mrs. Wadsworth.

PINEHURST, N. C., Dec. 4.—Upsets in the first match round of the ninth annual Carolina tournament for women today saw the elimination of Mrs. Gertrude S. Anderson of Hackensack and Mrs. Harry V. Maxwell of Spring Lake, defending champion. Miss Helen Waring of Yonkers, last year's medalist and another favorite, was also beaten, although the Yonkers girl staged a great comeback from five down at the twelfth to an extra hole, which she lost.

Mrs. Maxwell fell by 3 to 2 to Mrs. Emmet French of Youngstown, Ohio, wife of the professional star. Utterly unable to get her game together Mrs. Maxwell was 6 down at the turn.

Mrs. Sarah Fownes Wadsworth of Oakmont, Pittsburgh, defeated Miss Waring after a close call despite the fact that she was out in 38 and 4 up. Mrs. Wadsworth won the nineteenth with a 5, after the strain of letting a lead of five holes slip away.

The cards:

WOMEN GOLFERS ELECT OFFICIALS

Jersey Association Names Mrs. Uebelacker, Mrs. Voorhees and Mrs. Lee.

By LINCOLN A. WERDEN.

The first of the many golf association meetings which are scheduled in the metropolitan district during the next two months was held yesterday at the Hotel Pennsylvania, when fifty delegates attended the annual business session of the Women's New Jersey Golf Association.

Through the reports of the various committees, the tournament year was reviewed. Mrs. C. F. Uebelacker, admissions chairman, announced that there were now 363 members, fifty-one having been added, while twenty-two were dropped during the past twelve months. The tournament chairman, Mrs. E. E. Silvernail, sketched the results of the competitive events, and Miss Jane Brooks, treasurer, announced the treasury balance as $924.55.

The posts of only three officers were scheduled to be filled, and by unanimous vote Mrs. Uebelacker of Hackensack was elected vice president for two years; Mrs. Charles L. Voorhees of Baltusrol, admissions chairman, and Mrs. Jay Lee of Hackensack, chairman of the handicap committee. Mrs. E. N. Hodges of Raritan Valley, the president, presided.

The 1930 nominating committee was chosen as follows: Mrs. A. L. Ellis of Plainfield, Mrs. Walter MacGowan of Montclair, Mrs. J. H. Drake of Montclair and Miss Martha Parker of Spring Lake.

It was decided to institute an entry fee of $1 for the association championship and a number of clubs, including Richmond County, Glen Ridge, Montclair, Greenbrook, Plainfield, Essex County, Englewood and Rockland offered their courses for association tournaments. Hackensack offered its links for the association championship.

At a recent meeting of members of the Wykagyl Country Club, New Rochelle, Robert M. Miller was elected president, Louis E. Smith, vice president; Frank A. Buckman, treasurer, and Clarence P. Odell, secretary. Work will soon start on the construction of the club's new open air swimming pool adjacent to the clubhouse, on the present tenth fairway. The project means that the tenth hole will be shortened to a 140-yard mashie hole. The plans have received enthusiastic support of the members.

WILLIAMSON SCORES WITH STATZELL IN GOLF

Pair Defeats Gardner and Johnson in Final of Match on Pinehurst Links.

PINEHURST, N. C., Dec. 4.—G. W. Statzell of Philadelphia and J. P. Williamson of Wilkes-Barre came through to victory today in a tournament held by the Tin Whistlers in which a field of forty-eight played best and worst ball in pairs. In the final Statzell and Williamson defeated L. L. Gardner of Baltimore and W. Irving Johnson of Saco, Me., by 6 and 4.

The summaries:

YALE CLUB LOSES TO COLUMBIA CLUB

Blue and White Scores Fourth Straight Triumph, 6-1, in Title Squash Play.

CRESCENT A. C. WINS, 4-3

Defeats New York A. C., and Five Are Now Tied for Second Place —Wolf Beats Larigan.

By ALLISON DANZIG.

Columbia University Club's championship Class A squash tennis team drew further in the lead in the Metropolitan League championship last night when the Blue and White representatives triumphed by 6 matches to 1 at the Yale Club, while the New York A. C. was being defeated by 4 to 3 at the Crescent A. C.

This was the fourth successive triumph for the proteges of Ernest Clark and, as a result of the defeat of the Winged Foot players, five teams are now tied for second place with two victories and two defeats each. In the other two matches the Princeton Club won from Fraternity on the former's courts at 6 to 1, and Harvard made a clean sweep over the visiting Park Avenue team, which was lacking the services of its No. 1 player, Frank A. Sieverman Jr.

The feature match of last night's competition saw Harry Wolf of the New York A. C. score a brilliant victory over Edward R. Larigan, the third ranking player of the country, in the recent Fall scratch tournament at the New York A. C., Larigan vanquished the young star from Montclair, N. J. In their return meeting, however, Wolf rose to far greater heights and took the match in two games at 15—7, 15—11.

Larigan never had a look-in in the opening chapter and it was not until the score had gone 9—1 against him in the second that the Crescent star really found himself. From this point on he made a terrific fight and it looked for a while as though he would carry the play to three games as he drew up to 11—13. But Wolf regained control and won the next two points once he had gained hand-in to end the match.

Almost every match in this series was bitterly fought and it was only by the barest margin that the New York A. C. failed to take the honors. With the score tied at 3-all, E. W. Kleinert of Crescent and Mile Westerfield went into the court, and Kleinert came through after losing the opening game and being carried to 18—14 in the second.

THE SUMMARIES.

Columbia 6, Yale 1.

Rowland S. Haines, Columbia, defeated Henry C. Thorne, 15—9, 8—15, 15—9; Jerome H. Isbrock, Columbia, defeated Sergius Reid Jr., 15—3, 15—16; W. Murray Lee, Columbia, defeated H. Victor Crawford, 12—11, 15—9; Dallas W. Haines, Columbia, defeated H. L. Larner, 15—4, 15—13; Kenneth Ward, Yale, defeated Gardner Hirons, 16—18, 15—9, 15—9; E. G. McLaughlin, Columbia, defeated J. G. Davidson, 15—8, 15—9; R. Reuter, Columbia, defeated L. H. Sonnborn, 15—12, 4—15, 15—11.

Fordham Re-elects Siano Captain; Burke Named at Manhattan

SIANO RE-ELECTED FORDHAM CAPTAIN

Will Pilot Maroon Football Team for Another Season—MacDwyer New Manager.

17 GET VARSITY LETTERS

16 Players Are on Honored List—Kloppenburg and Cannella to Be Graduated in June.

At a meeting of the members of the undefeated Fordham football team yesterday, Captain Tom Siano, '31, star centre, was re-elected to hold the same position for next season. It was also announced by the Athletic Association that varsity letters have been awarded to sixteen football players and V. A. Meehan, '30, manager.

The re-election of Captain Siano came as no surprise, for the fiery Maroon leader is one of the most popular students among the undergraduates at Fordham.

Although comparatively small for the gridiron game, Captain Siano has won a place among the foremost centres in the country. Despite his size, for the Maroon leader weighs only 165 pounds and is 5 feet 8 inches tall, Siano has been a bulwark of strength in the Fordham line. The Fordham captain hails from Waltham, Mass., and before coming to Fordham played football with the Waltham High School eleven.

The following are the players who have received letters for their work during the past season:

Captain Siano, Francis Bartos, John Cannella, John Conway, Francis Davis, Adam Elcewicz, John Fisher, Francis Foley, Harry Kloppenburg, John Healey, Michael Miskinis, William McMahon, James Murphy, Charles Pieculewicz, Walter Tracey, Henry Wisniewski and V. A. Meehan, manager. Of these players only Kloppenburg and Cannella will be graduated in June.

The rule of the Fordham Athletic Association is that a football player, in order to win his varsity insignia, must take part in half the total number of periods in the designated letter games. There were six letter games on the Fordham schedule for the past season, namely, N. Y. U., Holy Cross, Davis and Elkins, West Virginia, Boston College and Bucknell.

Four of the Fordham letter winners played in every one of the twenty-four periods in the six letter contests. They are Captain Siano, centre; Pieculewicz, fullback; Murphy, halfback, and Wisniewski, guard.

Walter MacDwyer, '31, was chosen varsity football manager for the 1930 season and Clay Buckout, '32, was made assistant manager.

LEHIGH SOCCER TEAM DEFEATS LAFAYETTE

Strauss Brings His Season Scoring Total to 21, With Three Goals in 7-1 Victory.

Special to The New York Times.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Dec. 4.—Mort Strauss of Philadelphia, centre forward of the Lehigh soccer team, scored three goals today as the team defeated Lafayette by the score 7—1, making his season total 21 goals, which available statistics here show to be an individual record in intercollegiate soccer.

Lehigh got away to an early lead and held it to the end. Half-time found the Bethlehem collegians leading 4—1.

The line-up:

Lehigh (7).		Lafayette (1).

CARNEGIE DRILLS IN SNOW.

Squad to Leave Saturday for Game With Southern California.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Dec. 4.—A snow-covered field failed to retard Carnegie Tech's football drill today in preparation for the game with Southern California on Dec. 14 at Los Angeles.

Coach Bob Waddell concentrated on the running attack. Armentrout, big sophomore halfback, whose crashing efforts gained many yards against N. Y. U., is the lad around whom the coaches are attempting to build a running offensive.

The squad will start for Los Angeles Saturday night. The players who are to make the journey will be named tomorrow. At first it was planned to take only twenty-two men, but it is now believed that the entire squad of twenty-seven will go to the Coast.

18 GET FOOTBALL LETTERS.

Nine Conn. Aggie Seniors Among the Players Honored.

Special to The New York Times.

STORRS, Conn., Dec. 4.—Varsity football letters have been awarded to eighteen players, according to announcement made today by R. J. Guyer, director of the athletic department at Connecticut Agricultural College.

Nine of the men honored are seniors. They are Captain Flydal, tackle; fullback, Tombari; end, Lamoureux; quarterback, Groat; halfback, Stangle; guard, Ruffkess; guard, Ryan; halfback, Goebel; end, Christen. The others to receive letters are Harger, fullback; Libutzke, guard; Nalewalk, guard; Moore, centre; French, halfback; Murphy, halfback; Sternberg, guard; Nabrahams, guard and Rebman, tackle.

DIXON ELECTED CAPTAIN.

Boston College Eleven Chooses End as Leader for 1930.

Says Army-Notre Dame Game Could Fill Stadium Thrice

SOUTH BEND, Ind., Dec. 4 (AP).—The Army and Navy are not likely to resume football relations and the annual Army-Notre Dame classic is destined to replace it as one of the nation's traditional battles, Captain Biff Jones, retiring Army coach, stated today while visiting Notre Dame University.

"We could start the Army-Notre Dame game at 10 A. M., and fill the Yankee Stadium," he said. "The teams then could retire for lunch and meet before another capacity crowd at 2 P. M., topping that, they could play a night game before 85,000 more spectators, and still 100,000 fans would complain of no tickets."

Coach Jones said he will spend next year at an army commission school as a student, and will be back coaching in 1931. He did not say whether he would return to West Point.

MANHATTAN NAMES BURKE FOR CAPTAIN

Star Halfback Chosen to Lead the Jaspers Next Season, Succeeding Cronin.

WAS TEAM'S HIGH SCORER

New Leader Has Had Two Years of Varsity Experience—22 Will Get Letter Honors.

John (Leddy) Burke was unanimously elected to captain the 1930 football team of Manhattan College at a meeting of the letter men yesterday. Burke, who resides in Waterbury, Conn., has had two years of varsity experience.

During the past two seasons he has held the regular left halfback position for the Green and White and is rated one of the leading backs in the metropolitan district for his line plunging ability.

Previous to his entrance at Manhattan College three years ago, he had never played any football. During the past season he was high scorer for his team.

CONTESTS FOR 1930 LISTED BY COLGATE

Columbia, Syracuse and Brown Among Football Opponents on the Program.

Special to The New York Times.

HAMILTON, N. Y., Dec. 4.—Colgate's football schedule for next season, announced today by Graduate Manager William A. Reid, includes games with Columbia, Syracuse, Brown, Michigan State, Penn State and Lafayette.

Four of the nine games will be played at home. The home slate for next year is headed by Lafayette, which plays at Hamilton after a lapse of athletic relations since 1925, when the two elevens played to a 7-to-7 tie in Philadelphia. Mississippi College will be met for the first time in an intersectional game here Nov. 1. Next season's schedule marks the beginning of a three-year agreement with Penn State, the third game of which will be played here.

St. Lawrence, traditional opening game opponent of Colgate, has signed for two years, while return games with Lafayette and Michigan State have also been planned. Mississippi is the only newcomer on the schedule. A home game opponent for the open date on Oct. 4 will be announced soon.

The schedule:

Sept. 27, St. Lawrence at Hamilton.
Oct. 4, open (at Hamilton); 11, Lafayette at Hamilton; 18, Michigan State at Lansing; 25, Penn State at State College.
Nov. 1, Mississippi College at Hamilton; 8, Columbia at New York; 15, Syracuse at Syracuse; 27, Brown at Providence.

PENN STATE TO PLAY SERIES WITH COLGATE

Will Meet on State College Gridiron in 1930-31 and at Hamilton Following Season.

Special to The New York Times.

STATE COLLEGE, Pa., Dec. 4.—Scheduling of seven of the past season's opponents for next year's football card and the addition of a game with Colgate University were announced today by the board of control of athletics at Penn State in a preliminary report on the 1930 schedule.

The game with Colgate will be the first of a three-game series, the first two to be played at State College and the third at Hamilton in 1932. An open date from Nov. 15 remains. It had been expected that the Lions would play Pennsylvania at Franklin Field on that day.

Colgate will be the attraction for the alumni home-coming game and Syracuse will fill the other feature date on the home schedule Pennsylvania day.

Bucknell, Lafayette and Pittsburgh will be played away from home next Fall. The Lafayette and Pittsburgh games are regular contests on each season's program. The Bucknell game at Lewisburg will be in return for the many visits of the Bison team to State College.

Niagara University, Lebanon Valley and Marshall College will appear in order for the first three games on the home schedule.

Montclair Y. M. C. A. Victor.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTCLAIR, N. J., Dec. 4.—The Montclair Y. M. C. A. basketball team defeated the Garfield Y. M. C. A. quintet, 48 to 44, in a district league game tonight. The winners led at half time, 34 to 14.

SIANO, RE-ELECTED FORDHAM FOOTBALL CAPTAIN.

OREGON U. ELEVEN REACHES FLORIDA

Team That Will Oppose Florida Saturday Impresses in Jacksonville Workout.

OFF FOR MIAMI TONIGHT

Tennessee Will Finish Third Straight Season Without Defeat If It Beats South Carolina.

ATLANTA, Ga., Dec. 4 (AP).—The South, which in years past has had the Indian sign on Pacific Coast football, gets its first chance of the season against the Far Western brand this week. Oregon University, one of the Coast's major elevens, is taking the long journey to Miami, Fla., to try a Western comeback campaign against Florida on Saturday.

Coached by Major John J. McEwan, former Army coach, the Oregon squad, twenty-eight strong, reached Florida today and impressed Jacksonville fans in its workout. Oregon will leave for Miami tomorrow night. This game is the only intersectional duel on the closing day's card.

Tulane Eleven Versatile.

Coach Bernie Bierman's Tulane Green Wave won the Southern Conference championship with one of the most versatile scoring machines in the history of Dixie football. Winning nine straight games, Tulane employed every known method of football to crush its opponents.

A running and passing attack stopped Texas A. and M., Georgia Tech was beaten by a passing game, straight running plays won from Mississippi A. and M., passes and end runs demolished Auburn, a plunging game decided the Georgia contests, while line sweeps beat Sewanee and overhead flings routed Louisiana State.

If Tennessee, which was runner-up to Tulane for the conference title, wins its final game from South Carolina this week, Major Bob Neyland's Volunteers will have established one of the most unusual records in southern football.

Victory over the South Carolinians will enable Tennessee to wind up its third season undefeated. Only three ties mar what otherwise would be a perfect record. All of these ties can be laid to the Kentucky Wildcats.

Gardner to Referee Again.

Fred E. Gardner, former Cornell player, has arrived in Atlanta to referee the Georgia-Georgia Tech game at Athens Saturday for his fifth straight time. He has the distinction of having refereed every game these two schools have played since resuming athletic relations in 1925.

The annual meeting of the Southern Conference will be held at Baton Rouge, La., next week, and the annual meeting of the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association has been set for Mobile the following week.

Football drew the largest crowds in Dixie history this season. The Yale-Georgia game at Athens was played before more than 35,000 persons and the largest gate so far. However, Miami reports say 50,000 may watch Oregon and Florida clash.

ALBRIGHT SETS DATES.

Nine Games on Revised Football Schedule for Next Year.

READING, Pa., Dec. 4.—The revised Albright College football schedule for 1930, announced today by George W. Taylor of Philadelphia, chairman of the athletic council, has nine games, with four newcomers, Davis and Elkins, George Washington, Pennsylvania Military College and Thiel on the list.

The revised schedule:

Sept. 27, Thiel college.
Oct. 4, Bucknell at Lewisburg; 11, Mount St. Mary's; 18, Western Maryland; 25, Pennsylvania Military College.
Nov. 1, St. Joseph's at Overbrook; 8, Davis and Elkins; 15, George Washington; 27, Lebanon Valley.

Two Oklahoma Games Saturday.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Okla., Dec. 4 (AP).—Two more football games remain in this area before the 1929 season is officially closed. On Saturday the Haskell Indians will play Tulsa University in Tulsa and Davis and Elkins of West Virginia will meet Oklahoma City University here.

HARVARD TO PLAY TEXAS, VIRGINIA

New Opponents for the Crimson Are Announced on 1931 Football Schedule.

MAY NOT MEET HOLY CROSS

No Arrangements Made for Game With Crusaders—Hockey Contests This Year Listed.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 4.—The committee on regulation of athletics at Harvard University today announced the varsity hockey schedule for the coming Winter and also the varsity football schedule for 1931.

The football schedule for two years hence contains two new opponents and also two open dates. The University of Texas and University of Virginia will play the Crimson during the 1931 season, while the first game and the date before the Yale game remain open. It is likely that Holy Cross, which has faced Harvard about twenty-five times, will be dropped, as no arrangements have been completed for playing the Crusaders in 1931, although one is scheduled for next year, the game before the Yale contest, which was also the date of this year's encounter.

Thirteen contests have been arranged for the varsity hockey team for the coming season. On Dec. 28 the team will meet Toronto University at Madison Square Garden, New York, the same as last year. Michigan Tech and Marquette are two new teams to play Harvard, both games to be held in the Boston Garden.

The schedules:

Football.

Oct. 3, open; 10, New Hampshire University; 17, West Point at West Point; 24, University of Texas; 31, University of Virginia.
Nov. 7, Dartmouth; 14, open; 21, Yale.

Hockey.

Dec. 18, Boston University; 28, Toronto at New York City.
Jan. 2, Toronto; 8, Michigan Tech; 15, Boston University.
Feb. 5, Marquette University; 8, Dartmouth at Hanover; 12, University Club; 15, Dartmouth; 22, open.
March 1, Yale at New Haven; 8, Yale; 12, Yale (if necessary).

BASKETBALL SQUAD AT PENN IS REDUCED

14 Players Now Make Up the Varsity Personnel, Including Lobley and Brodbeck.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 4.—Coach Eddie McNichol today reduced his University of Pennsylvania varsity basketball squad to fourteen players; which now includes Captain Ed Lobley of Camden, N. J., and Al Brodbeck of Mount Vernon, N. Y., regular forwards last year.

The others who will probably be carried on the varsity squad throughout the season are:

Lobley and Ullrich, forwards; Sanders, centre; Magner and McNiff, guards.

Sanders comes from Madison, Wis., while Ullrich and McNiff are products of Trenton High School and York Collegiate Institute.

19 GAMES FOR SETON HALL

Basketball Prospects Receive Blow When Singleton Is Hurt.

Special to The New York Times.

SOUTH ORANGE, N. J., Dec. 4.—Nineteen games are on the Seton Hall College 1929-1930 basketball schedule, eleven being at home and eight away. Prospects for the season received a serious blow when Harry Singleton, crack guard of last year, fractured his elbow recently. He will be out until Jan. 15.

Captain Sal Basile and Tom McAteer are playing the forwards, Tom Liddy and Jack Kennedy, centre, and Ed Madjeski and Marty Byrne, guards.

The schedule:

Dec. 7, Brooklyn, C. C. N. Y., at home; 11, St. Francis, away; 14, Cooper Union, at home; 20, Columbia, away.
Jan. 4, Montclair Teachers, at home; 8, Long Island, at home; 11, St. Francis, at home; 15, Newport Naval Academy, at home; 17, St. Thomas, away; 31, St. Francis (Loretto, Pa.), at home.
Feb. 3, Montclair Teachers, away; 6, St. Stephen's, away; 8, St. Joseph's, at home; 13, St. Joseph's, away; 20, Canisius, at home.
March 1, Rutgers, away.

DOBIE TO REMAIN AS CORNELL COACH

Committee, While Stressing Alumni Dissatisfaction, Points to Percentage of Victories.

CHARGES NOT SUSTAINED

Report Finds Players in His Favor, but Adds He Is "Ill-Advised in His Public Relations."

The shake-up in Eastern football coaching ranks, although covering a wide range since the close of the college season, will not strike among the picturesque hills above Lake Cayuga, where Gil Dobie of Cornell holds forth.

It can be said, authoritatively now, the Associated Press reported yesterday, that Dobie, whose scalp was so cheerfully sought last Spring by alumni anxious to take the warpath, will remain in charge of football at Cornell at least until his present contract expires in 1933.

So far as alumni criticism is concerned, it has dissolved into a report by the committee of seventeen, made public yesterday in The Cornell Alumni News. It treats the football situation somewhat mildly, voicing criticism of conditions under Dobie, which have undergone a change, meanwhile, in connection with the rise of Cornell football fortunes in the season just completed.

Change in Coach's Demeanor.

Perhaps the most significant feature, so far as Dobie is concerned, is a distinct change from the veteran coach's one-time pessimism to a degree of optimism almost startling by contrast. The popular appellation of Gloomy Gil did not fit the coach, who prefaced the games with Dartmouth and Pennsylvania by asserting confidence in "a fighting Cornell team."

Cornell lost both of these games, but the Red forces were far from being routed. They beat Princeton and Columbia. Improvement in the gridiron material at Ithaca has warranted prospects of an even better showing in the big games next year.

"Cornell does not and never has possessed sufficient football atmosphere naturally to attract capable football material," notes the alumni report, adding: "The general attitude of Mr. Dobie, or at least the popular conception of him, with his all-pervading pessimism, has not only not contributed to a betterment of the situation but has tended to aggravate it."

Criticism of Methods.

The alumni committee concedes that "under Gilmour Dobie the Cornell football team has won a larger percentage of its games than under any other coach," but also finds a "lack of mutual good-will and cooperation among the agencies vital to success."

It also finds a "lack of confidence (among the alumni) and dissatisfaction that has become widespread," thereby causing the committee to doubt if Dobie will be able to teach "maximum effectiveness at Cornell." The committee feels that while the coach has not been entirely responsible, "he has been ill-advised in his public relations."

The report goes on to say that while regarding Dobie as a strict taskmaster, no substantiation was found of the many specific, bitter charges made against him regarding his treatment of the players. On the contrary, the committee, after a "particularly close study" of the situation with men "who have been associated with Mr. Dobie since his advent at Cornell," finds a "practically unanimous sentiment on the part of the men who have played under Mr. Dobie in favor of him as a man and of his methods."

Lauds Traditions of Cornell.

The famous Carnegie report gave Cornell a "clean bill" so far as recruiting and subsidizing of athletes was concerned, and the alumni report cites that "it has been one of the finest traditions of Cornell that there should be no proselyting of athletic material or other unethical overtures made to athletic prospects."

Nevertheless, the committee recommends "there should be a wholehearted cooperation on the part of the alumni with the committee on relations with preparatory schools, and that a wholesome interest in Cornell be stimulated, with a view to attracting to the university students who will be a credit to the institution."

IOWA OUSTS DAVID IN BIG TEN PLEA

Rules Basketball Captain Is Ineligible Because of Scholastic Deficiency.

MOVES FOR REINSTATEMENT

Committee of University Acts on Eve of Conference's Passing on Its Petition.

IOWA CITY, Iowa, Dec. 4 (AP).—The University of Iowa, on the eve of the most crucial time in its athletic history, today effected another bit of house-cleaning in an effort to convince the Western Conference that it is ready to be taken back into the conference circle.

It ruled Virgil David, captain of its basketball team, ineligible for competition due to scholastic deficiency. The chairman of its eligibility committee, Dean C. C. Williams, announced that there was little possibility that the cage star would be able to straighten out his class-room work, his record showing a failure in one subject for the last semester.

The move, regarded as one of the most drastic in Iowa's campaign to obtain reinstatement in the Big Ten, came less than seventy-two hours from the time the conference is expected to pass on Iowa's petition for restoration. It was the latest of numerous instances of Iowa's efforts to prove to the conference that it is sincere in trying to live up to the spirit and letter of Big Ten regulations.

Iowa already has placed in the hands of the faculty representatives of each of the nine other schools copies of the brief upon which it will base its plea for reinstatement. The 4,500-word statement asking that the Big Ten rescind its action proposing to sever athletic relations Jan. 1 was being studied by the other schools when the Iowa committee ousted Captain David.

E. H. Lauer, director of athletics, will leave tomorrow for Chicago. He will be followed later by Dean Williams and members of the coaching staff, all of whom will be on hand when Williams presents the Iowa plea to the conference.

BRAZIL, DETROIT STAR, WILL PLAY FOR EAST

Booma, Dartmouth, and Secrist, W. and J., Also Accept Bids—Harper, Harvard Back, Declines.

DETROIT, Dec. 4 (AP).—Lloyd Brazil, captain and star halfback of the University of Detroit football team, today accepted an invitation from Andy Kerr, Colgate coach, to play with the Eastern team in the annual East vs. West game at San Francisco on New Year's Day.

Two Brilliant Ends Accept.

HAMILTON, N. Y., Dec. 4 (AP).—Two outstanding wingmen of the past season in the East today accepted invitations to join Kerr's Eastern eleven. They are Deb Secrist of Washington and Jefferson and Hal Booma of Dartmouth.

Follows Guarnaccia's Course.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 4 (AP).—Wally Harper, Harvard fullback, today declined Kerr's invitation to play on the all-Eastern eleven.

Harper, thought one of the highest ranking students at Harvard, refrained from asking permission to make the long trip because he thought the long absence from classes would be a serious detriment to his scholastic progress. By so doing he followed the same course as that of Dave Guarnaccia, Harvard star, who received a similar invitation a year ago.

Coach Hanley Picks Eleven Men.

CHICAGO, Dec. 4 (AP).—Coach Dick Hanley of Northwestern University tonight issued invitations to eleven mid-Western football stars who, if they accept, will join with a like number to be selected by Coach Kerr to play against the Far West.

Hanley has invited Bronko Magurski and Bob Tanner of Minnesota, Lou Gordon and Forrest Peters of Illinois, Henry Anderson and Milton Anderson of Northwestern, Elmer Sleight and Ralph Welch of Purdue, Jack Cannon of Notre Dame, Willis Glassgow of Iowa and Ray Richards of Nebraska.

Hanley said the Eastern group would join the mid-West section of the squad at Evanston Dec. 16 for the initial practice and would leave that night for Palo Alto, Cal., where headquarters will be established.

Gordon and Peters Accept.

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Dec. 4 (AP).—Lou Gordon, tackle, and Forrest (Frosty) Peters, quarterback on the Illinois football team, tonight accepted invitations to play in the annual East-West game. They will play with the Eastern squad.

Five Western Players Suggested.

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 4 (AP).—Percy Locey, coach of the football team which will represent the West, today announced he had five Mid-western players under consideration.

The names were suggested to Locey by Dana Bible, coach of the University of Nebraska, at Locey's request. The players are Richards, Nebraska tackle; Sloan, Nebraska halfback; Waldorf, Missouri fullback; Schoonover, Arkansas end, and Churchill, Oklahoma end.

V. M. I. ELEVEN NAMES DUNN

Star Fullback Elected Leader of Virginia Champions.

LEXINGTON, Va., Dec. 4 (AP).—Monogram men of Virginia Military Institute's State championship football team today elected as captain their fullback, Roy Franklin Dunn, of Rocky Mount, N. C.

Dunn completed his second year on the team, starring as a line plunger on attack and as a savage tackler on defense. He led the V. M. I. scorers with seven touchdowns and one extra point for a total of 43 points. Dunn also played guard on the basketball team last year, and was a utility outfielder in baseball.

Manual Hockey Team Plays Scoreless Tie With Jamaica and Takes P.S.A.L. Lead

JAMAICA SIX TIES MANUAL TRAINING

Hockey Game in Brooklyn Ends in 0-0 Tie, but Manual Gains P. S. A. L. Lead.

ANDERSON, JAMAICA, STARS

New Utrecht Team Triumphs Over Stuyvesant by 7 to 0 in Another League Contest.

STANDING OF THE TEAMS.

School.	W.	L.	T.	Pts.
Manual Training	5	0	1	11
Erasmus Hall	5	0	0	10
Jamaica	4	1	1	9
New Utrecht	4	2	0	8
Thomas Jefferson	4	4	0	2
Franklin K. Lane	1	4	0	2
Stuyvesant	1	5	0	2
Boys High	0	5	0	0

The Manual Training High School hockey team gained undisputed possession of first place in the P. S. A. L. tournament when it battled to a scoreless tie with the defending champion Jamaica sextet before a capacity crowd of about 700 at the Brooklyn Ice Palace last night. In another league contest the New Utrecht High School six easily triumphed over the Stuyvesant High School representatives by 7 to 0.

Manual Training's lead over Erasmus Hall High School, which prior to last night's contest, was deadlocked for first place with Manual Training, is now one point. The leaders have won five games and tied one for a total of 11 points. Erasmus Hall is in second place with 10 points as the result of five straight triumphs, while Jamaica continued in third position with four victories, one defeat and one tied game, having a total of 9 points.

The Jamaica-Manual Training game was as fiercely contested as any in the tournament this season. While Manual Training outplayed Jamaica, the latter team fought bravely and succeeded in holding the Manual Training aggregation scoreless.

Executes Brilliant Saves.

The brilliant work of Eddie Anderson, Jamaica's goal tender, was directly responsible for saving Jamaica from defeat. Time and again Anderson executed difficult saves.

Play was continuously in the Jamaica territory. Led by Captain Buster Williams, Manual Training advanced on the Jamaica goalie, but Anderson's saves held Manual Training at bay. Especially was this true in the second period. For fully ten minutes in this half Manual Training kept the puck in Jamaica's territory.

In desperation the Jamaica players sent a five-man offense into the Manual Training territory during the final minutes of the game, leaving only the goal keeper to protect the net.

Although Jamaica was practically eliminated from the championship play-off between the teams, it still has a chance to qualify. Should Erasmus Hall turn in a victory over Manual Training, when the teams meet next week, Jamaica and Manual Training will be tied for second place and a play-off will be necessary. But if Erasmus Hall is defeated by Manual Training these two teams will qualify for the play-off series.

Luhrssen Leads New Utrecht.

Claus Luhrssen, New Utrecht centre, led his team's attack in the 7 to 0 victory over Stuyvesant, lone entry from Manhattan in the tourney. Luhrssen tallied four goals.

So. California to Represent West in Rose Bowl Football

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 4 (AP).—The University of Southern California will represent the West at the New Year's Day football game at the Rose Bowl, Pasadena, it was announced tonight. The invitation from the Tournament of Roses committee was received last night and acted on favorably tonight by the general athletic committee.

Officials of the university announced that the Eastern opponent for the blue ribbon football classic will be selected at a later date. Under the arrangements followed the Western school which accepts the invitation of the tournament of roses committee immediately takes over the management of the Rose Bowl and itself invites whatever Eastern team it decides to meet.

BROTHERHOOD FETES SCHOOL CAPTAINS

Sportsmanship Body Host to Young Football Leaders at Town Hall Club.

MARSTERS IS A SPEAKER

Game Should Be Played for Personal Enjoyment Alone, He Says —Milburn Is Toastmaster.

Football captains and captains-elect of virtually every high and prep school in Greater New York were guests of the Sportsmanship Brotherhood at a luncheon at the Town Hall Club yesterday. Football stars, leading figures in the athletic world and alumni of several Eastern colleges were among the 108 men and boys who attended.

At Marsters of Dartmouth was the principal speaker. He emphasized "football as the greatest teacher of sportsmanship" and gave illustrations of sportsmanship between players, between player and coach between opponents. "Football should be played for personal enjoyment alone," he also said.

Devereux Milburn, international polo star, second vice-president of the Sportsmanship Brotherhood, presided at the luncheon. Messages of regret as to their inability to attend were received by Daniel Chase, executive-director, from Matthew Woll, president; E. K. Hall, first vice-president of the brotherhood and chairman of the Football Rules Committee; and Ed Wittmer and Bill Barfield, Princeton football players.

Oliphant Among Guests.

Among those present were Ed Thorpe, football referee; Elmer Oliphant, former all-around West Point star; Ray Barbuti, former Syracuse and Olympic runner; Eddie Dooley, former Dartmouth football star; Leonard Grant, N. Y. U. captain; Gerald Allard, coach of the New York Aggies, and Dubinsky, C. C. N. Y. football player.

Many members of the Sportsmanship Brotherhood and leading athletic officials who attended were Julian S. Myrick and Jones W. Meserau, former presidents of the U. S. Tennis Association; Dr. A. K. Aldinger, P. S. A. L. director of health education; Rowland Patterson of the P. S. A. L., Lee Hanmer of the recreation department of the Russell Sage Foundation; Arthur Noran of the Playground Recreation Association of America; Harold G. Campbell, Associate Superintendent of Schools; Dr. Harold Parker, C. C. N. Y. football coach; William E. Hall, president of the Boys' Club Federation of America; Dr. E. C. Jessup, Charles C. Goodrich Walter Trumbull, William Butcher, Arthur Grahame, Frank P. Beal, Captain Charles Scully and Philip D. Fagans.

Schoolboy Captain Present.

Among the schoolboy captains and captains-elect who attended were Henry Capaforte and Leonard Frank, De Witt Clinton High; Bob Phillips, Poly Prep; James Walsh and Joseph Curan, All Hallows; Marc Garber and William Boylan, George Washington High; Charles Bergeron and Fred Sanara Jr., Marquand; John Regnan, Brooklyn Tech.

Also, Hugh Caldwell and James Stewart, McBurney; Arthur C. Harper Jr., Adelphi; William Herbst, Barnard; Thomas Bianchi and Walter Wilnikka Jr., Manual Training; Abraham Itzkowitz and Seymour Schlein, James Madison; John Dugan and George Akerstrom, Flushing; Anthony Farfaglia and Edward Walsh, Stuyvesant; John Butkus and Fred Maurer Jr., Boys High; Vincent McCarthy and Lawrence Hamer, Evander Childs High; Bob Sillery and Bill Behringer Jr., Jamaica High; Edward Yillen and Everett Frewin, Bryant.

MONROE TRIUMPHS, 25-15

Turns Back Morris as Seward Park Tops Commerce, 25-17—Other School Games.

The Alexander Hamilton High School basketball team went into first place in the Brooklyn Division of the P. S. A. L. by defeating Brooklyn Tech, 39 to 19, in the Boys High gymnasium yesterday. The victors led at half-time, 20 to 10. Previous to the game, four teams, Thomas Jefferson, Franklin K. Lane, New Utrecht and Hamilton were tied for the lead, each having four victories and one defeat. Hamilton has now won five of six P. S. A. L. games played.

Brooklyn Tech got off to a 4 to 0 lead in the first five minutes, but then Hamilton's attack started functioning when Lester Rosenthal tossed in a field goal. The losers soon lost the lead. Captain George Slott of Hamilton was high scorer with seven field goals and two fouls for 16 points.

UPSALA'S QUINTET SCORES BY 35-34

Rappaport Outstanding Star in Team's Triumph Over Rutgers Pharmacy Team.

Special to The New York Times.

EAST ORANGE, N. J., Dec. 4.—Upsala opened its basketball season tonight with a victory over Rutgers Pharmacy five, 35—34, at the East Orange High School gym.

Rappaport, substitute forward, was the outstanding player for the victors. His defensive work saved many points for the East Orange team, while he was tied for high scoring honors with Sam Klenett of the losers with twelve points each. The losers were leading at half time, 20—19.

PRINCETON WON 10 OF 18 FALL EVENTS

Varsity Harriers Scored Three Victories, Soccer Combination Five and Football Team Two.

FRESHMAN RECORD BETTER

Yearling Athletes Have Encountered Eight Triumphs, Three Defeats and a Tie So Far.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Dec. 4.—Although for the first time in Princeton's history the football eleven lost four games, the Tiger teams in the Fall sports have finished their campaigns with ten victories and one tie in eighteen encounters. The varsity cross-country team experienced an undefeated season.

The varsity harriers scored triumphs in all three of their dual meets with Rutgers, Lafayette and Yale. The victory at New Haven was the first triumph of a Tiger cross-country team over its ancient rival in eight years.

The soccer team, after winning its first five games, dropped the next three to Yale, Penn and Haverford.

Beat Amherst in Opener.

The eleven opened its season auspiciously with a victory over Amherst, but was defeated by Brown and Cornell on the two following Saturdays. Against the Navy the Tigers scored two touchdowns in the closing minutes of the game to tie the score. Chicago then defeated the Tigers, after which a fighting Lehigh team was vanquished. Yale's victory capped the season for the Tiger eleven.

The yearling teams in the Fall sports have compiled a more impressive seasonal record than the varsity with eight victories, three defeats and a tie so far. The freshman soccer team still has two games on its schedule. In their four games played, the cub soccer players have vanquished Poly Prep, Allentown Prep, Yale freshman and the Penn freshman.

The freshman football team scored victories over Mercersburg Academy, Brown yearlings and the Columbia cubs. The Eli yearlings routed the Tiger team in its only setback. The Tiger cubs completed their schedule with a 7—7 deadlock with the undefeated Dartmouth freshman.

James Was Freshman Star.

A great part of the success of the yearling eleven was due to the versatile playing of Captain Jack James, who scored more than half of his team's points from his halfback position.

The freshman harriers experienced a poor season, suffering reversals in dual meets with St. Benedict's and Lafayette freshman, after winning from the Rutgers yearlings. They concluded their season by finishing last in the intercollegiates in New York.

PROGRESS CLUB WINS.

Team Makes Clean Sweep of Its Matches With City A. C.

The Progress Handball Team, 1 West Eighty-eighth Street, made a clean sweep of its matches with the City A. C., 60 West Forty-fifth Street, on the Progress Club courts last night.

The summary:

Doubles Matches—Ralph Lossler and Frank Neranberg defeated Dr. Sweitzer and A. Sappesky, Herbert Aubell and Perry Sprong defeated Phil Brassky and Abe Frankel. Singles—Neranberg defeated Frankel.

EGAN BOWLERS SCORE.

Bayonne Team Defeats Greenville in League Match at Thum's.

The Egan Association team of Bayonne defeated the Greenville team of Jersey City two out of three games in the American National Bowling League tournament at Thum's White Elephant Alleys last night. The scores were 938,1010,884 to 887,1001,1026. Sam Sherer of the Egan team was high average man with 211.

CRESCENT A. C. FIVE RALLIES TO TRIUMPH

Goal and Foul Scored by Roes in Last 3 Minutes Beat Warinanco, 25-24.

LOSERS IN LEAD AT HALF

Crescents' Attack Then Gradually Overtakes Rivals in Contest in Home Gym.

The Crescent A. C. basketball team opened its season last night, defeating the Warinanco A. C. quintet of Elizabeth, 25 to 24, in the Crescent gymnasium.

Crescent staged a gallant comeback in the second half to down the visitors, who led at half time, 17 to 10. With three minutes to play Warinanco led, 24 to 22, but a field goal and a foul by Johnny Roes gave the Crescents victory.

In the preliminary game, the Crescent A. C. reserves defeated the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church five, 52 to 19.

PEDDIE ELEVEN NAMED N. J. PREP CHAMPION

Seton Hall Team Is Placed Second by the State Athletic Association.

The New Jersey State Athletic Association last night designated the football team of Peddie Institute at Hightstown the prep school champion of the State, according to The Associated Press. Both Peddie and Seton Hall of South Orange came through the season without a defeat or tie. The South Orange team was placed second.

The association on Monday night awarded a tie in the Class A high school championship between Nutley and Asbury Park.

In the prep school class Lawrenceville Prep was placed third; St. Benedict's, Newark, fourth; and Princeton Prep fifth. In Class B the championship was awarded to the Kingsley Prep team, which won all its games within its class, losing only to Blair Academy. Second place was awarded to Morristown and third to St. Cecelia.

Dover was designated champion of North Jersey in Class B; Somerville in Central Jersey; and Burlington in South Jersey.

TABERSKI LEADS SEABACK.

Breaks Even in Two Blocks, but Is Ahead by 754 to 715.

Although he broke even in the two blocks played yesterday, Frank Taberski gained the lead in his pocket billiard match against Charles Seaback at the Strand Academy. Taberski now has a score of 754 to 715. Each player has won three blocks, but the match, which is for 1,500 points in twelve blocks, will be decided upon the point basis.

In the afternoon session Taberski was in fine form and ran 212 to Seaback's 80. The match went twenty innings and Taberski had a high run of 48 to end of 34 for his opponent. In the evening session Seaback triumphed by 153 to 121 in seventeen innings and had a high run of 31 to a cluster of 29 for Taberski.

LAYTON EXTENDS HIS LEAD.

Takes 5th and 6th Blocks of Cue Match to Top Cochran, 800-242.

Johnny Layton, world's three-cushion billiards champion, increased his lead over Welker Cochran by capturing the fifth and sixth blocks of their match at Dwyer's Broadway Academy yesterday. Layton now leads, 800 points to 242.

In the afternoon Layton triumphed, 50 to 36, in forty-two innings, each having a high run of 5. At night Layton also won, 50 to 40, in forty-six innings, Layton's best cluster was 5 and Cochran's 6.

Meadow Lark Orphan Takes Best Beagle Award in Onondaga Exhibit at Syracuse.

MARY MAC ALSO TRIUMPHS

Scores in Foxhound Division, While Southboro Heads List in Group for Pointers.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Dec. 4.—The Giralda Farm, owned by Mrs. M. Hartley Dodge of Madison, N. J., received more awards than any other competitor in the seventh annual dog show of the Onondaga Kennel Association at the State Armory today.

The best beagle award was won by the Giralda Farms' Meadow Lark Orphan. Mrs. Dodge's Mary Mac of Giralda captured the foxhound honors. The bitch Southboro of Giralda took the award for pointers. In shepherd dogs Mrs. Dodge won winners' dog and best breed with Hussan Von Bodman. Giralda's Portia was adjudged the best shepherd bitch.

Falescroft Major, the property of Leroy A. Fales of East Greenwich, R. I., was selected as the best of breed in pointers. Ralph K. Richardson of Rochester scored with his ch. Richardson's Byng, which was chosen best of bread among the English setters. In the wire-haired fox terrier class the Warwell Kennels of New Hamburg, N. Y., reigned supreme, with Warwell Wanderer as winners' dog and Kenor White Bud as winners' bitch.

Fifty-two Boston terriers comprised the largest class in the show. Mrs. A. L. Barrett of New York City took winners' dog honors with Carry On, which also won the best of winners. The best of breed was Champion Hagerty's Sensation II, owned by Mrs. L. B. Daley of Wyandotte, Mich.

Jefferson Park Feature Won by Calf Roper; My Beauty, at $84.70, Also Victor

CALF ROPER TAKES SOLID SOUTH PURSE

MY BEAUTY, AT $84.70, WINS

Long Shot Beats Captain J. S., the Favorite—Burnt Brown Triumphs in Field of Eleven.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 4.—In the early months of 1929 Calf Roper ran over the Jefferson Park course and captured the Lakeview and Rex Handicaps and then capped the climax by capturing the Louisiana Derby prize. High Time had just been adjudged the leading sire of 1928 at that time and Calf Roper was hailed as another of his great sons. It was expected that he would go on and do great things during 1929, but his success has been only moderate.

Today he returned to his old stamping ground and won in the Solid South purse, the victory being his first since a race at Chicago last Summer. In between Calf Roper has run half a dozen times, but could never record a victory. But the feel of the old Jefferson Park turf must have lent speed to his heels, for he came home a winner in the Three D.'s Stock Farm colors over Yam Toy and Wellet, which finished in the order named. After them came Galahad and Old Slip.

Calf Roper was the even-money favorite and ran on top from start to finish. Two lengths to the good at the end of the mile and seventy yards, he carried 109 pounds and was timed in 1:44 3-5 over a fast track. He drew away steadily from the others and coasted home under the hand ride of Jockey May.

Long-Shot Record Falls.

The long-shot record fell again when My Beauty came home first in the second race, paying $84.70 for a $2 mutuel ticket and proving once more that it is not well to disregard the half-mile horses.

On the closing day at Bowie, Merichar, known as the king of the half-mile tracks, came out in a race where he seemed to be outclassed, but he kept on going and paid a tremendous price. Before today's test, My Beauty had good form at the obscure tracks of Riverside Park, Tulsa and Arlington Downs, but had nothing to show on a big-time circuit.

Captain J. S. was the favorite on the strength of his showing around Chicago and in one race here. He was backed down almost to even money, despite the fact that as many as twelve were running. But My Beauty never even had difficulty in beating the public choice. The lowly outsider, which was running her first race here, swept away from the barrier like a bullet, and the others were never even close thereafter.

Chris Paschen Third.

At the end of the six furlongs, My Beauty was three lengths to the good, and Captain J. S. was second, five lengths before Chris Paschen.

Before today, long prices had been experienced on the opening day when Clemence paid $54, on Saturday when Klyi returned $58.70, and yesterday when Charm's backers received $67.80.

On the strength of only one other race, and that a fourth place over this course, the filly Burnt Brown was made an odds on choice in the curtain raiser. This two-year-old made her début on Monday and today odds of $.65 to $1 were quoted on her in a field of eleven. But she ran a game race and came home a winner by half a length to sustain the confidence of her admirers.

Jar was the second horse and he and Burnt Brown ran head and head for most of the six furlongs. At one time Jar led by a slender margin but he went wide at the turn and this gave Burnt Brown her opportunity. She again took the lead and outgamed Jar at the end. The filly is by Black Servant out of Beach Talk.

Sports of the Times

By JOHN KIERAN.

HEINIE MUELLER, who makes periodic appearances with the Boston Braves, was protesting a called strike in his best form at the Polo Grounds one day when Umpire Ernie Quigley raised an admonishing hand and said sharply:

"Moderate those languages, young man!"

Mr. Quigley was referring to Heinie's quaint habit of protesting in two languages at once, German and English, the result being slightly bewildering. Jacques Fournier, who toured the National and American Leagues for many years, would confuse the situation occasionally by disputing decisions in not too classic French. Moe Berg, Princeton graduate, Sorbonne postgraduate, a New York lawyer in the Winter and a snappy catcher for the White Sox in the Summer, is the prize linguist of the diamond, however. He speaks half a dozen languages and most of them, including English, correctly, which is an added mark of distinction.

But, as a whole, ball players are not accomplished linguists. It may be a mistake to bring this up, but, probably, wrestlers, as a class, eclipse all other professional athletes in linguistic accomplishments. There are good reasons for this too numerous to mention. For the most part they are well-traveled Europeans, and for another thing, they have had much to explain in any number of countries.

Education on Wheels.

For a fair working knowledge of modern languages, however, a young man couldn't do better than to take up six-day bike riding. This trade takes its followers to Chicago, New York, Paris, Berlin, Brussels and to practically every town of any size at all in Italy. Languages are picked up as the riders pedal along. It's a soft snap as a language course. Or as the French put it: "Cela marche comme sur des roulettes."

The Carnegie Foundation didn't go into this, but it is offered as a tip to Modern Language Departments in any progressive universities. Football doesn't aid the task of the Romance Languages instructor. Only English, and not much of that by the players, is allowed on the gridiron. Indeed, on some teams, only the quarterback is allowed to say a word. Of late years a knowledge of French has been picked up in tennis during national championship tournaments and Davis Cup play, but golf is an all-English sport, and the only foreign language into which baseball has been successfully translated is the Japanese.

Just how a six-day bike career could be worked into a college course doesn't appear at the moment, but in view of the educational progress that can be made on wheels some progressive pedagogue may find a solution. If the students can't take to bike riding, perhaps the bike riders could be induced to take up language teaching between races. Franco Georgetti, for instance, is well qualified to appear at Yale and give lectures in Italian, French, German and good broken English. Perhaps other riders are even more accomplished. The subject is worth investigating.

A Vicious Color Scheme.

Any one who has ever attended a six-day race must have remarked the brilliant color scheme of the jerseys worn by the riders. There are reds, yellows, blacks, whites, greens, violets and oranges mixed, mingled and contrasted in various wild ways. They dazzle the eyes. They numb the brain.

This brings up a vicious color scheme once perpetrated by John Chapman, the bike-race promoter. It seems that Mr. Chapman promotes these races by walking around the building in which the races are going on, smoking expensive cigars and saying practically nothing at all. The heavy work is done by his assistant, Harry Mendel, who rushes hither and yon from start to finish.

One season Mr. Chapman promoted a six-day race in this city, another in Boston, another in Chicago and still another one back in this city again. At the end of that time he was still smoking expensive cigars in his usual placid manner, but his assistant, Mr. Mendel was a wreck.

"Never mind," said Mr. Chapman. "As soon as this is over you come down to my plantation in Georgia and forget all about it. There isn't a bicycle on the place. It will be a complete rest."

Dizzy from looking at whirling jerseys of all colors for weeks on end, Mr. Mendel hoped he could survive until he reached the promised haven of repose in Georgia. It seems, however, that Mr. Chapman is frugal in some ways, and, though he provides the riders with new jerseys of dazzling hues for each race, he collects the old jerseys and gives them to his farm hands on his Georgia plantation.

The bike race season ended. Mr. Chapman and the weary Mr. Mendel went to the Georgia plantation. They arrived at night. Mr. Mendel fell into a deep restful sleep. Early the next morning the sun shone in through the open window. Birds were singing. Cheery shouts of tillers of the soil were heard from near-by fields. Mr. Mendel lifted himself on his elbow to peer out and revel in the rustic scene. Sweaters! Red, yellow, orange, green, blue, indigo and violet, walking about the yard, following the plow, feeding the chickens, hauling hay, up on the roof of the barn—all over the place. Mr. Mendel fell back in a dead faint. A few hours later, still trembling with fright, he fled to Florida.

It Depends on the Game.

"Sir: Why not take a jab some day at the old-fashioned notion that a team always plays better on home grounds and in surroundings with which the men are all familiar? Teams like Notre Dame, Dartmouth and the Army are such wanderers that they almost seem to have no home grounds. They are away from home most of the time, and yet they always manage to put up a good game. What's the answer?

J. P. C."

The first answer is that Notre Dame, Dartmouth and Army have home grounds and play there fairly often. It happened this year that Notre Dame was building a stadium and couldn't entertain at home, but next season will be different. But Dartmouth played four games at Hanover this year, and Army played six at the Point. Also the Notre Dame-Army game was a "home game" for Army after a fashion, being played at the Yankee Stadium because of the inadequate seating capacity of the grand stand at the Point.

However, these teams do travel more than the average eleven for various good reasons, and, as the correspondent says, they play very well on foreign fields. In football it doesn't seem to matter much, but in baseball almost all authorities agree that the home team usually enjoys a slight advantage.

In Scotland there arose the golf dictum: "Home heath is worth two strokes," and yet it's hard to recall any professional or amateur winning a championship over his home course with the exception of Dave Herron, who captured the amateur title at Oakmont in 1919.

On the general proposition, it isn't the strange playing field that affects a visiting team as much as the rigors of traveling. In football perhaps added determination to do well before a strange crowd more than offsets any slight decrease in physical efficiency. Football is a game in which determination counts heavily.

GUEST AND HOPPING TO PLAY SATURDAY

Stars Will Appear in Opening of Indoor Polo Season at Squadron A Armory.

OPTIMISTS TO FACE P. M. C.

The Riding Club and Princeton Trios Will Meet a Pair of Squadron A Aggregations.

By ROBERT F. KELLEY.

The indoor polo season at the Squadron A Armory, the scene of the national championships, will open this Saturday with three games in which such stars as Winston Guest and Earle A. Hopping are to be seen in action. These opening night games are not part of the new circuit formed for the metropolitan district, the opening of that series being planned for the following Saturday night at the 101st Cavalry Armory in Brooklyn.

This opening night play is to bring Winston Guest, with two others forming a makeshift Optimist team against the players of the Pennsylvania Military College, and Princeton, with its new team, into action against a Squadron A combination. In the third game young Earle Hopping will make his début in the indoor game for the Riding Club against another Squadron A trio.

Guest is not using the line-up which will play later for the Optimists. It is probable that he will have Lieutenant McDonald Jones with him, but the third man has not been named yet. Both P. M. C. and Princeton are developing new teams this year. P. M. C., which won the college title two years ago and made a great fight against Harvard in the final the past season, has lost Bower and Jones. Princeton has lost Arthur Borden, but William Post, a freshman last year, is expected to provide the nucleus for a good team this year.

Squadron A has not picked its teams as yet, but there are an increasing number of younger players in action at the Madison Avenue armory. Captain F. A. Vietor, a veteran back, is again available, as are Thomas Bancroft and William H. Jackson, two former Princeton players; R. E. Fitzgibbon, a veteran Squadron player; Thomas Glynn, No. 1 of Harvard's college champions last season, and several others.

DE GRASSE IS WINNER.

Defeats Jackson on Points in Final Mitchel Field Bout.

Peter De Grasse of Flatbush outpointed Peter Jackson of Harlem in the main eight-round bout at Mitchel Field last night. Jackson substituted for Eddie Enos. De Grasse weighed 118 pounds and Jackson 116. It was the closing show of the season.

In the six-round semi-final, Sailor Snitka, 135, of Huntington, defeated Luvviga Ugetto, 137, of Italy. Joey Abramo, 131, of Fort Hamilton, and Jim Flynn, 130, of Westbury, battled to a six-round draw. Tommy Laba, 128, of Fordham, outboxed Rudy Wink, 128, of Bay Ridge, over the six-round route.

Henry Mollinary, 116, of Flushing, scored a knockout victory over Lou Marino, 115, of Brooklyn, when the referee intervened in 1 minute and 45 seconds of the third round. They were scheduled for four rounds.

TUNNEY TO SEE BOUTS.

To Witness Fight Program at Greenwich Tomorrow.

GREENWICH, Conn., Dec. 4 (AP).—Gene Tunney, retired world's heavyweight champion, may never return to the ring, but the fight game still has its attraction for him.

Tunney, who returned yesterday from Italy with his wife, the former Polly Lauder of this town, has engaged seats for an exhibition fight program which will be given here Friday. Mickey Genaro, Waterbury junior lightweight, and Joe Curry of New York will meet in the main bout.

The bouts, sponsored by the Lions' Club, will be attended by many persons socially prominent here.

RIFLE MEET IS WON BY STOCK EXCHANGE

Team Defeats Richmond Hill High by 1,048 to 1,041— Rosenblatt Is High Gun.

The rifle team of the New York Stock Exchange defeated the Richmond Hill High School representatives, 1,048 to 1,041, on the Richmond Hill range yesterday afternoon.

Max Rosenblatt, former Thomas Jefferson High School star and winner of the individual Public School Athletic League title last year, was high gun for the winners. He scored 87 standing and 95 prone for a total of 182.

Fields and Jones to Box.

BOSTON, Dec. 4 (AP).—Jackie Fields, world's welterweight champion, today agreed to meet Corilla Jones of Akron, Ohio, in a non-title bout at the Boston Garden on Dec. 13. It was stipulated that neither would scale more than 149 pounds, one above the welterweight limit.

NINE KNOCKOUTS MARK AMATEUR PROGRAM

Bloedell Stops Babits in Third Round in 160-Pound Class at Holy Name Club Show.

Nine knockouts marked the amateur boxing show of the Holy Name Club last night. There were four novice, two special and eight four-man class bouts. One of the hardest fought battles was in the 160-pound novice class, when George Bloedell, unattached, stopped Salvator Babits of the Yorkville Boys' Club in the third round after a thrashing bout.

The summaries:

118-Pound Class, Semi-Final—Frank Mazzelli, Holy Name Club, defeated Salvator Avalone, Ascension Parish House, three rounds. Sid Morrison, Yorkville Boys' Club, knocked out John Carle, Holy Name Club, second round.

Final—Morrison defeated Mazzelli, three rounds.

Final—McSweeney knocked out Barry, one round.

112-Pound Class, Novice—Harold Rotschley, Yorkville Boys' Club, knocked out Cesar Solomon, unattached, 2 rounds.

RING STARS ASKED TO BOUTS MONDAY

Tunney, Dempsey and Sharkey May Be Introduced on Christmas Fund Card.

By JAMES P. DAWSON.

The spectacle of Gene Tunney, retired undefeated world's heavyweight champion; Jack Dempsey, former titleholder, and Jack Sharkey, Boston's recognized outstanding contender for the vacated title, appearing in the ring at Madison Square Garden simultaneously, but not in combative activity, will be offered local fight fans if present plans of President William F. Carey of the Garden materialize.

It was announced yesterday that Carey had invited boxing's three most conspicuous figures to attend Monday night's ring battles, which are to be staged for the benefit of The New York American's Christmas Fund, and that they would be introduced from the platform. Only Tunney's acceptance is not certain.

Dempsey is to be present in his official capacity as referee, perhaps officiating in the heavyweight feature of twelve rounds between Otto Von Porat and Phil Scott, English heavyweight. Sharkey has made a reservation because he wants to view both boxers in action, in view of a possible future meeting with the victor.

Announcement that Dempsey has been licensed by the State Athletic Commission as a referee in this State provided a desirable impetus yesterday to the advance sale of tickets. Joe Boyton, Garden box-office chief, announced the demand had increased appreciably.

The possibility of the winner of the Von Porat-Scott battle getting the proposed match against Max Schmeling in Atlantic City on Feb. 22 also developed yesterday to emphasize the importance of this heavyweight struggle, quite aside from the charitable purpose for which it was arranged.

Unusual interest is reported also in the twelve-round tilt between Maxie Rosenbloom, Harlem light-heavyweight, and Yale Okun, east sider, which is scheduled as a twin feature, as well as the ten-round event between Georgie Hoffman, Yorkville's heavyweight youngster, and Marty Gallagher, clever Washington, D. C., lad.

Gorilla Jones Stops Testo.

Scratched—Count Palatine, Gold Mint, Mix Up, The Southerner and Patricia Marion.

Calf Roper broke fast and was rushed to the front, but then was put under restraint and drew away easily in the stretch, to win nicely in hand. Yam Toy was taken wide around the first turn, followed the pace closely and was an easy second. Wellet ran well. Galahad broke well, but dropped back and failed to show any speed. He ran a very poor race. Old Slip was almost left, but ran up to the leaders in the first part, but then tired from his efforts.

Owners—1, Three D's Stock Farm; 2, Paradise Stock Farm; 3, W. L. Brodie; 4, P. Reuter; 5, G. Collins.

8715 SIXTH RACE—Purse $1,000; claiming; fillies and mares, 3-year-olds and upward; one mile and seventy yards. Start good; won easily; place same. Winner, b. f., 3, by Sath—Miss Waldo. Trainer, J. S. Partridge. Time—0:23, 0:50⅘, 1:16⅘, 1:43, 1:47⅘.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Forward Movement Continues in Leading Shares as Public Inquiry Increases.

The upswing in stocks, which started in vigorous fashion on Tuesday, was extended further in yesterday's trading and good-sized gains were established in a wide variety of issues. There were some intermittent periods of profit-taking, in which the rally appeared to be checked, but recovery developed after each pause and net gains of 2 to more than 10 points were common throughout the Exchange list. Possibly the most important development, marketwise, was the increase in volume, and brokers are willing to testify that this represents a broadening of what had been a limited outside interest in the market. Sales yesterday, for instance, aggregated 4,437,460 shares, as compared with a daily average of 2,269,523 shares in the three trading days last week.

Wall Street was able to distinguish, too, another important development in yesterday's market, that was the tendency of stocks to move by groups. In the period of readjustment which has taken place since stocks touched their lows on Nov. 13, it has been the case, more or less, of every stock for itself, with cross-currents running strongly. These seem to have disappeared and yesterday group by group moved up in orderly fashion, first the public utility and steel stocks, the railroad shares and finally the leading issues representing the oil industry. It is one of the oldest of Wall Street axioms that the general public is never attracted to the market unless quotations are advancing, and the truth of this appears to have been reaffirmed. More public buying has come into the market in the last few days of market gain than in the fortnight from Nov. 15 to the end of that month, according to brokers.

Yesterday's report of pig iron production in November furnished a striking picture of the recessions in output which took place during that month, and the efforts of the mills to readjust their staffs to the slower pace. Total output for the month was 3,181,411 tons, with a daily average of 106,047 tons, the lowest since September, 1928. The decline from the October daily rate was the largest reduction recorded since May, 1925. Reports from the trade generally, however, are not as gloomy as these figures would appear to indicate. Every effort is being made to avoid overproduction in both iron and steel and accurately to synchronize output with actual demand. Under such circumstances, and with inquiry from several industries reflecting a moderate improvement, it may be that the November production figures will mark the low point of the year. Ingot production at Chicago now is at about 65 per cent of capacity, Pittsburgh 65 to 70, Youngstown 55 to 60 and Buffalo 50 per cent.

One of the characteristics of iron and steel operations at this time is that unemployment is being maintained at a minimum and that in cases where but one shift is working, the crews of all three of the customary shifts are being given an equal share of the operating time. Evidently this represents an experiment in the general plan of industrial leaders to prevent the throwing of large numbers of men out of work. It will be interesting to see to just what extent it will prove successful and whether or not it is a plan that can be followed successfully by other industries now encountering the necessity of slowing up output.

The buoyancy of the foreign exchanges generally suggests the nearby increase in gold exports from New York, not only to one or two countries, but to all of Europe. Thus far, France has been the only country to take gold from the United States in the last few months on straight exchange transactions, although there have been numerous special shipments, unrelated to exchange. The strength of sterling, which yesterday sold at $4.88 3-16, indicates that consignments of gold to London on exchange transactions are not far off. The exchanges of no less than six European countries touched new high points for the year in New York yesterday. These were England, Denmark, Norway, Sweden, Switzerland and Belgium. Under the circumstances, a strong ebb flow of metal, Europeward, would cause no great amount of surprise here.

DUFFY IS PROMOTED BY LEHIGH VALLEY

Assistant to President Elected Vice President in Charge of Traffic.

John Duffy, who for ten years has been assistant to the president of the Lehigh Valley Railroad, was yesterday elected vice president in charge of traffic. Mr. Duffy has been associated with the Lehigh Valley for more than fifteen years. He was first in the advertising department and subsequently was in charge of advertising. He then became assistant secretary of the company, assistant Federal manager in the war and since Dec. 1, 1919, he has served as assistant to the president.

In the last five years he has devoted most of his attention to the traffic department and recently he has been in charge of solicitation and service in that department. He succeeds the late J. A. Middleton.

Before entering railroad service, Mr. Duffy was engaged in newspaper work in Memphis, Chicago and New York.

TOPICS IN WALL STREET.

News, Comment and Incident, On the Stock Exchange and in the Financial Markets.

Buoyancy developed in a large number of issues on the Stock Exchange yesterday, and while here and there irregularity cropped out, the general trend of price changes was toward higher levels. The final hour of trading was featured by a brisk advance in the oil shares. Gains were established in almost all groups, with the public utilities making the most aggressive advances, as measured by points. The general gains were regarded as a "follow through" of the advance started on the preceding day, and in almost all cases the best prices of the day represented the highest level yet attained by particular stocks since the declines of October and November. Money was not a factor in yesterday's market, but conditions of complete relaxation continue to exist. Stocks which were said to establish the day's gains were Allied Chemical and Dye, American Water Works, Corn Products, Columbian Carbon, General Electric, North American, Standard Oil of New Jersey and Sears, Roebuck.

A Christmas Market.

Wall Street is inclined to regard the present upswing as a holiday market and to express the opinion that the volume of sales is likely to increase, rather than decrease, for the balance of the year, despite the influences which usually operate against markets at this period of the year. Speculators are seeking quick turns for "Christmas money."

A Record Sale of Rail Bonds.

One of the largest transactions ever recorded in bonds on the Stock Exchange in an issue other than Liberties was effected yesterday when the record of a sale of $1,000,000 of Chicago & North Western convertible 4½s at par appeared on the tape shortly before midday. This was accompanied by another transaction for $849,000 at par, featuring the day's turnover in the issue of more than $3,000,000, the largest for any issue of the list yesterday. Of the total amount of the issue, $72,335,000, half has been subscribed for by shareholders of the road and the balance will be offered publicly at par today by the bankers. The issue closed at 100¼, off ⅛ point.

The Gold Point Mystery.

The approach of several of the principal European currencies to levels at which gold shipments from this market could be made profitably has sent foreign exchange experts to work figuring out gold shipping points. These figures are of necessity extremely uncertain, depending, as they do, upon a large number of variable factors. Besides such obvious calculations as loss of interest, ocean shipping and insurance rates, and the buying and selling rates for gold at the banks of issue of the markets involved, several intangibles are likely to enter the picture. These include the advertising value of a gold shipment to the bank arranging it and the need or lack of it for gold in the market concerned. A survey of several leading banks yesterday revealed that none of them had available anything like a complete list of gold points. At one prominent house, however, it was said a list was being prepared. Work had been going forward on it for several weeks and it was thought that it should be completed in three or four weeks. Apparently the location of the gold points remains to a good many bankers quite as nebulous an affair as it is to the layman.

A Belated Response.

When corporations were responding to the psychological requirements of the recent stock market slump by declaring extra dividends, the railroads were notably silent. Yesterday, however, the Lehigh Valley responded with an extra of $1, this being the first extra that it has declared since 1927. When it was suggested that this was a belated response, it was pointed out that railroads, being accountable to the Interstate Commerce Commission and otherwise limited, had not the same freedom of action as had industrial corporations.

No Cut in Bill Rates.

Despite the increase in the volume of bankers' acceptances coming on the market, dealers do not look for any change in rates for a little while. During the last few days banks and others have sold a large number of bills to dealers, and portfolios of the latter have expanded rapidly. To some extent this has resulted in offerings to the Federal Reserve Bank, but at the present buying rate of 4 per cent in force at the bank of issue there is not much incentive to offer bills there. In view of the likelihood of a curtailment in the supply of bills during the early part of next year, many dealers feel that they can afford comfortably to stock up at this time. Another factor which makes for assurance is the general belief that the Federal Reserve will be found willing to take a considerable volume of bills should the present large outside demand slacken. If this country is to be faced with a heavy outflow of gold, as now seems likely, the central bank probably will bring its bill-buying rate down to meet the dealers' selling rate, in order to offset the gold movement by expansion of portfolio.

Gas Pipe Prospects.

Extensive plans of the natural gas industry for the coming year will be, among other things, a boon to the steel industry, as the hundreds of miles of pipe to be laid to carry natural gas across rivers and over hills and to distribute it within large residential and industrial territories are among the most profitable lines in steel production. Many of the long-range projects planned are rapidly approaching the stage where construction is to be expected, including the prolongation of the Texas-St. Louis line to Chicago and important Eastern connections between West Virginia and the seaboard.

MONEY.

Wednesday, Dec. 4, 1929.

Situation in the money market remained much the same as those of preceding sessions. Money continued in good supply, but demand was light. On the Stock Exchange day loans held at 4½ per cent, while street funds traded at 3½. In time money, 4½@4¾ per cent was quoted for all maturities, but turnover was on small scale. Commercial paper and acceptance markets were fairly active at unchanged discounts.

$72,335,000

Chicago and North Western Railway Company

Twenty-Year 4¾% Convertible Gold Bonds, Series "A"

Due November 1, 1949.

Coupon bonds in denomination of $1,000 registerable as to principal. Bonds limited to an authorized issue of $100,000,000, principal amount, at any one time outstanding, of which $72,335,000 principal amount of Series "A" Bonds will be presently outstanding. Interest payable May 1 and November 1.

The Bonds of Series "A" will be convertible at the option of the respective holders thereof at any time on or after July 1, 1930, and on or before July 1, 1940, into Common Stock of the Company at $105 per share, with an adjustment of accrued interest and current dividends.

The issuance of these Bonds has been approved by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

For further information regarding the Company and this issue of Bonds, reference is made to letter dated November 27, 1929, from S. A. Lynde, Esq., Vice-President of the Chicago and North Western Railway Company, copies of which may be obtained from the undersigned, and from which the following is quoted:

The Bonds are the direct obligation of Chicago and North Western Railway Company and are issued under an indenture to United States Trust Company of New York, Trustee, which provides, among other things, that, so long as any of said Bonds shall be outstanding, the Company will not create any new mortgage or deed of trust (other than mortgages or deeds of trust to extend or refund existing liens, as set forth in the indenture) upon any of the lines of railroad or branches thereof, leaseholds or trackage rights now owned by it, unless effective provision be made in such new mortgage or deed of trust that the Convertible Gold Bonds shall be secured by such mortgage or deed of trust ratably with any other indebtedness secured thereby. Such provision, however, will not prevent the issue by the Company of additional bonds authorized under existing mortgages.

The proceeds of the Bonds of Series A will be used to provide funds, or reimburse the Company's treasury, for the payment of $24,084,000 principal amount of obligations of the Company maturing between October 1, 1929, and June 1, 1930; to provide for advances to Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha Railway Company (more than 93% of the stock of which is owned by the Company) to enable said Railway Company to pay $45,186,000, principal amount, of obligations maturing on or before June 1, 1930; and for other corporate purposes. The annual interest charges on the Bonds of Series A will amount to $566,538 less than the annual interest charges on said maturing obligations.

The gross income of the Company for the year ended December 31, 1928, applicable to the payment of interest on funded debt and other fixed charges, before Federal income taxes, amounted to $26,800,830, while such charges amounted to $13,512,256. Such gross income for the first ten months of 1929 (including $1,349,493 back mail pay) showed an increase of $4,180,074 over gross income for the same period of 1928.

The Company has outstanding $22,395,000, par value, of 7% non-cumulative and participating preferred stock, and $158,438,600, par value, of common stock, on which dividends are being paid at the present time at the rate of 5% per annum.

The entire series, but not a part thereof, may be called for redemption by the Company on sixty days' notice on November 1, 1934, or on any semi-annual interest payment date thereafter to and including November 1, 1944, at 105% of their principal amount and accrued interest, or on any semi-annual interest payment date thereafter at their principal amount and accrued interest, plus a premium of ½% of such principal amount for each six months' period between the redemption date and the date of maturity. In case the Bonds of Series A are redeemed before July 1, 1940, the conversion privilege will terminate on the fifteenth day prior to the redemption date."

MORE THAN ONE-HALF OF THE ABOVE BONDS HAVING BEEN SUBSCRIBED FOR BY THE SHAREHOLDERS OF THE COMPANY OR THEIR ASSIGNS, THE UNDERSIGNED OFFER THE REMAINING BONDS, SUBJECT TO PRIOR SALE, AT 100% AND ACCRUED INTEREST TO DATE OF DELIVERY.

The following bonds will be accepted on a 4¾% interest basis to maturity in payment for Twenty-Year 4¾% Convertible Gold Bonds purchased, provided notice of the amount of such bonds to be tendered in payment is given not less than three days prior to the date fixed for delivery of the convertible bonds:

Chicago and North Western Railway Company Secured 7% Bonds due June 1, 1930.
Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha Railway Company Consolidated Mortgage 6% Bonds due June 1, 1930.
Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha Railway Company Consolidated Mortgage 3½% Bonds due June 1, 1930.
Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis and Omaha Railway Company Debenture Gold 6% Bonds due March 1, 1930.
Superior Short Line Railway First 5% Bonds due June 1, 1930.
North Wisconsin Railway First 6% Bonds due January 1, 1930.

The above Bonds are offered if, when and as issued and received by the undersigned and subject to the approval by their counsel of all legal proceedings in connection with the issuance thereof. Temporary Bonds, exchangeable for definitive bonds when prepared, will be delivered at an early date against payment in New York funds. Payment may be made in full, or 50% may be paid, for which latter payment part paid transferable receipts will be delivered, on which the balance, with an adjustment of accrued interest, will be payable May 1, 1930.

These Bonds are listed on the New York Stock Exchange.

MILLIONS DONATED TO RESTORE TRUSTS

NAMES ARE NOT REVEALED

Harrison Williams Mentioned as Possible Seller, but Confirmation Is Lacking.

Voluntary donations of several millions of dollars by individuals identified with the Shenandoah Corporation and the Blue Ridge Corporation, two investment trusts with total assets of more than $234,000,000, have resulted in the restoration of the asset value of the common and preference stocks of the companies to levels approaching those prevailing at the time of their organization several months ago, it was revealed yesterday in letters sent by the corporations to their stockholders.

The replenishment of the assets of the companies comes soon after the companies had incurred large unrealized losses on their holdings of stocks during the recent market slump.

Speculation concerning the identity of the donors centered upon the sponsors of the Blue Ridge Corporation and the Shenandoah Corporation. Neither donation was made in cash. In the case of the Blue Ridge Corporation, the value of its outstanding stock was enhanced more than $12,000,000, it was estimated through the acquisition of a large block of Central States Electric Corporation common stock at a price lower than the prevailing market value of the stock, which closed yesterday at twenty-eight on the New York Curb Exchange after an advance of 5 points.

In the case of the Shenandoah Corporation the enhancement in value of its net assets was accomplished through the acquisition of 765,200 shares of its own $50 par preference stock at a lower figure than its current market value of 33¾. At the same time appreciation in the value of Blue Ridge through the latter's acquisition of the Central States stock resulted in an increase in the value of Shenandoah stock, since the latter corporation owns 30 per cent of the common stock of Blue Ridge.

All Stocks Strong.

In speculating as to the identity of the donors of the stock, the financial community attached particular significance to the Central States stock which was sold to Blue Ridge. The largest stockholder of Central States Electric stock is Harrison Williams, who is reputed to own four-fifth of the outstanding common shares. His personal fortune, consisting largely of public utility stocks, is estimated at several hundred million dollars. His associates would neither affirm nor deny reports that he had sold part of his own holdings to Blue Ridge with a view to increasing the net assets of the corporation.

Sponsors of the Shenandoah Corporation, which later organized the Blue Ridge Corporation, were the Goldman Sachs Trading Corporation and the Central States Electric Corporation. The Goldman Sachs Trading Corporation, in turn, was sponsored by the banking firm of Goldman, Sachs & Co.

The size of the donations made to Blue Ridge and Shenandoah Corporation was not made public, but it was estimated at several millions of dollars in each case.

Blue Ridge announced recently that its net assets as of Oct. 31 amounted to more than $119,000,000. In yesterday's statement, the value of the assets, after giving effect to the acquisition of the Central States stock, was placed at $131,481,557 as of Nov. 30, indicating an appreciation of more than $12,000,000 in a month in which security prices generally declined. On the basis of these figures, the opinion was expressed by bankers that the acquisition of Central States stock had enhanced Blue Ridge's assets by more than $12,000,000.

Letters to Stockholders.

In a letter to stockholders of the Shenandoah Corporation, C. F. Stone, its president, said:

"Arrangements have been made, and given effect to, under which your corporation is acquiring for retirement 765,200 shares of its own preference stock at materially less than current market prices. Giving effect to such retirement, your corporation has outstanding 984,700 shares of preference stock ($50 par value) and its net assets are equal to $104.56 per share of preference stock, as compared with $102.50 per share at organization of the corporation. The net assets, valued as stated above, per share of the 5,891,987 shares of no-par value common stock now outstanding, are but $1.38 less than the per share value at organization.

"As of Nov. 30, 1929, the total net assets of the corporation, after deducting total liabilities of $6,582,875 and reflecting current commitments, amount to $102,955,125. In arriving at this figure the corporation's holdings of stock in Blue Ridge Corporation are taken at the value of its underlying assets, on the basis of closing market prices on Nov. 27, 1929, less reserves. Other assets of the corporation are similarly valued at closing market prices on that date.

"The net income of the corporation for the period from July 26, 1929 (the date of organization) to Nov. 30, 1929, was $3,682,039, which includes cash dividends and interest, stock dividends received, valued at closing market prices on Nov. 27, 1929, and net profits realized from sale of securities."

Mr. Stone, who also is president of Blue Ridge, sent a letter to stockholders of that corporation in which he said:

"As of Nov. 30, 1929, on the basis of closing market prices on Nov. 27, 1929, the value (less reserves) of your corporation's assets applicable to its stock was $131,481,557, of which $12,897,068 was in cash and call loans. This valuation gives effect to arrangements which the corporation has made through individuals identified with it for its acquisition of a large block of previously outstanding common stock of Central States Electric Corporation, upon terms intentionally favorable to the corporation and resulting in an important addition to its net assets. Subject to such acquisition, the composition of the corporation's portfolio remains substantially as previously reported as of Oct. 31, as of Oct. 31, 1929."

"The foregoing valuation of $131,481,557 net worth applicable to stock compares with a $143,823,521 valuation upon organization of the corporation, and is equal to $107.04 per share of preference stock ($50 par value) outstanding, as compared with $117.09 per share at organization. The net shrinkage in value of the corporation's assets as indicated above, amounted on Nov. 30, 1929, to but $1.65 per share of common stock outstanding. Capitalization remains unchanged and consists of $61,415,050 par value of preference stock and 1,478,301 shares of no-par value common stock."

Seat Is Sold for $375,000, $15,000 Up From Previous Sale

Prices for New York Stock Exchange seats are advancing. It was announced yesterday that a sale had been arranged at $375,000, ex-rights, at the executive offices of the Board of Governors. The last announcement, made just a week ago, of a sale being arranged was at $360,000.

The names of the purchasers and sellers of either of the two seats have not been given out. It is expected that the membership committee will take action on the admission of the purchasers at its meeting this week.

The high record for seats this year was $625,000, established before the rights were announced for one-quarter of an additional seat to each existing membership. At this price rights were estimated to be worth $125,000, which would make the high for the year $500,000 ex-rights. The $360,000 sale arranged last week was the lowest of the year.

CHICAGO BOARD ASKS FACTS ON RYE DEALS

Eastern Interests Said to Hold More Than Visible Supply, 11,860,000 Bushels.

NAMES OF TRADERS SOUGHT

Market Has Mystified the Trade for More Than Six Months, It Is Said.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., Dec. 4.—The rye market in Chicago is a mystery to the trade and has been for more than six months. Eastern interests, presumably in New York, are credited with having owned more than the total visible supply, which is now 11,860,000 bushels, or more than double that of last year. Deliveries in the last three days on December contracts here have been 2,762,000 bushels, mostly said to have been paid for by Jackson Brothers, Boesel & Co. Chicago stocks are 4,386,000 bushels, of which 619,000 bushels are afloat.

The Chicago Board of Trade directors have taken an unusual step and asked for statements of December rye at the close today both from clearing houses and non-clearing house members, the latter being required to furnish the names of their individual customers.

The Government Grain Futures Administration has had the statements regarding the rye for some time but has not given them out.

December rye at the close today was $1.09, or the same as for March. May was $1.07¼, having declined 2¼ cents, against a break of ¼ cent for December.

December rye early in the season was advanced to $1.23¾, and May reached $1.25¼. The large lines were carried down from those figures on a break of 35¼ cents for December and 30 cents for May, from which there has been a reaction of more than 20 cents on December and over 12 cents on May.

William C. Jackson, a member of the firm of Jackson Brothers, Boesel & Co., reached by telephone at his home last night, said that he knew nothing about the questionnaire called for by the Chicago Board of Trade nor did he know of any payments for contracts in December rye made through his firm.

Gold Dust to Change Preferred.

The Gold Dust Corporation has filed notice with the New York Stock Exchange of a proposal to eliminate 7,045 shares of 6 per cent non-cumulative preferred stock and to increase the authorized preferred stock to 500,000 shares from 492,955.

STEEL CARTEL CUTS OUTPUT 10 PER CENT

Europeans Reduce Production Till Jan. 1 Owing to Slackening of Business.

BRITISH ENTRY DISCUSSED

But Liege Meeting Postpones Action as Members Disagree on Quota for Britain.

By CARLISLE MacDONALD.
Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 4.—The European steel cartel, the strongest of all postwar industrial combinations, has just concluded an important meeting at Liège, Belgium, during which the total production of all the members was reduced 10 per cent. The curtailment is due to the slackening of business and will be effective until Jan. 1, when further consultations will take place.

The entrance of Great Britain into the powerful steel combine was discussed by members of the governing committee, but, in view of the great difficulties which British membership involves, it was necessary to postpone definite action until next year. While Great Britain appears to favor the policy of the cartel in regard to the curtailment of production, members of the cartel have not been able to agree on an annual quota for British steel makers. The proposed estimates vary by 500,000 tons and until agreement can be reached the entry of Britain must necessarily be delayed.

It is difficult for many to understand why issues of this character are allowed to stand in the way of the inclusion of a great steel-producing nation like Britain, for, with British producers participating in what is now strictly a Continental cartel, an international combination of unheard-of strength and possibilities would come into being. It cannot be denied that when Britain does decide to pool her interests with those of her Continental associates the American steel industry will be faced with one of the most formidable competitors in its history. Some American observers, anticipating just such an eventuality, strongly favor new Congressional legislation making it possible for American companies to protect themselves by joining the steel and other European industrial agreements.

The special committee of the cartel appointed at the last meeting to draw up a new form of trust agreement was not able to report to the Liége session owing to the complexity of the question involved. The present cartel agreement expires on March 30, next year. Despite the numerous differences which several times have threatened to disrupt the cartel, the venture has been an undoubted success. Germany and France which, with Belgium and Luxembourg, now compose the membership, have found the cartel very advantageous and both are desirous of continuing the understanding.

The current Franco-German negotiations for the final solution of the Sarre question are bound up with the steel and coal interests of the two nations and in the agreement which is expected to result from the Sarre conference, the steelmakers of France and the coal producers of Germany will play a dominant role. It is understood the Sarre was the subject of informal discussions outside the meetings at Liége.

EARL RADIO AGAIN IN COURT.

Bankruptcy Petition Filed in the Federal Court in Newark.

Involuntary bankruptcy proceedings were filed in Federal court, Newark, yesterday against the Earl Radio Corporation, for which temporary receivers were appointed on Nov. 22 by Vice Chancellor Church in Chancery Court in Newark. At that time the assets were placed at $4,000,000 and liabilities $3,800,000, and insolvency was charged.

The petition yesterday was filed by David Bobker of Newark, attorney for three creditors—the Transcontinental Oil Company, $1,756; Igoe Brothers, $294, and Gorhan, Morgan & Co., $896.

In the Chancery action Harry G. Hendricks and Oscar A. Klamer were appointed receivers, and creditors and stockholders were ordered to show cause on Dec. 10 why the receivership should not be made permanent.

GENERAL MOTORS PROTESTS TO FRANCE

SEES FIFTH ADDED TO TAX

Asserts Policy Is in Effect at Only One Port—Other Americans Fear Extension of Practice.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 4.—The General Motors Corporation has made a formal protest to the French Government because of the methods of appraising its products at Marseilles and destined for the French market from the United States. Officials of the company contend that the system is unfair and places an additional burden of 20 per cent on already highly taxed products. It is understood that the American State Department, after a careful inquiry, has decided to bring the matter to the attention of the French Foreign Office.

American automobile men in France fear that continuation of the Marseilles policy and its application at all other ports in France would reduce the volume of sales in France. The Southern port is the one used exclusively by General Motors. According to American motor car representatives in France other American cars usually are imported through other ports.

The issue involving General Motors grew out of the refusal by Marseilles custom men in reaching a basic price, upon which 45 per cent of the tariff is charged, to deduct selling expenses in France. This is only normal and fair, American automobile officials maintain. Furthermore, it is the contention of General Motors that the Marseilles policy is not in force at other ports.

Shipments over which the controversy arose finally were permitted to enter, and meanwhile a special board of appraisers, acting on instructions of the Ministry of Commerce, is engaged in making a new appraisal of cars. If Marseilles customs officials are upheld, American motor car representatives in France believe the policy will be extended to all other ports.

The question is interesting in connection with the latest figures for total sales of American motor cars in France during the current year. According to the best estimates, the total will be between 14,000 and 15,000, which would include 10,000 Fords assembled in France. This is short of the prediction made at the beginning of the year, when the total was put at 20,000 passenger cars. None the less, the showing is remarkable in view of the high tariff wall surrounding the French market. The duty on foreign cars is 45 per cent.

The unquestioned popularity of American automobiles in France has given rise to apprehension among French motor car manufacturers and various restrictive ideas have been put forward.

The latest expression of this state of mind is the revival of a movement for a European motor car cartel, which would restrict the sale of foreign cars in each country to an annual quota. The plan was recently discussed in Paris and will again be considered at Brussels next Monday, when the Permanent Bureau of International Automobile Manufacturers meets.

Since the United States is a member of the cartel the discussion will be held outside the regular session.

Shawinigan Water Raises Dividend.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTREAL, Que., Dec. 4.—The dividend rate of the Shawinigan Water and Power Company was increased from a $2 annual basis to $2.50 at a meeting of the directors today, when the quarterly distribution of 62½ cents on the new basis was declared payable on Jan. 10 to shareholders of record on Dec. 20. In 1925 the company disbursed 7½ per cent on the old $100 par value shares and the following year made it 8 per cent. The stock was split four-for-one in 1927 and the 8 per cent rate was continued on a $2 basis until now.

22½ square miles 1,752,018 people

These figures mean something when you have money to invest

On Manhattan Island there are 77,867 inhabitants to the square mile. In the whole United States there are 35.5 inhabitants per square mile. Small supply of land—enormous demand for places to live and work. What a safeguard against overbuilding—and what a solid basis for the investment of your money!

You need not be a capitalist with a bank account of five or six figures in order to enjoy the profits that flow from the ownership of income-producing New York real estate. You can obtain the benefits of large scale operations, of skilled planning, construction and management with any convenient amount from $100 up—under The FRENCH PLAN.

One of the remarkable features of The FRENCH PLAN is "money back" plus permanent ownership. When you invest you receive:

(1) 6% on your money while it remains invested;

(2) Repayment of your investment from all profits distributed, until all your money has been returned to you;

(3) Your proportionate share of 50% of all profits distributed thereafter.

As a combination of solid safety, money back, and continuous profits, The FRENCH PLAN is, we believe, unique. It has proved itself sound and lucrative by the buildings it has erected—for example, the great Tudor City community at 42nd Street and East River—and by the income and profits it has paid to investors.

The Whole Story is in This Booklet

OIL MEN ARE COOL TO DETERDING PLAN

REESER MADE PRESIDENT

Colonel Stewart Not Chosen for Executive Committee—Lucey to Attend Hoover Conference.

From a Staff Correspondent of The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—Leaders of the American oil industry are withholding judgment on the proposal made here yesterday by Sir Henri W. A. Deterding, managing director of the Royal Dutch-Shell Companies, that an international "association of cooperation" be set up to remedy the evils that are embarrassing oil producers the world over.

Executives of the larger American companies have failed, after twenty-four hours of reflection, to approve Sir Henri's plan. There have been numerous conferences, participated in by the heads of the biggest producing companies, but no responsible spokesman for the petroleum industry of the United States has thus far expressed approval of his suggestion.

Executives of more than a dozen companies were asked today whether they considered Sir Henri's plan practical and whether he could expect the cooperation he has asked for from the American oil interests. Not one would comment.

The conclusion of most observers here is that the American oil industry is out of sympathy with Sir Henri's plan. There is a feeling that the American companies will prefer to work out their problems in their own way, while not rejecting the offer of cooperation tendered by the head of the Royal Dutch.

The most pressing problem at the moment is that of curtailing production, toward which a great deal had already been accomplished in the large oil areas of the United States. The American industry's attitude as privately expressed today by some of the important officials who are here is that the idea of an international cooperative agency is impractical.

The Federal Government, it was pointed out today, has declined already to approve a plan by which the oil producers of the Western Hemisphere proposed to limit production in 1929 to the level of 1928. That, it is contended, is reason enough to believe that any new international agreement of similar scope would not receive the sanction of the Department of Justice in Washington.

American oil interests, particularly the large exporting companies, are understood to have resented Sir Henri's strictures with reference to the dumping of surplus American oil supplies in the European markets. This question is really the basis of most of the controversy that has developed.

What Sir Henri said had the effect of reopening the discussion that took place last Summer between him and the Petroleum Export Association of New York. Sir Henri at that time "kicked over the traces" because the American export body was proposing to reduce the basic export price of gasoline, which was calculated to increase exports from the United States to Europe.

Sir Henri will leave Chicago tomorrow afternoon for New York and it is possible that before that time some agreement will have been reached looking to the application of Sir Henri's plan. Present indications, however, are that little will be accomplished in that direction at this time.

The Institute directors re-elected E. B. Reeser of Tulsa, Okla., as president. He is president of the Barnsdall Corporation and has served as president of the Institute for one year.

The directors omitted Colonel Robert W. Stewart from the executive committee. W. S. Fitzpatrick, chairman of the Prairie Oil and Gas Company, and F. A. Levy, president of the Gulf Production Company, were elected members of the committee, one to succeed Colonel Stewart and one to succeed George S. Davison, who recently resigned as president of the Gulf Oil Corporation.

Three new vice presidents were elected today to head the new divisions that have been created within the institute. They are L. P. St. Clair of the Independent Oil Producers' Agency; W. N. Davis of the Phillips Petroleum Company and W. M. Irish of the Atlantic Refining Company.

The institute announced the resignation of W. M. Mattison, who has been chief of the division of taxation and accounting since 1920. Rodney S. Durkee, controller of the Standard Oil Company of New York, succeeds Mr. Mattison as chairman of the general committee on accounting.

Captain J. F. Lucey, an independent oil man of Dallas, is on his way to Washington, where he will represent the American Petroleum Institute at the Conference on the stabilization of business and industry called by President Hoover.

Members of the institute tonight heard an address by Frank E. Packard, counselor of the Standard Oil Company of Indiana, in which the speaker predicted that unless business interested itself in economic and efficient government the alternative was the socialistic State. Mr. Packard inveighed particularly against the gasoline tax, which the petroleum industry is opposing throughout the country.

Brokers' Cashiers to Dine.

The annual beefsteak dinner of the cashiers' section, Association of Stock Exchange Firms, will be held in the Hotel Astor on Dec. 21. The New York Stock Exchange, the Stock Clearing Corporation, the Curb Exchange, banks and trust companies will be represented.

BANK FINDS OUTLOOK FOR BUSINESS GOOD

No Fundamental Threat in Prospect, Says Chatham Phenix, in Current Review.

"No fundamental threat to the business structure of the nation appears to be in prospect," according to the December Outline of Business, issued yesterday by the Chatham Phenix National Bank and Trust Company. Production and distribution of commodities, The Outline finds, are going forward in orderly fashion and substantial volume.

"The iron and steel industry," The Outline reads in part, "according to government records, is completing one of its best years. Production of pig iron rose to 3,588,000 tons in October, United States Commerce Department data show. This is a record output for that month.

"The automobile industry manufactured more than 5,000,000 vehicles from January to October, inclusive, breaking all previous records. By most authorities a continuation of this rate of output is considered unlikely.

"Demand for electrical goods this year has been heavy. The boot and shoe industry has been unusually active. Retail trade for the first ten months of the year was slightly in excess of that of 1928, according to records of the Federal Reserve Board.

"The nation is absorbing life insurance in larger volume than ever before, it is shown by reports received by the United States Commerce Department.

"Prices of farm products are higher than a year ago, according to the United States Agriculture Department, leading to the conclusion that, except where crop volume is below normal, the position of the nation's farmers is stronger than that at this time in 1928.

MUNICIPAL LOANS DECREASE SHARPLY

New Financing in 11 Months $110,000,000 Below That of Same Period in 1928.

MARKED DROP IN NOVEMBER

Many Large Offerings Scheduled for This Month, Including $65,000,000 City Issue.

New financing by States and municipalities for the first eleven months of this year totaled $1,163,333,344, which is about $110,000,000 less than in the same period last year, and about $200,000,000 below the aggregate for the corresponding period in 1927, according to figures compiled by The Daily Bond Buyer. The volume of new issues in November was extremely light, amounting to only $62,676,025, compared with $122,346,113 in October, $100,257,083 in September, $80,415,394 in August and $173,824,090 in November, 1928.

The total for December is expected to bulk considerably larger than that for November in view of the fact that the schedule includes such issues as $65,000,000 city of New York, $24,266,000 city of Detroit, $12,976,000 city of Philadelphia, $11,667,000 State of Kentucky and $10,000,000 State of South Carolina bonds. Additional financing is expected to be announced in line with President Hoover's efforts to stimulate business by speeding public improvement programs throughout the country.

The following table shows the volume of State and municipal bond flotations for November and the eleven months ended Nov. 30, with comparisons with other years:

	November.	11 mos. ending November 30.
1928	173,824,090	1,273,673,177
1927	105,067,010	1,390,976,598
1926	71,725,702	1,214,790,475
1925	71,522,706	1,238,429,540
1924	120,243,926	1,373,058,678
1923	132,167,398	1,035,920,494
1922	93,600,566	1,225,932,977
1920	64,612,511	692,107,121

New bond issues authorized in November amounted to $48,499,834, as against $345,933,415 in November, 1928; $127,623,950 in November, 1927, and with $198,098,410 in November, 1926. This decline is due to the fact that no large State road bonding propositions were submitted to the voters this year.

$30,000,000 BONDS PLACED BY ONTARIO

Bid of 100.8099 in Canadian Funds by Group Headed by National City Co. Wins Award.

A new issue of $30,000,000 of 5 per cent bonds was awarded yesterday by the Province of Ontario to a syndicate comprising the National City Company, Wood, Gundy & Co., Inc., A. E. Ames & Co., Ltd., and the Dominion Securities Corporation, Ltd. The price paid was 100.8099 in Canadian funds. The bonds, which are issued for various purposes, mature on Dec. 2, 1960. The bankers will offer the bonds today at a price of 101½, to yield more than 4.90 per cent.

A syndicate headed by the First National Bank, New York, and the Bank of Montreal was second highest in the bidding, naming 100.021 in Canadian funds. The only other tender submitted was that of 99.817 in Canadian funds by a group headed by the Bancamerica-Blair Corporation, the Equitable Trust Company and the Chase Securities Corporation.

The last previous financing done by the Province was on May 6, 1929, when $35,000,000 5s, due in thirty years, were awarded to a group headed by the National City Company at 99.15, or a 5.06 per cent basis.

Only once in recent years has the Province offered an issue larger than the present one. In October, 1923, Ontario sold $40,000,000 twenty-five-year 5s to a group of Canadian banks. Proceeds of the present loan will be used for funding and refunding.

Canadian Industrial Alcohol.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTREAL, Que., Dec. 4.—The Canadian Industrial Alcohol Company reports for the fiscal year ended on Sept. 30 net profits of $2,073,977 available for dividends. This is equivalent to $1.90 a share on the combined A and B stocks and compares with actual dividend requirements of $1.52 a share during the year. After regular dividend payments there remained a surplus of $412,841. In the previous fiscal year the net profits established a high record of $3,136,680, equivalent to $2.89 a share.

Will Pay $883,654 Savings.

The Franklin Society for Home Building and Savings will pay this week Christmas club savings totaling $883,654 to 12,000 members, an average of $79 a person. Five years ago 2,500 members saved $115,000, an average of $45 each. A survey covering the five-year period shows that 25 per cent of these savings go directly into permanent savings accounts.

Move to Recount 'Bossy' Gillis Vote.

NEWBURYPORT, Mass., Dec. 4 (AP).—Petitions asking for a recount of the vote cast for Mayor yesterday were circulated today in behalf of former Mayor Michael Cashman, who was defeated by the incumbent, Andrew J. ("Bossy") Gillis, by 46 votes. Signatures of ten voters in each ward were required.

$30,250,000 in New Bonds To Be Put on Market Today

Offerings of new securities today consist entirely of bonds and comprise only two issues, one municipal and one foreign. The offerings come to $30,250,000, classified as follows:

Foreign	$30,000,000
Municipal	250,000

LISTED BONDS RISE IN ACTIVE TRADING

Dealings in Chicago & North Western Convertibles Enliven the Stock Exchange.

Heavy dealings in the new Chicago & North Western convertible 4½s, which totaled more than $3,000,000, the day's record for the entire list, were featured by a single transaction of $1,000,000 at par shortly before noon on the Stock Exchange yesterday. The second largest transaction was for $849,000 of the bonds at par, which was the low of the day. This price fits in with the announcement by the bankers for the road that the remainder of the issue of $72,335,000 not taken by the shareholders, amounting to less than 50 per cent, will be offered publicly at par. The issue closed at 100¼, off ⅛.

Railroad bonds, as a group, were among the most active of the list. Seaboard Air Line and Southern Railway issues were in good demand and closed at higher prices. Central Pacific Short Line 4s of 1954 reached a new high for the year at 92½, up 3½ points. Atcheson, Topeka & Santa Fé 4s of 1960 jumped 3½ points and the convertible 4½s rose 1½ points. Wabash 4s attained a new top for the year at 84, up 3¾ points.

The convertible communication issues were about the most active of the public utility bonds. American Telephone and Telegraph 4½s moved up 2½ and International Telephone 4½s advanced 1½ points.

Industrial bonds were inclined to be irregular. The actively traded Texas Corporation convertible 5s moved up ⅛ of a point. International Paper 5s dropped 5½ points on a small turnover. Rubber and steel issues were quietly traded and in most instances the net changes for the day were limited to fractions. Sugar bonds were dull.

Continued buying of United States Government issues by corporations and others sent three of the active issues to new highs for the year yesterday. These were the first Liberty 4¼s at 101 10-32, the fourth Liberty 4¼s at 101 18-32, and the Treasury 4s at 108 30-32. The registered bonds of the first and fourth Liberty loans were also at new high levels.

Despite some sizable gains in a few issues, the averages for foreign bonds were lower. Antioquia 7s of 1945, series D, jumped 5¼ points, which was the principal gain in the list for the day. Trading in foreign loans was rather light.

MUNICIPAL LOANS.

New Bond Issues Announced for Offering to Investment Bankers.

Detroit, Mich.

At least three syndicates will participate in the bidding today for the issue of $24,266,000 city of Detroit (Mich.) various improvement bonds, bids on which will be opened at 11 A. M. Although the city usually obtains a high price for its bonds, cognizance will be taken by the bankers at this sale of the size of the issue and the fact that the city of New York will be in the market next week with an issue of $65,000,000.

Salt Lake City, Utah.

Salt Lake City, Utah, will be in the market on Dec. 17 with an issue of tax anticipation notes in an amount of $1,000,000 or $2,000,000, to be decided at the time of sale. All bonds will mature on Dec. 31, 1930. Bidders are required to stipulate the rate of interest.

State of West Virginia.

The State of West Virginia, which was in the market on Oct. 29 with an issue of $750,000 4½s and 4½s, will offer on Dec. 9 a new issue of $900,000 road bonds. The issue will mature serially from July 1, 1938, to 1952.

Jericho Water District.

Oyster Bay (N. Y.) Jericho Water District will receive sealed tenders until Dec. 10 on a new issue of $350,000 bonds, maturing serially from Dec. 15, 1934, to 1948. Proceeds of this issue will be used for water works extension. Bidders are to name the interest rate at not to exceed 6 per cent.

Portland, Me.

Estabrook & Co. has awarded an issue of $182,000 city of Portland (Me.) 4¼ per cent permanent improvement bonds, due Dec. 1, 1930, to 1955. The price paid was 99.95. The city reports an assessed valuation of $117,711,525 and net debt of $4,488,545.

Watkins Glen, N. Y.

An offering of $250,000 Watkins Glen (N. Y.) school district 5 per cent bonds, due Dec. 1, 1930, to 1954, is being made by Dewey Bacon & Co. at prices to yield 4.60 per cent. The district has an assessed valuation of $3,579,597.

TURKISH CURRENCY AT NEW LOW MARK

Crisis on the Constantinople Bourse as Pound Sterling Closes at 1,110 Piasters.

LAID TO EXCESSIVE IMPORTS

Finance Minister Asserts Merchants Overordered Because of Tariff—Sterling Sale Restricted.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Dec. 4.—The Bourse opened three-quarters of an hour late this morning due to a financial crisis. Turkish currency is so depreciated that the pound sterling, after being quoted at the unprecedented figure of 1,100 piasters (a piaster is worth 4.4 cents) and then dropping to 1,098, closed at 1,110. It had risen during the past two months from 997.

The Minister of Finance, Saradjoglou Chukri Bey, announced that the government was taking strictly confidential measures to cope with the situation. A high official from the Finance Ministry was en route from Angora today to examine the situation and meanwhile the managers of the Bourse made suggestions regarding strict regulation. Banks are now forbidden to sell pounds sterling unless a merchant has a bill to pay.

The Minister of Finance declared "The crisis was precipitated because merchants ordered beyond their needs, due to the new tariff, which unfortunately came in coincidence with the season when accounts are usually paid to foreign creditors. Because of the increasing demand for foreign currency a species crisis exists, certain people buying sterling without need, which we regard as speculation and as an offense against the State.

"The government's large purchases of construction material abroad have also had an effect, but the real cause is the artificial inflation of imports. In the four months prior to November we imported 100,000,000 Turkish pounds ($440,000,000) worth of goods in excess of the normal. Since then importations have ceased in many lines."

The consensus of opinion in local American circles is that the crisis will have only a temporary effect upon the placing of new orders for American goods, which are mainly not of seasonal need. Large quantities of agricultural implements received this Fall are practically paid for. Crop failures, such as that of the filbert crop, have been unfavorable factors in the situation and a large quantity of European goods is still uncleared in the customs house. An Angora dispatch states that the government is likely to have the national banks sell each day a quantity of sterling as a remedial measure.

GOLD EXPORT LIKELY AS STERLING RISES

$4.88 3-16 for Cable Transfers Said to Make Shipments of Metal Probable Tomorrow.

The principal European currencies continued yesterday to push closer to the levels which will cause heavy shipments of gold from this country. No less than six European exchanges yesterday reached new high prices for the year to date, several of them for the second or third time in as many days.

Sterling forged ahead to a rate of $4.88 3-16 for cable transfers, at which point the rate on London is practically at the gold shipping point. The other currencies to reach new high figures were those of Denmark, Norway, Sweden, Switzerland and Belgium. German marks at $.2395½ for cables equaled the previous high for this year. Francs and guilders, both of which recently have been strong, lost ground slightly, suggesting the possibility of further gold shipments having been arranged. The francs closed at $.0393 15-16, off 1-16, and the guilder at $.4037, off ½ point.

While it is impossible to locate the gold shipping points of the various currencies definitely because of the number of variable factors which enter into the calculations, it is agreed generally that at least half a dozen European exchanges are now being quoted at levels which need little improvement to make gold transfers profitable.

Gold shipments to England have been made on previous occasions at the level of $4.88¼, although this price is not generally conceded to yield a profit of any consequence. At the present time gold is badly needed by the Bank of England to replenish its reserves, and the metal might move again at that rate. There are two fast ships sailing to Europe tomorrow, the Majestic and the Ile de France, and it is regarded as probable that both ships will carry gold to England.

By way of explanation for the strength in sterling as against the dollar in recent days, London cables have instanced both French and Swiss purchases of sterling exchange by sale of dollar balances. In view of the higher interest rates obtaining in the London market compared with those in New York, some such movement is not unlikely, bankers say.

MARKETS IN LONDON, PARIS AND BERLIN

Trading Generally Quiet on the English Exchange—Credit in Good Demand.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Dec. 4.—Animation again was lacking on the Stock Exchange today and prices moved within narrow limits. Government securities rallied after early weakness. The war loan closed 3-16 higher at £99 15-16 and the funding loan ⅛ higher at £85½.

Canadian Pacific declined to $204 on another disappointing traffic report. Industrials were irregular, with few good features among the Anglo-American issues. General Electric and Associated Electric each were 6d higher at 47s 3d and 28s 9d, respectively. Brazilian Traction gained 1¼ to £43¾ and International Nickel was up ⅛ to $31½.

American Celanese, which has been quiet lately, rose to £6¼, but Courtaulds sagged to £2⅞. Both margarine issues were active, but both reacted to £3 13-16 at the close. A minor improvement in oils followed Sir Henri Deterding's speech in Chicago, but Anglo-American still was depressed, declining 1-32 to £3 11-32. De Beers rallied to £10, but slumped to £9⅞ before the close. Rhodesian Coppers failed to hold early gains.

Money was in good demand in Lombard Street, with 4¾ per cent paid for overnight loans. Discounts were easier on hopes that the bank rate might be reduced further tomorrow. Sterling exchange improved to $4.88⅛. The Bank of England sold £205,998 to France, making the week's net efflux £995,323.

Further Gains in Paris.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Dec. 4.—Trading was much better on the Bourse today and there were indications that the move toward recovery was developing into a gradual rise in price levels. After an animated opening there were several attempts to break the revival with offerings, but these were quickly absorbed and an improvement affecting nearly all stocks resulted. The Bank of France, industrials, chemicals and leading foreign stocks made gains.

Rentes also participated in the day's advances, closing as follows: The 3 per cents, 81.25; 1918 4s, 98.25; 1920 amortizable 5s, 128.30; 1928 5s, 102.25; 1920 6s, 103; 1927 amortizable 6s, 109.75.

Firm and Active in Berlin.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Dec. 4.—Except for a short interruption at the beginning of the second hour, caused by a new decline in artificial silks, today's Boerse was very firm and trading brisk throughout the session. The overturn exceeded that of the previous day considerably. The market was chiefly stimulated by President Hoover's optimistic message to Congress regarding the prospects of American business and Chancellor Mueller's statement that the German-Polish trade negotiations already had been concluded.

Electrical and Dye Trust shares were in great demand and well improved. Siemens advanced 8 and Dye Trust 5 points. Salzdetfurth and Westerregeln of the potash group rose 8 and 7 points respectively. Department stores, beer and spirits, Julius Berger of the building group, bank shares, Polyphon and motor car stocks were also several points better.

The upward movement was halted in the second hour by a new bear attack on artificial silks. Bemberg fell 16 and A. K. U. shares 12 points. In the last half hour the tendency changed again, owing to a new boom in the mining group, primarily Harpener, which improved 5, and Essener Stein 4 points, and the market again became firm all along the line.

The Boerse closed firm and brisk, and the same conditions prevailed after the closing hour.

LONDON WOOL SALES.

LONDON, Dec. 4 (AP).—The sixth series of wool sales closed today with offerings amounting to 11,967 bales. Competition was fair for five grades at current rates, but medium and lower sorts sold below the best.

During the series fine scoured Merinos advanced 5 to 10 per cent, while other grades of Merinos ranged from unchanged to 5 per cent higher. Greasy Merinos gained 5 to 7½ per cent and spinners 10 per cent. Scoured cross-breds closed unchanged to 5 per cent higher. Fine and medium greasy cross-breds sold from unchanged to 5 per cent advance and coarse cross-breds 7½ per cent. Fine slipes barely maintained their position, but other grades gained 5 per cent. Cape of Good Hope and Natal also advanced 5 per cent. There was good competition for Punta Arenas and Falkland Islands and they closed from 5 to 10 per cent above the September average.

During the series the Continent bought 59,500 bales and the home trade 48,500, while 30,000 were held over.

STEEL PRICES HOLD; GAINS SEEN ON WAY

Gradual Improvement in Mill Operations Predicted to Start in Mid-January.

STRUCTURAL LINES ACTIVE

Orders From Manufacturers of Automobiles Increase—Railroads Continue Buying.

Although both iron and steel makers are avoiding overproduction as far as possible, with the result that the shrinkage has been more severe than weekly reports indicate, there is a growing feeling that the industry is reacting more to the record production of the first three quarters of the year than to the disturbance in the stock market, according to the iron and steel trade reviews.

The Iron Trade Review says in part:

"The conviction has been gaining ground in the past week that the low point in sentiment has been passed, that the industry this month is shaking out most of the remaining excesses—a process which began in June—and that slow but gradual improvement will set in about the middle of January. The complete absence of stocks and the fortitude with which the industry has scaled down its operations, eschewing efforts to force business, are evidences of confidence.

"In minor ways the market outlook has improved in the past week, although it is recognized that this condition is only temporary and will succumb shortly to year-end inertia. Ford, Chevrolet, Willys-Overland and Hudson-Essex, to cite four volume producers, are releasing material for short runs this month.

Pipe-Welding Plant to Resume.

"The A. O. Smith Corporation, Milwaukee, electric pipe welding interest, resumes on a modified schedule Dec. 10. Railroad participation in the steel market continues marked. Structural activity is noteworthy, and may be accelerated by the Washington better-business conferences.

"A slightly stronger tone characterizes the price situation. Producers of steel bars, plates and shapes generally are quoting 1.90 cents, Pittsburgh, with Chicago $2 a ton higher, for the first quarter, extending the current level. Strip and cold finished bar prices have been reaffirmed, and an effort is being made to bolster the weak spots in sheet quotations.

"Because there have been fewer declines and less short selling, it is believed scrap prices are nearing bottom. Pig iron prices for the first quarter are untested, but with producers determined to stabilize. Ferromanganese has been reduced $5 a ton for 1930, with small cuts in other ferroalloys. In general, consumers are disposed to defer committing themselves, and producers are not pressing matters."

Unemployment Is Kept Down.

The Iron Age market summary says in part:

"Unemployment is being kept at a minimum. At Youngstown and at other centres work is being distributed among as large a number of men as possible. Where mills are running on only one shift, the crews of all three of the customary shifts get an equal share of the operating time. Additional employment is being provided by an unusually large amount of repair work, resulting from the heavy strain on equipment in the first nine months of the year.

"Steel specifications from the automotive industry have shown slight improvement, and it is now predicted that December production of motor cars will show a gain over the November figure. Ford and Chevrolet companies are getting under production in a limited way on their new models.

"The revival of deferred construction work is the most encouraging market development at Chicago, and three projects which came out for figures in that city call for over 29,000 tons of structural steel."

The Iron Trade Review composite of fourteen leading iron and steel products again is stationary at $35.97. In November this index averaged $36.03, and last December, $36.22.

The Iron Age composite prices remain unchanged, pig iron at $18.29 a gross ton and finished steel at 2.362 cents a pound.

NATURAL GAS LINE TO SEABOARD SEEN

Field Work Reported Started on $40,000,000 Project for Piping Fuel.

Field work is being conducted as a preliminary to the construction of two large natural gas pipe line extensions of the Columbia Gas and Electric Company in Pennsylvania and Virginia, embodied in a $40,000,000 plan to move natural gas from the West Virginia fields to the Eastern Seaboard, it was reported in financial circles yesterday.

The move will follow completion of contracts between the Columbia Gas and Electric Company and other large utility systems, including the United Gas Improvement Company and the American Water Works and Electric Company, it was reported, while the Columbia company itself is seeking franchises in many Virginia towns not now supplied with gas.

Upon the closing of the proposed link with United Gas Improvement, the reports indicated that Columbia would lay pipes capable of transmitting large quantities of gas from its West Virginia fields to York, Pa., Philadelphia, Washington and other Eastern cities, to be added to the manufactured gas supplies already available.

Plans for Virginia include the laying of pipes from Kentucky to Richmond and Norfolk, with branches serving points not along the main route traversed by the system. With large size pipe costing about $40,000 a mile to install, and smaller sizes as much as $25,000 a mile, the estimate of $40,000,000 represents only the initial cost of creating the framework of the vast system contemplated, the reports indicated.

Extensions to the system will call for the expenditure of hundreds of millions over a period of years, according to utility experts, who view the plans to interconnect natural gas reserves with large centres using manufactured gas as one of the most economical means of assuring a large reserve of gas capacity for industrial and business growth.

BIG GAIN REPORTED BY SUPERPOWER

$40,856,742 Balance Earned in 11 Months of 1929, Against $3,806,643 in All of 1928.

ASSETS NOW $225,558,406

More Than Half Consist of Holdings in Two Companies—Initial Dividend on Common Voted.

More than half of the total assets of the American Superpower Corporation at present market levels consist of its holdings in the Commonwealth and Southern Corporation and the United Corporation, according to a statement issued by Landon K. Thorne, president, following the declaration by the directors of an initial cash dividend of $1 a share on the common stock for 1929.

As of Dec. 1 the company had total assets of $225,558,406, based on market quotations of investments as of that date, while the value of its holdings in Commonwealth and Southern and in United was $117,061,516. In addition, American Superpower had $57,150,533 invested in other common stocks and warrants, and $16,773,577 in preferred and preference stocks, while cash holdings totaled $34,269,539.

Preferred and Preference Dividends.

The old Class A and Class B common shares were exchanged on the basis of one share of either class for five shares of new no-par common stock last Summer, creating 8,218,044 common shares with one vote each. Dividend payments on the old shares consisted variably of cash or stock. The directors yesterday also declared the usual quarterly dividends of $1.50 a share on the first preferred and preference stocks.

Total income of the corporation for the eleven months ended on Nov. 30, 1929, amounted to $50,109,168, of which $3,143,581 was in the form of cash dividends and interest received and $49,965,586 profit on sale of securities and commissions, which Mr. Thorne said should not be considered as regular earnings. The sum of $4,124,009 received in the form of stock dividends is not included in the total. In the full year 1928 total income amounted to $7,165,746.

After all expenses, tax reserves and preferred dividends paid, there was a balance of $40,856,742 applicable to the common stock, equal to $4.95 a share for the eleven months on 8,243,005 shares of common stock outstanding. In 1928 the company reported a balance of $3,806,643 for the full year, equal to $2.69 a share on 1,410,635 shares of old common stock then outstanding.

As of Dec. 1, 1929, net assets of the corporation, based on market value of securities held on that date, totaled $219,425,748, which, after providing for preferred stock of $76,716,400 outstanding, left a balance of $142,709,348 applicable to the common stock, giving the latter a liquidating value of about $17.30 a share.

"During 1929," Mr. Thorne said, "the investments of the company have become more and more consolidated in a few large holdings. For example, during the last year its holdings in the Commonwealth Power Corporation, Penn Ohio Edison Company, Northern Ohio Power and Light Company and Southeastern Power and Light Company have been consolidated into holdings in the Commonwealth and Southern Corporation. So also have its holdings in Public Service Corporation of New Jersey and United Gas Improvement Company been consolidated into holdings in the United Corporation."

UTILITY EARNINGS.

Electric Power and Light.

Gross earnings of the Electric Power and Light Corporation for the twelve months ended on Sept. 30 were $58,102,713, against $54,079,591 in the preceding year, while net earnings after expenses and taxes were $28,256,641, against $24,788,721. The total income of the parent company was $10,047,966, against $8,893,640 in the previous period, while net income after expenses and charges was $9,291,020, against $8,076,971. This was equal, after preferred dividends, to $2.79 a share earned on 1,800,211 common shares, against $2.21 a share earned on 1,776,726 common shares in the previous year.

Investments on Sept. 30 totaled $104,461,868, against $98,862,514 at the same date in 1928, while current assets were $14,975,643, against $13,685,158. Current liabilities were $8,344,857, against $8,683,482.

LISTINGS APPROVED BY STOCK EXCHANGE

Bucyrus-Erie to Use $2,000,000 From 80,000 Shares for Half Interest in English Concern.

ISSUES FOR OTHER DEALS

Securities of Standard Brands and White Eagle Oil Companies to Be Admitted.

Stock of the Bucyrus-Erie Company, which will be used for the establishment of an English associated company, announced last September, was approved for listing on notice of issuance on the New York Stock Exchange yesterday. The stock, consisting of 80,000 shares, is to be sold and the proceeds, expected to be about $2,000,000, will be used for the purchase of a half interest in Ruston & Hornsby, Ltd., and formation of Ruston-Bucyrus, Ltd. The English company is a manufacturer of excavating machinery.

It was disclosed by the listing application that the American Brake Shoe and Foundry Company had subscribed to 32,000 of the 80,000 shares to be used in the purchase. Five of the twenty-two directors of the Bucyrus-Erie Company are directors and stockholders of the brake shoe company, and in a letter to stockholders William W. Coleman, president of the former company, said, "It seems not only desirable to maintain but to extend this relationship." The brake shoe company paid $25 a share for the stock, the same price at which the remaining 48,000 shares have been offered to stockholders. The warrants for the purchase will expire on Dec. 30, the time having been extended by the executive committee from Dec. 2 because of market conditions.

The officers of Ruston-Bucyrus, Ltd., as announced in the application, will be Mr. Coleman, chairman of the board; Colonel J. S. Ruston, chairman of the board of Ruston & Hornsby, Ltd., vice chairman; Victor W. Bone, director of works of Ruston & Hornsby, Ltd., managing director, and Roger W. Newberry, manager of foreign sales of Bucyrus-Erie, director of sales. These four will also be directors, and in addition the directorate will consist of George R. Sharpley, John H. W. Pawlyn, Lieut. Col. P. D. Ionides and Sir Archibald Ross.

Standard Brands, Inc., received approval on notice of issuance for 119,096 additional shares of common stock, which will be used in the acquisition of the Widlar Food Products Company. The White Eagle Oil and Refining Company received approval on notice of issuance for the listing of 1,238 additional shares, which will be used for acquiring an additional interest in the Nicholas Oil Company, and 13,762 additional shares which have been sold at $28.30 a share to provide working capital for the company.

Common stock of the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company was admitted to the list immediately, and in addition to those of the Bucyrus-Erie Company, Standard Brands and the White Eagle Oil and Refining Company the following stocks were admitted upon notice of issuance:

FIRESTONE TIRE AND RUBBER COMPANY—800,000 shares of 6 per cent cumulative preferred stock, series A, par value, $100, and 600,000 shares of common stock, par value, $10.

AMERICAN BEET SUGAR COMPANY—42,271 additional shares of common stock without par value.

INLAND STEEL COMPANY—1,200,000 shares of no par value capital stock.

HOLLAND FURNACE COMPANY—8,513 additional shares of non par value stock.

F. & W. GRAND-SILVER STORES, INC.—451,509 shares of common stock without par value.

FIRESTONE TIRE GOES ON STOCK EXCHANGE

Both Preferred and Common Will Be Transferred Today From the Curb.

Both the preferred and common shares of the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company will be quoted on the New York Stock Exchange beginning today, instead of on the New York Curb Exchange, where both have been among the market leaders for several years. The board of governors of the New York Stock Exchange approved the application of the company to list both classes of shares yesterday.

The transfer of the securities of the company from the Curb to the Stock Exchange follows the recent declaration of the 400 per cent stock dividend and the sale of the $60,000,000 issue of new 6 per cent preferred stock by a syndicate headed by Otis & Co. Since the stock dividend, which was equivalent to a five-for-one split-up of the common stock, these shares have been quoted on the Curb Exchange at 30 to 41½. They closed yesterday at 36, off ¼ point from the closing on Tuesday.

The listing approved yesterday by the Stock Exchange included 600,000 shares of the new preferred stock and 2,250,000 shares of the $10 par value common stock of the company. The common stock is all there is outstanding at present of the 3,500,000 shares authorized. An additional 600,000 shares have been reserved for issuance upon exercise, from time to time, of stock purchase warrants which accompany the recent preferred issue of the company.

MOTOR STOCKS RECOVERING

General curtailment in the production schedules of automobile manufacturers throughout the United States and Canada is still in force as the industry enters the final month of the year, and present indications are that the total production for the year will not exceed the 5,600,000 units which were forecast as a conservative estimate several weeks ago, according to Automotive Industries.

The retail market is being watched closely by sales executives who are trying to restrain shipments to dealers to a point commensurate with the demand from buyers. The present level of activity in the industry is seen as favorable to dealers who are carrying heavy stocks of new and used cars.

The first quarter of 1930 is expected to show a total production somewhat below that of the corresponding period this year, but there seems to be no doubt, it is said, that the annual automobile shows in various central points in the country will stimulate great buying interest and lead to an eminently successful year as a whole.

A seasonal decline in new retail paper has been reported by the finance companies, but none of these companies has indicated that the loss is any more than normal for this time of year and most of them have expressed a definite optimism over the prospects of the automotive industry.

An average of the twenty motor stocks listed on the New York Stock Exchange, taken by Automotive Industries on Dec. 2, showed that these had rebounded 38 per cent from their lows. Stocks of accessories and parts companies came back by an average of 11 per cent. An average of industrial stocks showed an upswing of 25.6 per cent since the lows of Nov. 9, 11 and 13.

The Nash Motors Company reports for November shipments of 6,337 cars, as against 7,800 in the same month last year. Shipments for the fourth quarter of the fiscal year, ended on Nov. 30, were 26,300 cars, against 45,500 in the corresponding period of the previous year, while shipments for the entire fiscal year were 117,300 cars, against 137,600 in the preceding year.

OPPOSES INSURANCE SUIT.

Kansas Attorney General Says State Is Investigating Company.

KANSAS CITY, Kan., Dec. 4 (AP).—William A. Smith, Attorney General of Kansas, today moved to dismiss a suit filed yesterday in which a temporary receiver was asked for the Federal Reserve Life Insurance Company.

Allegations that officials of the company had defrauded it of more than $1,000,000 were contained in the suit, which was filed by Fred R. White, Wyandotte County attorney, acting for six stockholders.

The Attorney General said the State Insurance Department had been investigating the company since April and that if a hearing by the department developed irregularities the State would file a suit similar to that brought by the Wyandotte County attorney.

Savage Arms Buys Shotgun Plant.

The Savage Arms Corporation has acquired the shotgun business of the A. H. Fox Gun Company of Philadelphia, including tools, inventory and good-will. There will be no additional financing in carrying out the deal.

BANK STOCKS IN VAN OF RISE ON COUNTER

Industrial and Insurance Shares Prominent in Upturn—Chain Stores Quiet and Firm.

Most issues swept upward yesterday afternoon in the over-the-counter market, following irregularity in the morning. Banks spurted forward in the later trading, led by Guaranty, Manhattan and New York Title and Mortgage. Other banks that gained were Liberty, America, Empire old, Brooklyn and Title Guarantee and Trust.

Industrials and insurance issues moved higher on a fair volume of sales. Those to gain included National Casket, Crowell Publishing, Aetna Life, Northern and Westchester Fire. Technicolor and West Virginia Pulp and Paper were off slightly.

Bonds and communication stocks were active and displayed strength. New England Telephone and Telegraph and Peninsular Telephone preferred were leaders. Chain stores tended to firmness in quiet trading. Neisner and Silver were up moderately, while G. C. Murphy common and preferred were lower.

$10,000,000 GROUP POLICY.

Reynolds Tobacco Company Insures Employes With Equitable.

A contributory group insurance contract with the Equitable Life Assurance Society of America has been made by the R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, effective yesterday. It will cover approximately 10,000 employes under group life, accident and health plans to the extent of $10,000,000.

Six months' service with the company is necessary for eligibility under the plan, which is drawn on a salary basis. The insurance range is from $500 to $1,000, and the weekly indemnity under the accident and health plan varies from $6 to $40.

PROPOSE TO MERGE BEET SUGAR PLANTS

American Company in Deal to Acquire Properties of the Amalgamated.

NEW STOCK TO BE LISTED

Exchange Approves 62,271 Shares Additional to Be Used in Carrying Out the Plan.

Merger of the Amalgamated Sugar Company, which operates extensive beet-sugar plants in Utah, Idaho and Montana, with the American Beet Sugar Company is indicated in the application of the latter company to list 62,271 additional shares of its common stock on the New York Stock Exchange. The shares, which were authorized by the directors of American Beet Sugar for the exchange of all the outstanding stock of the Amalgamated company, were approved yesterday for listing by the Board of Governors of the Exchange on notice of issuance.

The application does not disclose how far the merger plan has proceeded. The application states:

"At a meeting of the Board of Directors of the American company duly called and held Nov. 20, 1929 the board duly adopted a resolution providing for the issuance and delivery of 62,271 shares of the common stock of the American company, from time to time and when required, in exchange for issued and outstanding shares of the common stock of the Amalgamated company on a basis of one share of said American stock for eight shares of the stock of the Amalgamated Company."

The application for the listing further states that "substantial economies of operation and finance will be effected as a result of the acquisition by the American company of the outstanding stock of the Amalgamated company. Some of these advantages and benefits, may be summarized as follows:

"Reduction of the hazard due to possible seasonal conditions in any locality, saving in overhead and supervisory expenses in the handling of increased volume of output with corresponding reduction in costs of units of production, and other advantages and economies in all departments of operation."

VOTES BIG DIVIDEND RISE.

STOCKHOLM, Dec. 4 (AP).—The Graengesberg Mining Company, the largest organization of its kind in Sweden, will declare a dividend of 17 per cent for 1928, against 5 per cent the year before. Peace on the Swedish labor market and a greatly increased export of iron ore are chiefly responsible for this increase.

The Gota Shipbuilding Company of Gothenburg has declared an unchanged dividend of 8 per cent. The net income for the year increased nearly 500,000 crowns to 1,580,000 crowns.

Phones on Southern Pacific Train.

The Southern Pacific has equipped its train, the Cascade, with a telephone system. Passengers may converse with those in other cars or may order meals, summon valets or give instructions as to baggage over the telephone.

Tests having proved the service satisfactory, the Southern Pacific is considering installing the devices on other de luxe trains.

BUYS BEAUHARNOIS POWER.

Montreal Light to Take 150,000 Horsepower From New Plant.

Special to The New York Times.

MONTREAL, Que., Dec. 4.—The Beauharnois Power Corporation has announced that it has made a contract by which the Montreal Light, Heat and Power Consolidated Company will take 150,000 of the 500,000 horsepower to be developed in the corporation's hydroelectric project on the St. Lawrence River. A contract for the sale of 250,000 horsepower to the Ontario Hydroelectric Commission was announced previously. It is expected that before the completion of the plant the corporation will have disposed of the remaining 100,000 horsepower.

R. O. SWEEZEY, president; president of Newman Sweezey & Co.
A. F. WHITE, vice president; vice president of the Canadian Bank of Commerce.
AIME GEOFFRION, director of the Canada Life Assurance Company.
K. S. GODIN, director of the British Columbia Power Corporation.
J. H. GUNDY, president of Wood, Gundy & Co.
MILLER LASH, president of the Brazilian Traction Company.
C. A. MONTGOMERY, director of Montreal Light, Heat and Power.
P. J. PARADIS, director of the Quebec Power Corporation.
M. W. WILSON, general manager of the Royal Bank of Canada.

Two Spanish Banks Merge.

TWO BOARDS STUDY LONG ISLAND TRAINS

Joint Hearing by Transit and Public Service Commissions Will Start Dec. 23.

BRANCHES FOR CITY URGED

Queens Civic Bodies Revive the Plan for Acquisition of Several Local Lines.

The Public Service Commission will hold joint hearings with the Transit Commission in the investigation of Long Island Railroad service, which will begin on Dec. 23, it was learned yesterday. Activities of civic groups in Queens and a statement issued by the railroad made it clear that one of the important matters to come before the investigators will be the possibility of turning over to the city, either free or at a "reasonable" cost, such local lines as the Whitestone, Rockaway and Atlantic Avenue divisions.

The Transit Commission's jurisdiction over terminals and other facilities entirely within the city limits make its participation in the investigation essential. Public Service Commissioner George R. Van Namee is expected to announce soon the name of the Transit Commission member who will sit with him during the hearings.

The Long Island's statement, issued jointly by General W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, and George LeBoutillier, vice president of the Long Island, announced a willingness to cooperate fully with State and city officials to relieve congestion and increase service into the Pennsylvania Terminal and the Flatbush Avenue terminal in Brooklyn. It declared, however, that the Long Island must not be called upon to provide local accommodations or to compete with five-cent fare rapid transit lines paralleling its routes.

General Atterbury and Mr. Le Boutillier suggested that the city, by taking over the Rockaway and Whitestone divisions and possibly the Atlantic division, could use them as part of its local transit service, leaving the company free to develop through service from Nassau and Suffolk County points to Pennsylvania Terminal and Flatbush Avenue, cutting out the Jamaica transfer and saving from five to eight minutes of running time. An increase of eighteen trains an hour during rush periods could thus be provided, the statement declared.

The company is not ready to outline its plan, it was said, until the city transit authorities decide on a program. The Board of Transportation is already negotiating with the company on acquisition of the Rockaway division. Three years ago it rejected an offer by the company to hand over the Whitestone branch without charge.

Acceptance of the company's offer of the Whitestone branch was urged yesterday by a committee of citizens representing College Point, Whitestone, Malba and Beechhurst, communities served by the line. Borough President Harvey of Queens, who received members of the committee, assured them of his support in their plan to ask Chairman John H. Delaney of the Board of Transportation to reconsider the previous refusal to take over the line. The committee expressed the fear that unless this was done their communities would be left without service should the Interstate Commerce Commission grant the company's pending application to abandon the Whitestone branch.

Ray H. Palmer, chairman of the citizens' committee, declared that the city, by taking over and reconstructing the branch line, could provide rapid transit for the area much more cheaply and quickly than under the rapid transit extension plan recently announced by the Board of Transportation.

Approval of the plan to have the city take over the Whitestone branch was also voiced by the newly organized College Point Chamber of Commerce. The organization also endorsed the opposition to the Long Island's pending application for abandonment of the line.

The last of the briefs opposing abandonment was filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission yesterday, when Corporation Counsel Hilly submitted the city's objections to the recent report of the commission's examiner, which recommended abandonment provided the company furnishes necessary bus and truck facilities.

CONFIRMS INTEREST OF P. R. R. IN B. & M.

Acting President of Latter Road Puts Holdings at 10 to 15% of Voting Stock.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Dec. 4.—The first official confirmation of reports that the Pennsylvania Railroad has been acquiring stock in the Boston & Maine Railroad was obtained tonight from Thomas Nelson Perkins, acting president of the Boston & Maine.

Mr. Perkins said his understanding was that the Pennsylvania, or its allied company, the Pennroad Corporation, had acquired between 10 and 15 per cent of the voting stock of the Boston & Maine. He said it had been common talk for some time that the Pennsylvania had been engaged in such an effort.

"My information," said Mr. Perkins, "is that the Pennsylvania has bought preferred stock of the Boston & Maine to an amount which I understand is somewhere between 10 and 15 per cent."

Mr. Perkins was asked whether he thought the Pennsylvania would seek to increase its holdings to obtain complete voting control. He replied:

"No. I don't believe the Pennsylvania would even try to obtain control, inasmuch as the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad already holds somewhere around 30 per cent of the voting stock in the Boston & Maine and this would offer too much of a hindrance to the Pennsylvania in obtaining a greater margin of control."

He added, in answer to another question, that he did not believe there was any likelihood of the Pennsylvania and the New Haven pooling their voting stock to act together. "I don't look for any attempt to interfere with the conduct of the Boston & Maine," he added.

He agreed that, obviously, the combined holdings of the New Haven and the Pennsylvania in the Boston & Maine were sufficient to give practical, if not numerical, control, but that there appeared to be no likelihood of an alliance between the two roads to influence the policies of the Boston & Maine.

He discounted suggestions of the possibility of the Pennsylvania exerting any great influence in any possible consolidation of New England railroads.

Asks Mail Carrier for Route Rising 2,000 Feet in 5 Miles

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—"The United States mails must move no matter what seemingly insurmountable obstacles are faced," the Postoffice Department declared today in issuing advertisements inviting proposals to carry mail over the star route from Reno Junction to Downieville, Cal.

In recommending to the department the elimination of the route between Sattley and Sierra City, an inspector called attention to the fact that west of Sattley the elevation in the Sierra Mountains increases 2,000 feet within a distance of five miles and that the snow is very deep during the Winter season.

"During last Winter," the inspector reported, "it was necessary for the contractor to have at one time thirty head of horses to maintain the service on account of the snow and bad roads on this portion of the route."

BANK CLEARINGS UP, NEW ENGLAND LEADS

Increase for November in Whole Country Is Put at 15.7 Per Cent.

NEW YORK CITY GAIN 20.6%

Rise Recorded Here Despite Heavy Decline in Stock Market Operations.

November bank clearings totaled $64,722,387,000, an increase of 15.7 per cent over last year, according to reports from 126 cities by Bradstreet's. Clearings in New York City amounted to $43,089,703,000 during the month, which was a gain of 20.6 per cent over November, 1928. It is pointed out that the gain in this city was made in spite of sales on the New York Stock Exchange falling to 72,455,420 shares during the month, against 115,433,835 in the corresponding month last year.

The gains were confined almost wholly to New England, the Middle Atlantic and the Central Western cities, according to the report. New England cities showed an average rise of 33.1 per cent, the Middle Atlantic group 20.4 per cent and the Central Western cities one-tenth of 1 per cent. The other districts reported losses.

Total clearings of the 126 cities for the eleven months this year were $66,020,166,000, an increase of 17.9 per cent over last year. New York City clearings so far this year have been $444,142,040,000, a gain of 26 per cent.

CONWAY IS UPHELD IN SOVIET INSURANCE

Court of Appeals Decides State Superintendent Acted Legally in Liquidation.

Albert Conway, State Superintendent of Insurance, was successful yesterday in the Court of Appeals in Albany, when he was sustained in two of many important cases arising in the New York State courts involving five United States branches of Russian fire-insurance companies, operations of which were suspended when the Soviet Government confiscated and annulled the parent companies in Russia.

In 1929 the New York Superintendent of Insurance was directed to take possession of the American branches and to liquidate their affairs. He has paid to creditors and policyholders in the United States 100 per cent of their debts with interest. Many proceedings have been brought by foreign policyholders and claimants against the superintendent, endeavoring to recover the surplus assets.

Among the claimants was the Sun Insurance Office of London, which held that one of the parent companies, the Moscow Fire Insurance Company of Moscow, Russia, owed it $124,078 with interest amounting to $60,643 which accrued under treaties alleged to have been made in Russia prior to the Soviet revolution.

Before the funds were placed in the hands of the New York liquidator, the Sun Insurance Company assigned its claim to Henry F. Lesch, who started an action against the Moscow Fire Insurance Company in the Supreme Court, Queens County. Mr. Lesch, as assignee, obtained a warrant of attachment and the Sheriff of New York County attempted to levy upon the funds and property of the American branch.

After the superintendent took possession of the American branch, Mr. Lesch demanded payment from the superintendent, who refused to allow the claims. Subsequently, Lesch came into the New York liquidation proceeding and submitted a plan for distributing the surplus and petitioned the Supreme Court on behalf of himself and all other foreign creditors for an order directing the New York superintendent to distribute the surplus and to pay all foreign creditors, including the claim of the Sun Insurance Company.

The lower court appointed a referee to hear the case preparatory to granting relief. Superintendent Conway, through his representative, Clarence C. Fowler, contended that the relief could not be granted and that the appointment of the referee was useless. The Appellate Division sustained Mr. Conway and the Court of Appeals yesterday affirmed the decision.

The Court of Appeals affirmed also the decision of the Appellate Division of the First Department sustaining Superintendent Conway in the matter of Behre et al. vs. Second Russian Insurance Company.

LATE TRADING CUTS EARLY COTTON GAINS

October Contracts Go From Premium to Discount Under May and July.

CROP ESTIMATES REDUCED

Reports From South Show Further Disposition by Mills to Lessen Output.

Although prices advanced further in the early trading on the Cotton Exchange yesterday, the market met more Southern hedging than earlier in the week and a setback of $1 a bale left the list finally 5 to 15 points lower than on Tuesday.

Active covering in the previous day's quarter cent improvement had reduced the floating short interest and a private crop estimate of 15,034,000 bales halted the demand for contracts from several directions.

A feature was the shifting differences between deliveries of the current season and the 1930 crop, next October contracts going from a premium over both May and July to a discount.

A sharp rise abroad in American, Indian and Egyptian cotton stimulated additional buying on the opening here, with initial prices up 30 to 35 points from the week's low levels. Compared with the scale buying orders at lower levels that turned Tuesday's market, spot houses became sellers on Southern orders and professionals released contracts covered during the upturn.

Several private estimates showed a reduction of about 200,000 bales from figures of a month ago, leading operators to anticipate some shading in the annual report on Monday, but dry goods advices discouraged buying. Reports from Carolina mill quarters reflected a more general acceptance of plans to reduce output and operations are estimated as being cut 25 per cent.

The Department of Agriculture announced a broadening of the crop and market reporting bureaus owing to operations of the Federal Farm Board and the extension of cooperative agencies.

BANK MUST CHANGE NAME.

Registration Refused in Havana as Bank of Republic of Cuba.

HAVANA, Dec. 4 (AP).—The board of directors of the Havana Mercantile Register today refused registration rights to the recently created Bank of the Republic of Cuba, capitalized at $150,000,000, because of its name.

The board's action was based on the Torriente law of Cuba, which prohibits the use of the name "Republic of Cuba" in connection with any private organization. Officials of the bank said that the name would be changed to "Banco Credito de Cuba."

FINDS CARELESSNESS CAUSES MANY INJURIES

A check of 7,700 industrial accidents, mortal and otherwise, resulting from non-mechanical causes, has revealed that the largest number attributed to a single cause resulted from manual handling of materials, thus accounting for 33.5 per cent of the total, according to an investigation just completed by Edward O. Allard, manager of the safety engineering and inspection department of the American Surety Company and its affiliate, the New York Casualty Company. Next in importance, it was found, were falls resulting from carelessness or other causes.

"Altogether," said Mr. Allard, "nearly 11,000 fatal and non-fatal cases were analyzed, and it was surprising to find that more than twice as many accidents were due to non-mechanical causes as were chargeable to machinery in operation, the former total being more than 7,700, as against less than 3,200.

"These figures emphasize graphically the importance of the human factor in the situation. Far-sighted manufacturers have installed safety devices on moving belts and machinery and have safeguarded other points of hazard, because accident prevention is good business practice from every standpoint, yet it is evident that employes continue to suffer injuries, many of which are fatal, because they do not exercise sufficient care in performing such ordinary actions as walking and carrying.

"This record suggests a great need for the further education of factory workers to be more careful by talks, placards, motion pictures and every other means of driving home the doctrine of safety."

DIVIDENDS ANNOUNCED

Extra and Increased Payments to Stockholders Are Ordered by Directors.

Lehigh Valley Railroad.

STOCK SALES TAKE MONJAR INTO COURT

"Success Club" Called Fraudulent Scheme as Order to Show Cause Is Issued at Newark.

FEDERAL AUTHORITIES ACT

Seek to Examine Books and Question Officers—State Injunction Also Planned.

Vice Chancellor Backes in Newark yesterday issued an order directing H. B. Monjar & Co., Inc., of 605 Broad Street, Newark, to show cause on Dec. 10 why they should not be restrained from selling any securities in New Jersey and why their officer should not appear before Assistant Attorney General Robert D. Grosman to testify in regard to activities of the company and submit all corporate books for examination.

The officers of the company named in the bill of complaint are Hugo B. Monjar, president; Crowell Pease, vice president; Joseph V. Stewart, secretary, and Clement Drew, treasurer. They are charged with attempting to sell securities by fraud through the medium of a "success club in which all members are pledged to the utmost secrecy."

Mr. Monjar was the founder of the Decime Club, which went out of existence more than a year ago under attack by the Attorney General of New York. According to the action in Newark yesterday, H. B. Monjar & Co. have been the subject of recent investigation by State and Federal authorities in New York.

United States Attorney Tuttle announced in New York on Oct. 18 that he would present the concern's affairs to the Federal grand jury, because there was evidence it had used the mails to sell its stock.

The bill of complaint yesterday recited that the Monjar scheme "appears to be the enrolment of 100,000 young Americans" in a "success club" in which the success training offered "is merely a subterfuge to its main purpose, which is to win the confidence of these people and induce them to purchase securities of doubtful or no worth by the use of false pretense, misrepresentation and deception."

"Among others of the fraudulent schemes conceived by the defendants, and particularly by Hugo B. Monjar," the bill declared, "through the medium of which he intends to sell worthless securities to citizens of this State, and particularly to members of his success club, is one whereby he purposes to organize a corporation together with two unnamed bankers.

"The purpose of this corporation is alleged to be the construction of 1,000,000 homes throughout this country, which homes are to be sold at a profit of $1,000 each, or a total profit of $1,000,000,000.

"Stock in the proposed corporation is to be sold to an allegedly chosen few in units of $100, $200 and $300 each. It is further represented that in ten years each $100 share in the enterprise will be worth $50,000. The stock was offered on the partial payment plan, whereby shares can be purchased by impecunious but worthy subscribers at $10 down and the balance in easy payments."

To Issue Fiduciary Law Magazine.

The State Title and Mortgage Company is about to publish a monthly magazine to be known as The Fiduciary Law Chronicle. The magazine will be edited by Professor Allison Reppy, director of the Heights Division of the School of Law of New York University. He will be assisted by Professor Lawrence T. Simpson of the same faculty.

BUILDING GAINED DURING OCTOBER

Substantial Increase Over September Is Reported by the Department of Labor.

PERMITS HERE INCREASED

The Bronx Was the Only Borough Which Showed a Falling Off in New Construction.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—A substantial building increase in October as compared with September was reported today by the Bureau of Statistics of the Department of Labor.

Total building operations in 260 cities represented an expenditure of $202,082,190, an increase of 16.2 per cent over September.

Residential buildings decreased 3.2 per cent, while non-residential buildings increased 32.8 per cent in estimated cost. Buildings for 12,075 families were provided, a decrease of 8.3 per cent.

Construction for September and October in the political divisions was reported as follows:

Division.	September.	October.
New England	$13,166,827	$16,959,673
Middle Atlantic States	60,741,136	76,646,022
East North Central	50,144,945	61,817,292
West North Central	8,498,213	5,928,429

South Central	10,793,344	6,971,675
Mountain & Pacific	20,850,172	21,972,699
Total	$173,731,045	$202,032,190

The Middle Atlantic States, which show the largest building operations of any geographical division, increased estimated expenditures for each class of new buildings and for total building operations, comparing their October with their September building permit record. The increase was 26.2 per cent.

Increase Reported Here.

There was an increase in indicated expenditures in every borough of Greater New York except the Bronx.

Construction in twenty-two cities in New York State was as follows:

Permits issued in Philadelphia during October showed an increase of over 100 per cent compared with September. In Pittsburgh there was a slight decrease.

New England Gained 23 Per Cent.

New England cities increased expenditures for residential buildings 16.4 per cent. Non-residential buildings in this district increased 38.9 per cent over September and the total for all buildings was 23.3 per cent more.

There was a large increase in both residential and non-residential building in Chicago. Permits called for an expenditure of $23,529,030, compared with $12,026,015 in September.

Permits issued in Cleveland showed a marked increase, but there was a falling off in Detroit.

Decreases were shown in residential, non-residential and total building operations in the Northwest Central States of 30.2 per cent.

South Atlantic States fell off 36.2 per cent in residential buildings, but non-residential buildings increased 71 per cent.

In the South Central Division expenditures for both classes of new buildings and for all building operations decreased.

South Africa Plans Sugar Duty.

PRETORIA, South Africa, Dec. 4 (Canadian Press via Reuters).—Imposition of a dumping duty against Canadian sugar in order to protect South African planters is foreshadowed in the newspaper Ons Vaderland, a government organ. The paper says the proclamation is expected to be issued officially in the Gazette on Friday.

Machinery Trade Gains.

The usual year-end recession of activity caused by depletion of budgets and the taking of inventories was felt in the market for machinery and machine tools throughout the country in the past week, but conditions generally are better than they were a year ago and there is a prevailing optimism over the prospects for 1930, according to The American Machinist.

PIG IRON OUTPUT OFF SHARPLY IN NOVEMBER

Pig iron production contracted sharply in November, according to The Iron Age, reflecting a rapid adjustment of output to reduced demand. Total production was 3,181,411 tons and the daily average was 106,047 tons, the lowest since September, 1928. The decline from the October daily rate, 9,404 tons, was the largest reduction recorded since May, 1925. The net loss in active blast furnaces in November was 26, 3 having been blown in and 29 put out. The greatest net losses in recent years were 40 furnaces in April, 1924, and 46 in May, 1924. On Dec. 1, 177 furnaces were in blast, making iron at the rate of 98,450 tons a day, compared with 203 furnaces and a daily rate of 113,600 tons on Nov. 1.

Retailers Survey Trade Outlook.

Current retail trade and the outlook for the first six months of 1930 were discussed yesterday at the meeting of the board of directors of the National Retail Dry Goods Association. Consideration was based on a survey of the situation made for the directors, which will be presented today at the conference in Washington called by the Chamber of Commerce of the United States at the suggestion of President Hoover. The findings of the survey will be presented by Alfred B. Koch of Lasalle & Koch, president of the organization, who presided at yesterday's meeting.

Raw Silk Stocks at New High.

Raw silk consumption in November declined as compared with previous months, but the total of 50,562 bales was about 3,000 bale. larger than for the same month last year, according to figures issued yesterday by the Silk Association. Thus far this year the monthly consumption average is 52,326 bales, which compares with 47,817 in 1928. Imports during the month declined to 62,885 bales from the record figure of 66,514 in November. Storage stocks increased notably, reaching a new high total of 76,452 bales on Dec. 1, as against 64,129, the previous record, on Nov. 1.

Shoe Trade Gets Good Start.

Following a November which reflected the usual seasonal falling off in business, local shoe wholesalers have been getting orders so far this month that in many instances have been surprisingly good. The recent storm was responsible for most of the improvement. It released a lot of money that had been tied up in stocks of protective footwear, and the psychological effect has been to encourage dealers to place orders they had been holding in abeyance. If the remainder of the month can keep up the present pace there is little question that leading houses will go into the new year quite substantially ahead of 1929. Among the few merchandising features of the week has been the filling-in business received on house slippers and other gift footwear.

See Gain in Dress Goods Orders.

While orders for Spring fabrics have been somewhat slow, confidence in a stronger demand in the near future was expressed yesterday at the meeting of the women's wear group of the Wool Institute. Stocks on hand were reported as low, with price levels firmly maintained. Tweeds and lightweight worsteds are in the lead in the business placed. Features of the Wool Fabric and Fashion Revue to be held at the Ritz-Carlton in January were outlined to the representatives of the mills.

***

Quarter-Size Dresses Gaining.

One of the features of current business in "stout" dresses in this market is the increasing interest that retailers are showing in garments made in quarter sizes. These are designed especially for the short, stout woman or miss, and are being stocked by leading Fifth Avenue stores and specialty shops, which are said to be having considerable success with them. They are particularly valuable, it was said here yesterday, in successfully fitting women of 38 to 52 bust measure, and of limited height. Not only do they afford better fit than half sizes, but they hold down alterations costs. It is claimed, however, that many retailers have still to learn the advantage of stocking them.

Christmas Hardware Trade Better.

Active buying of Christmas tree sets was under way in the hardware trade this week. Orders placed by retailers are on slightly less volume than they were last year and a trend toward the cheaper sets is evident. Although orders are being filled without difficulty now, jobbers are fearful that late buying by retailers will cause a jam of orders later this month and make deliveries uncertain. Trade in general was brisk this week. The call for seasonal goods continued at a good level and the snowstorm which blanketed the metropolitan district moved large stocks of shovels and ice choppers.

Order Curtains for January Sales.

Buyers in search of curtain materials at special prices for January sales have been shopping the market this week. Supplies of the merchandise desired are limited in some quarters, but no serious difficulty in placing orders has been reported. Orders for regular Spring merchandise show an increasing interest in pastels. Cottage curtain sets are expected to be widely used this year and prints are particularly popular for this type. Prospects for business in the low price ranges in curtains are claimed to be excellent. There is less confidence in the possibilities of high price goods.

Slight Drop in Grocery Volume.

Grocery trade this week dropped off slightly for both wholesalers and retailers. Sales are still good, however, and the drop occasioned no concern. Staples as well as delicacies were affected by the development. Winter cereals and dried fruits improved in volume during the week and demand for canned vegetables and fruits was good. No radical price changes have been reported in any staple lines. The purchase of Christmas goods by consumers is expected to enliven the market next week.

Burlap Prices Firmer Here.

Yesterday's prices on spot burlaps in this market were up 5 points from the levels of a week ago, despite the dip that occurred in the course of the week. Some good buying has been done since the last report, and spot stocks are now in such a position that further activity would be reflected in additional advances. Cables from Calcutta reported that market unchanged yesterday from Tuesday, but from 5 to 10 points higher than last Wednesday. Firmness of prices there was evident, despite the limited buying of futures at the moment. These prices were quoted here by C. E. Rockstroh & Co., Inc., on standard 40-inch burlaps:

Gray Goods Trading Very Light.

With buyers and sellers deadlocked on prices, trading in the local gray goods market again was light in volume yesterday. Small sales of printcloths were put through at recent prices, which ranged from 6 cents for 38½-inch 60-48s to 9¼ cents for 39-inch 68-72s, but most buyers wanted to trade at an eighth under those figures. In sheetings there was further business in 40-inch 2.85s at 10¾ cents, and buyers of 36-inch 4.70s paid 7 cents for them. The rest of the market was devoid of feature.

BIG SALES IN HIDE MARKET.

Value of Turnover in First Six Months Put at $23,500,000.

In the first six months of operation, which closed yesterday, more than 146,500,000 pounds of raw hide were traded on the New York Hide Exchange. The value was estimated at $23,500,000.

As the Exchange is the only futures board of its kind in the world, it has drawn membership not only from many parts of this country and Canada, but from Czechoslovakia, Havre, Paris, Amsterdam, Belgium, Berlin, Cuba, Liverpool, Rotterdam, Shanghai, Rio de Janeiro, London, Buenos Aires and Hamburg.

LIVE STOCK AT CHICAGO.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Ill., Dec. 4.—Shipping demand for hogs was much less active today, and with prospects for heavy receipts tomorrow prices were forced 10 to 15 cents lower for the bulk of sales, with the finish at a loss of as much as 20 cents. The top was 10 cents lower at $9.55, with the day's average off 10 cents at $9.30. Most sales were at $9.10 to $9.40, with 250 to 350 pound butchers quoted at $9 to $9.55, 300 to 350 pound kinds $9.11 to $9.55, 160 to 200 pound average $9 to $9.50, and packing sows $8 to $8.75. Packers bought 26,900 head, and shippers, 2,500, with 6,000 left over. Receipts were 30,000, with 55,000 estimated for tomorrow.

Cattle sold rather slowly, even for yearlings, which were steady to 25 cents lower. Weighty steers declined 25 cents and in some instances looked even lower. Best yearlings sold at $16, with heavy steers up to $14.25. Most beef cattle brought $11 to $14.50. Receipts were 14,000.

Fat lambs were in fairly good demand, with the market steady to strong. The bulk of sales were at $13 to $13.25, with a top of $13.50. Sheep were steady at $4 to $5.75. Receipts were 15,000.

LIVE STOCK AND MEATS.

These prices were reported yesterday in the New York and New Jersey markets by the United States Department of Agriculture:

Cattle.

Steers in light supply, moderately active, barely steady; mostly $12.75; medium $10.25 to $12. Cows moderately active, steady to 25 cents higher; good up to $9; common to medium $6.50 to $8.25. Low cutters and cutters, $3 to $4.25. Bulls scarce, steady; common and medium $7 to $8.25.

Vealers and Calves.

Vealers in moderate supply, fairly active, strong; good to choice $16.50 to $18.50, mediums $13 to $16, cull and common $10 to $12. Calves scarce, strong; common to medium $8.50 to $10.

Sheep.

Lambs scarce, fairly active, steady quality considered; medium to good, New York lambs, $13.50; mediums $12 to $13.25; common $9 to $11.50. Ewes nominal.

THE CUSTOMS COURT.

Tax Imposed on Imported Cigars Classed as Internal Revenues, Not Customs Levy.

Taxes imposed upon imported cigars and tobacco are internal revenue taxes and not customs duties, the United States Customs Court ruled yesterday in denying a claim for a 20 per cent reduction in the tax on cigars imported from Cuba. Faber, Coe & Gregg, Inc., claimed the reduction on the strength of the reciprocity treaty under which this country allows a reduction in customs duties on products from Cuba.

The internal revenue tax, the decision points out, is collected on domestic as well as imported tobacco products and a construction of the law which would result in levying a lower internal revenue tax on cigars of foreign origin than on those produced in the United States would be absurd.

The claim of the French Kreme Company for a tax of 6 cents on imported egg yolk, which had been dried by a spray process, was denied in another decision by the court. The product had been taxed at the rate of 18 cents a pound as dried egg yolk under provisions of Paragraph 713. The plaintiffs contended the merchandise should have been designated as egg yolk not specially provided for.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

Butter.

Receipts, 8,451 packages. Supplies of fine fresh table grades barely equal to pressing requirements and the feeling was decidedly firm though no advance was established. It was very easy to sell at current quotations. Inquiry was mainly for these fine qualities, all other grades ruling quiet with prices irregular.

Poultry.

LIVE.

Fifty-one freight cars in or due yesterday, about 47 cars unloaded and about 20 cars expected today. Listings for the week increased to 200 freight cars in addition to 5 straight cars of turkeys. Fowls active and firm. Small and south logged chickens sold well. Pullets firm. Old roosters quiet. Fine turkeys steady; old toms neglected. Best western ducks and geese in sellers' favor.

REVIEW OF THE DAY IN REALTY MARKET

Sales Announced in Widely Scattered Sections of Manhattan, but Trading Is Light.

NEW BUILDING FINANCED

Real estate trading was light in Manhattan again yesterday. Only a few sales were announced. These, however, represented widely scattered sections of the borough, reports coming from downtown, the upper east side, Harlem and the Washington Heights section.

With the Dodge reports showing a gain in new construction in the metropolitan area for November, there was a fair increase in the amount of new financing announced yesterday. The feature loan was that made to Ralph Ciluzzi on a large west side housing development.

On the upper east side, the Warrington Holding Corporation disposed of the three five-story tenement houses at 304, 306 and 308 East Seventieth Street. The houses, which occupy a plot 81 by 100 feet, adjoin the southeast corner of Second Avenue. They were sold by A. Karhan & Son, brokers, to George Klopacka. The property was held by the sellers at $150,000, according to the brokers.

The same brokers announced the sale yesterday for Bertha Holub of the five-story apartment house, 25 by 100 feet, at 408 East Seventieth Street.

In the midtown section of the west side the Brant Realty Corporation, Barrett P. Smith, president, purchased from the Danapo Realty Corporation the three-story dwelling at 361 West Fiftieth Street, 13 by 100 feet. R. W. Murray & Co., brokers, negotiated the sale of the property.

A group of negro physicians and laymen have purchased the Vincent Sanitarium in Harlem and plan to operate it as a community enterprise for Harlem. Nail & Parker, Inc., were the brokers. The property is at 2,348 Seventh Avenue, near 137th Street, and was sold by the Vintula Realty Corporation, Dr. U. Conrad Vincent, president. The satitarium was built by Dr. Vincent as a private institution. It is equipped for fifty beds.

Aaron Weiss sold the five-story apartment house on a plot 50 by 100 feet at 604 West 191st Street, adjoining the subway station at that street and St. Nicholas Avenue. Loomis J. Grossman & Co. were the brokers. The buyer is an investor.

Moe Harris, operator, purchased from the Marshall estate of Hollywood, Cal., the three-story business building at 303 Canal Street, adjoining the northwest corner of Broadway. The Charles F. Noyes Company acted as broker. This was the first sale of the property in 100 years.

CONSTRUCTION SHOWS GAIN

Highest Total Recorded Since July Was Reached Last Month.

The highest total in new construction recorded since July was reached last month in the Metropolitan area, according to the F. W. Dodge Corporation.

An increase of more than $72,000,000 was noted when compared with the October records and an increase of more than $35,000,000 over the corresponding month of last year. New building and engineering work during the past month amounted to $149,884,400 against $78,001,800 for the preceding month and $114,721,600 for November last year.

Commercial building led all other classes with $67,977,100, or 45 per cent of the total, the Empire State Building being mainly responsible. Residential buildings featured second place, totaling $38,666,900, or 26 per cent. Public works and utilities reached $19,456,500, or 13 per cent, and hospitals and institutions $7,647,000, or 5 per cent.

New work reported as contemplated amounted to $209,518,400, an unusually high total.

Lewis Leigh, Inc., offices in [illegible] Avenue, for restaurant; Joseph O'Cara, broker.

FAVORS BUILDING HALT IN WESTCHESTER AREA

Apartment House Manager Urges Check Despite Reduction in Vacancy Percentage.

Despite a steady reduction in the percentage of vacancies in apartment houses in Westchester, the construction of more multi-family buildings in the county next Spring is inadvisable, according to H. E. Snow, president of the Prince & Ripley Management Corporation, who sees tightness in mortgage money for at least six months automatically impeding such projects.

"We do not want any more apartment houses built in Westchester County during the coming Spring, and it is likely that money will not be easily obtainable for apartment house construction until the latter half of 1930," Mr. Snow says. "The money situation will act as an automatic check on any further great volume of building for occupancy earlier than the Spring of 1931, and by that time Westchester will really need additional apartment house space.

"Present conditions in the real estate market are tending to fill up the existing apartment houses for two main reasons. First, because new apartment house construction has practically stopped in Westchester, due to tight money conditions, and second, because of a tendency to economize on living expenses.

"Another factor which has created a healthier condition in the apartment house field is the fact that a great many of the houses are now in the hands of stronger owners than heretofore. These owners can afford to operate the properties in a more efficient manner and under competent management.

"A recent survey of apartment houses in the city of New Rochelle reveals that out of 2,219 apartments there are 422 vacancies. This shows that apartment houses in New Rochelle are 81 per cent rented at this time. Last Spring our survey showed only 70 per cent rented. The survey includes all new buildings under construction at the present time, but does not include any building which has less than nine apartments. There is a total of sixty-seven apartment houses covered in the survey."

PROJECTS MAKE NEW LOW.

East Chester Building Permits Drop Further During Month.

Since the recent stock slump, building has been almost at a standstill in both East Chester and Tuckahoe, reports of Building Inspector John R. Wood for November show. Both sections showed a big drop from October and also from the corresponding month last year.

In East Chester last month's total was $41,800, with three permits accounting for nearly all of the amount. The town's October total, said to have been the lowest in ten years, was $61,650. November, therefore, established a new low. The drop from November, 1928, was very great. In that month permits were issued for construction valued at $703,425, the highest monthly total last year.

BUYS LONG ISLAND ESTATE.

Edson Bradley Gets Taller Beach Property in Roslyn.

Edson Bradley of Newport, R. I., has bought Caprice, the estate of Mrs. Henry P. Tailer in Roslyn, L. I. The six-acre parcel, which is opposite the Engineers' Club, has a small private beach. In addition to the large main residence, the outbuildings include a garage, a stable and a log cabin. Estates in the vicinity are owned by Percy R. Pyne 2d, Childs Frick, Arthur Williams, Benjamin Stern and R. J. Schwerin.

Mrs. Tailer held the property at $180,000, according to the Worthington Whitehouse Company, Inc., the broker.

The First National Bank is to merge with the Yonkers Trust Company, according to a recent announcement.

LEASEHOLD DEALS.

Recording Shows Rentals Under Hotel Seville Lease.

The lease of the Hotel Seveille by the Roy Realty Company, Louis C. Raegner, president, to the Seville Operating Corporation, Jacob Wilson, president, was recorded yesterday. The hotel occupies the block-front on the west side of Madison Avenue, from Twenty-eighth to Twenty-ninth Street.

The term began on the first of this month and runs for eighty-nine years and two months to Jan. 31, 2019. The annual rent will be $150,000 until Jan. 31, 1935, and between that date and Jan. 31, 1956, it will be $160,000, in addition to taxes and assessments. The net annual rental for the remainder of the term will be 6 per cent of the value of the land as arbitrated, but never less than $160,000.

The two houses at 321 and 323 West Seventy-fifth Street containing a total of thirty-three rooms have been leased by Rube Goldberg, cartoonist, to Andrew Anderson and Hannah Rahaley. The houses have been owned by Mr. Goldberg since 1925. Joseph H. Davis, broker, arranged the deal.

The International Packing and Trucking Company has leased from Hand & Haiss, Inc., the building at 332 East Twenty-seventh Street. J. F. Cahill & Co. were the brokers.

Sydney A. Conway, broker, leased for Ray W. Talmadge the entire building at 62 West Forty-eighth Street for sixty-three years to a client for investment.

The Hudson Canal Realty Corporation, Joseph E. Mautner, president, has leased to the Plymouth Restaurant, Inc., the lots and buildings at 223 Hudson Street and 491 Canal Street. The term runs from Dec. 1, 1929, to April 30, 1947, the rental being reserved.

The apartment and store building on the southeast corner of St. Nicholas Avenue and 189th Street has been leased by the Louchar Holding Corporation, Louis H. Low, treasurer, to Sohn & Friedman, Inc., for seven years from Dec. 1, 1929, the annual rent being $24,800.

The building at 364 Washington Street was leased by Henry B. Welch, executor, to J. & G. Lippmann for five years from May 1, 1932, at an annual rent of $12,000.

For five years from May 1 next the building at 97 Murray Street was leased by Santo Locascio and Alexander Finale to Irving I. Okun, the rent to be $5,750 a year.

The sixteen-year lease of the southeast corner of Eighth Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street, held by the United Cigar Stores Company, has been surrendered by that corporation to the Cooper Holding Corporation, Fenimore C. Goode, vice president.

Annie Moore leased 265 West Forty-fifth Street for a term of years to the Carpenters' Local Union Club. Joseph O'Gara was the broker.

LOAN ON WEST SIDE FLAT.

Five-story building at 1,399 Second Avenue, northwest corner of Seventy-second Street; $70,000 first mortgage for the Schulte Real Estate Company. George A. Bowman, Inc., broker.

Six-story apartment house at 7 and 9 West 108th Street, west of Central Park; $65,000 first mortgage at 5½ per cent for five years for the Jacob Rand Realty Company from the Central Savings Bank. Wood, Dolson Company, broker.

Bronx.

Property at the northwest corner of 180th Street and Third Avenue, running through to Melrose Avenue, $500,000 first mortgage for five years for the Ebling Realty Company, Inc. John J. Reynolds, broker.

General.

At a meeting of its mortgage committee, the Title Guarantee and Trust Company approved 251 loans amounting to $2,985,500. They were distributed as follows: In Manhattan and in Bronx, $2,137,000; in Brooklyn, Queens, Nassau and Suffolk, $613,300, and in Staten Island, $143,500.

APARTMENT LEASES.

Milo Sargent Gibbs, who in October married Eleanor Morgan Satterlee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert L. Satterlee, and a granddaughter of the late J. Pierpont Morgan, has leased an apartment at 565 Park Avenue. Announcement of the lease was made yesterday by Miss E. Frances Gaffney, broker. Miss Gaffney also announced the leasing of a furnished suite in 277 Park Avenue to J. N. J. Fitzgerald. Other apartment leases were:

Reginald H. Sturgis, Katherine C. Jocelyn, in 105 East Fifty-sixth Street; Brown, Wheelock, Harris, Vought & Co., brokers.

Max Heilman, in 460 East Forty-ninth Street; A. C. Walker & Co., brokers; Pease & Elliman, agents.

BRONX PROPERTIES SOLD

Brokers Announce Deals Involving Vacant Plots.

The vacant plot, 130 by 133 feet, at the northwest corner of Boston Road and Laconia Avenue has been sold by Charles P. Hauser through J. Clarence Davies, Inc., broker.

The Doris Improvement Corporation sold the vacant plot at the southwest corner of Boscobel Avenue and 168th Street, having a frontage of 113 feet on the avenue. Rullman Brothers were the brokers. The same brokers sold for the Doris Improvement Corporation the southwest corner of 170th Street and Boscobel Avenue, 54 by 94 feet.

As a site for two one-family brick dwellings the plot, 50 by 89 feet, on the east side of Hobart Avenue, about 150 feet north of La Salle Avenue, was bought yesterday by John Fless, builder. The sale was effected by Edward J. Kemmy, broker, for Eliza Goldsmith.

The Julius Trattner Company, as broker, sold for Gus Hoffman, investor, the five-story apartment house at 1,139 Clay Avenue, adjoining the corner of 167th Street. The plot is 50 by 100 feet. The house is arranged for twenty-five families.

The six-story apartment house at 2,195 Walton Avenue was sold by the Tilwin Holding Company to an investor. The house has 154 rooms and an annual rental of about $36,000. Mrs. Anne Inselstein and J. Goodman & Co. were the brokers.

SALES IN NEW JERSEY.

Joseph J. Dalton of Hoboken bought for investment a three-story brick building at 125 Franklin Street, opposite Cambridge Avenue, Jersey City. The structure, which is on a plot 25 by 100 feet, includes a ground floor store and two six-room apartments. J. I. Kislak, Inc., arranged the sale for Carl Schmidt of Jersey City.

Isador and Dora Kieth of West New York also bought for investment a similar structure at 716 Bergenline Avenue, between Eighteenth and Nineteenth Streets, West New York. The plot is 17½ by 75 feet. The store is occupied under a long-term lease. The seller, the Derge Realty Company, David Derge, president, held the parcel at $30,000. This is the second sale arranged for the company by the broker, Max Bernfeld, Inc.

Westchester Realty Firms Merge.

Two Westchester realty firms, Rodman M. Price, Inc., and Louis P. Miller, have consolidated and will operate hereafter under their combined names. The offices are in Larchmont and Harrison. The directors and associates are Walter Campbell of Detwiler & Co., investment bankers; George Mills, treasurer of the Trust Company of Larchmont; Mr. Miller, president of the Larchmont Real Estate Board; J. R. Packer, former vice president of the Erie Railroad; J. R. Parmelee, former cashier of the Totowa National Bank; Mr. Price, head of the Price corporation, and H. B. Price, vice president of the International Railways of Central America, and Minor C. Keith, Inc.

Rental of Building Completed.

The Times Appliance Company, Inc., distributer for the Western Electric Company and the Radio Corporation of America, has leased a half floor in the Times-Circle Building at 333-39 West Fifty-second Street. The fourteen-story structure, completed early this year, is now 100 per cent rented, according to Brett & Wyckoff, Inc., the agents. It was erected on a plot 87 by 100 feet by the Turner Construction Company for the Adanfa Construction Company, of which S. L. Snyder is president and Saul Gutner is secretary and treasurer.

Buys Larchmont Residence.

Asher Flint, who is connected with the Fox Film Corporation, has bought the residence of Mrs. Virginia Garvin on Jochum Avenue, Larchmont, through Thomas B. Sutton, Inc.

AN ARISTOCRAT
among Buildings in a dominant location

From soberly rich foyer to observation terrace soaring 732 feet in air, every detail of the new Lincoln Building interprets a modern concept of conservative dignity.

Fifty-three floors supplied with unfailing air and light . . . Suites of offices expressly designed for law firms and corporations in various kinds of business . . . Service of a distinctive kind for all tenants . . . thirty high speed elevators—These and many other details make this finer office building worthy of its commanding location.

Across the street from Grand Central, with entrances on three main arteries of mid-town travel, with direct entrances to the subway, the Lincoln Building is easy of access from the five boroughs of New York, and from chief points throughout the United States.

Prompt action will still give you a wide selection of desirable space. Have your secretary write today for information and floor plans.

Whole floor areas from 33,770 to 8,445 sq. ft. or divided to suit.

SHIP BOARD GRANTS RATE AGREEMENTS

Calmar and Yankee Lines Provide Through Tariff to Germany From Pacific.

DIVIDE TRANSHIPPING COST

United States Lines Renew Arrangements With Other Lines Under Changed Name.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—An agreement between the Calmar Steamship Corporation and the Yankee Line approved by the Shipping Board today provides for through shipments from Pacific Coast ports to Hamburg and Bremen, with transshipment at Portland, Me., Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore or Hampton Roads. Through rates are to be based on direct line rates and transshipping charges are to be apportioned equally between the lines. The arrangement is subject to a minimum proportion of $5 per net ton to each carrier.

Other agreements approved were as follows:

LUCKENBACH STEAMSHIP COMPANY, INC., with EXPORT STEAMSHIP CORPORATION—Covers shipments of canned goods and dried fruit from Pacific Coast ports to Mediterranean ports upon combination of local rates plus cost of transfer at New York. The arrangement is subject to a minimum bill of lading charge of $15 to Alexandria, Constantinople, Piraeus, Salonica and Malta, and $20 to Beirut, Haifa, Jaffa and Tripoli, of which $5 is to accrue to Luckenbach which is to absorb the cost of transshipment.

LUCKENBACH COMPANY with FABRE LINE—Covering through shipments from Pacific Coast ports to East Mediterranean ports on combination of local rates of the two lines, plus cost of transhipment at New York. Minimum bill of lading charge of $15 on shipments to Algiers, Oran, Tunis, Alexandria, Constantinople, Smyrna, Piraeus and Salonika, and $20 to Beirut, Haifa, Jaffa and Tripoli, of which Luckenbach is to receive $5 and pay the cost of transshipment.

REDWOOD LINE WITH KINGSLEY NAVIGATION COMPANY—Covering through shipments from British Columbian ports to Gulf ports, with transshipment at San Francisco. Rates are to be the eastbound rates of the Gulf Intercoastal Conference and apportioned one-third to Kingsley and two-third to Redwood. When shipments are fifty tons or more, Kingsley vessels are to deliver at Redwood pier, and State toll is to be absorbed equally, when less than fifty tons, Kingsley is to absorb inward tolls and Redwood outward tolls, while drayage charges are to be absorbed in equal proportion.

BULL INSULAR LINE WITH PANAMA PACIFIC—Covering through shipments of rice from Pacific Coast ports to Porto Rico via New York, rates to be based on direct line rates and cost of transfer at New York to be apportioned on the basis of 55 per cent to Panama Pacific and 45 per cent to Bull Insular.

BULL INSULAR WITH PANAMA PACIFIC—Through shipments of canned goods, dried fruit and beans from Pacific Coast ports to Porto Rico, with transhipment at New York. Rates and transhipment charges to be apportioned 60 per cent to Panama Pacific and 40 per cent to Bull Insular.

NEW YORK and PORTO RICO COMPANY with CALMAR—On shipments of canned goods from Porto Rico to Pacific Coast ports via New York the through rate on fifty tons or more to be 76 cents per 100 pounds, apportioned 36 cents to New York and Porto Rico and 40 cents to Calmar, the remaining 6 cents to cover cost of transfer at New York. When shipments are less than 50 tons the through rate is to be 85 cents of which 15 cents is required to cover cost of transferring shipments, while the remainder is apportioned between the lines on the same basis as on the larger shipments.

UNITED STATES LINES with CUNARD and WHITE STAR LINES—Modification of two agreements for uniform rates on shipments of specie bullion, bonds and platinum and on general cargo from Southampton to New York. The purpose is to record the United States Lines Operations, Inc., as the successor to the United States Lines (Merchant Fleet Corporation).

UNITED STATES LINES, with PANAMA PACIFIC, NEW YORK AND PORTO RICO, NORWEGIAN-AMERICAN and BULL INSULAR LINES—Substitute the name of the United States Lines operations, Inc., for that of the United States Lines in traffic agreements.

CALMAR CORPORATION with OCEANIC AND ORIENTAL NAVIGATION COMPANY—On through shipments from Australia and New Zealand to North Atlantic ports with transshipment at San Francisco, rates are to be based on direct line rates and apportioned equally between the lines, subject to a minimum proportion of $8 per ton to oceanic and Oriental. The cost of transhipment is to be absorbed by the lines in equal proportion.

NEW YORK AND PORTO RICO LINE WITH AMERICAN-HAWAIIAN COMPANY—On through shipments of canned goods, dried fruit and beans from Pacific Coast ports to Porto Rico, rates are to be based on direct line rates, and transshipment charges at New York apportioned 60 per cent to American-Hawaiian and 40 per cent to New York and Porto Rico. Minimum bill of lading charge $6, $3.50 to New York and Porto Rico and $2.50 to American-Hawaiian.

NEW YORK AND PORTO RICO WITH CALMAR—On through shipments of canned goods, dried fruits and beans from Pacific Coast ports to the Dominican Republic, with transshipment at New York, rates to be based on direct line rates which are 20c per 100 pounds higher than direct line rates to Porto Rico, plus tonnage and wharfage fee of $1.40 per 1,000 kilos. Calmar's proportion is to be 40 per cent of the through rate, the remainder to accrue to the Porto Rico Line. Transfer charges at New York are to be assumed by the lines on the basis of 60 per cent by Calmar and 40 per cent by New York and Porto Rico. Minimum bill of lading charge $7.30, to be apportioned $3.80 to the on-carrying line and $3.50 to the intercoastal carrier.

FORBIDS 'SPLIT DELIVERIES.'

Ship Board Orders 18 Lines to Stop Division.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—The Shipping Board entered an order today in the "split delivery" cases, holding that the practice of intercoastal lines in giving full carload rates on shipments to be divided among two or more consigners is unduly prejudicial to solid carload receivers and in violation of the Shipping Board act of 1916.

The cases arose on complaints filed by the Associated Jobbers and Manufacturers of Los Angeles, with the Chambers of Commerce of San Francisco, Seattle and Tacoma and the Western Confectioners' Traffic Association as intervenors.

The complaints alleged that the special delivery practice was carried on in shipments from the Atlantic to Pacific Coast ports.

The lines against which the order was directed were the American-Hawaiian, Argonaut, Arrow, California and Eastern, Calmar, Dimon, Dollar, Isthmian, Luckenbach, Munson-McCormick, Ocean Transport, Panama Mail, Panama Pacific, Columbia Pacific, Forest Transport, Transmarine and Williams Steamship Company.

BACK SANDY HOOK PROJECT.

Congressional Representatives to Speed Deepening of Channel.

The Port of New York Authority has received the assurance of support of several members of Congress from New York and New Jersey for the Hoffman bill which is the first step toward attaining a channel of sufficient width and depth to insure safety to commerce from deep water in the vicinity of Sandy Hook, through lower New York Bay, Raritan Bay, Staten Island Sound, Newark Bay and Kill van Kull.

The bill provides for a preliminary survey and examination of the New York-New Jersey channels with a view to their improvement where they are not suitable to the demands of commerce. The Port Authority recently urged the New York and New Jersey delegations to support the bill, which was introduced by Representative Harold G. Hoffman.

OCEAN STORMS DELAY REPAIRING OF CABLES

Only One of Ten Lines Which Broke in Earthquake Nov. 18 Is Restored to Service.

Repair work on the transatlantic cables snapped by the earthquake which shook the ocean floor along the coast from New York to Newfoundland on Nov. 18 is progressing very slowly on account of rough seas, executive offices of the operating companies disclosed here yesterday. Only one line of communication—that of the French Telegraph Cable Company between Cape Cod and Brest—has been restored to service out of the ten that broke. Eleven lines were unaffected by the quake.

Officials of the Western Union Telegraph Company said yesterday that the cable ships sent out to mend the three cables that parted of their total of ten, had so far not only been unable to grapple for loose ends, but because of the North Atlantic gales, had been forced to lay to. The Commercial Cable Company reported similar difficulties with its three broken lines.

Although executives of the companies said they were able to handle the bulk of their business without delay, the Radio Corporation of America reported yesterday that its flow of wireless messages to the other side of the Atlantic was 50 per cent above normal.

None of the companies was able yesterday to estimate the expense the earthquake has entailed, but it was learned that each repair ship has a daily maintenance cost of more than $2,000.

LARGEST DRYDOCK HERE WILL OPEN SATURDAY

The largest dry dock in New York will be opened officially Saturday morning at the Robins plant of the Todd Shipyards Corporation, Erie Basin, Brooklyn, with James J. Byrne, Borough President of Brooklyn, officiating. The actual flooding of the dock will start at 10 o'clock and as soon as a sufficient depth of water has been provided, the Munson liner Southern Cross will enter for inspection.

The capacity of the dock will exceed 16,000,000 gallons of water, which can be pumped out in less than two hours. The real capacity of the pumping plant is almost 200,000,000 gallons a day, or about one-third of the entire fresh-water consumption of New York City. The dock can be flooded by large discharge culvert and sluice gates in forty minutes and the inner dock can be flooded in thirty minutes.

About 5,000 guests, including officials of the Shipping Board, the Port of New York Authority, American and foreign steamship lines, the Merchants' Association and other civic groups and the engineers of the various Todd subsidiaries have been invited to attend. Among those invited are Mayor Walker, Governor Roosevelt, Lieut. Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, former Governor Alfred E. Smith, Major Gen. Hanson E. Ely, and Rear Admiral Louis R. de Steiguer.

SHIP CONTRACT SIGNED.

Italian Line Prepares to Construct First of Two Giant Vessels.

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENOA, Dec. 4.—Final arrangements for the construction of the first of two "greyhounds of the sea," two passenger steamers which will possess unusual speed, for the service to the United States, in which Premier Mussolini has taken great interest, were completed at Genoa today when the steamship company Navigazione Generale Italiana signed a contract with the Ansaldo Shipbuilding Company.

The ship is to have a total length of 870 feet and be of 45,000 tons and will cost in the neighborhood of $15,000,000. It will be the largest ship in the Italian mercantile marine and will be capable of a speed in excess of twenty-six knots.

Envoys to Attend Hospital Dance.

Dr. Orestes Ferrara, Cuban Ambassador at Washington, and Señor Don Manuel Castro Quesada, Minister from Costa Rico, will attend a dinner dance and bridge this evening on board the French liner Ile de France at the foot of West Fifteenth Street, arranged by the Woman's Auxiliary of the Pan American Hospital and Clinics to raise funds for the institution's medical work. Mrs. William Sharpe, whose husband heads the hospital and Pan American Medical Association, is president of the auxiliary.

ORTIZ RUBIO ENTERS TEXAS ON WAY HERE

Mexican President-Elect Says He Will Seek to Improve Relations With Us.

MORROW WILL START TODAY

Southern Capital Believes Envoy, Hoover, Calles and Portes Gil Will Hold Parley.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 4.—President-elect Pascual Ortiz Rubio is now well into the United States and political activities here have ceased. José Vasconcelos, his recent opponent for the Presidency, has managed to leave the republic, crossing the border at Nogales. His supporters still insist they have not yet exhausted all legal resources regarding their contention that Señor Ortiz Rubio was elected by fraud and imposition, but students of the Mexican situation do not believe any practical result will be obtained and that Señor Vasconcelos will not return to this country, at any rate for a considerable period.

Mexico is at present much more interested in Ambassador Morrow's future. That he will return here after attending the London naval conferences is not questioned here. Several matters of international significance are still unsettled here and those close to him assert that he will insist on winding them up at all costs unless the London parleys are unexpectedly protracted.

What Mr. Morrow's precise rôle in London will be is the subject here of considerable comment. Mr. Morrow refuses to discuss anything of the kind, merely stating he will go to London as one of the Stimson commission. He admits that he has yet to study the details of his task and that, coupled with his recently announced political program, is the cause of his leaving Mexico on such short notice.

The Ambassador will leave this capital tomorrow evening, accompanied by Mrs. Morrow, their daughter, Elizabeth, and about eight members of the embassy staff, among them Captain Lewis McBride, the United States Naval Attaché, who is also an authority on Mexican finance. Possibly Reuben Clark, a close associate of Mr. Morrow, also will go. The Ambassador's special car will be attached to a regular passenger train.

Mr. Morrow gave a farewell reception at the embassy this afternoon. President Hoover, President-elect Ortiz Rubio, former President Calles and Mr. Morrow will hold a conference in Washington in the near future it is insisted in ordinarily reliable quarters here. It is understood that Señor Ortiz Rubio will enter the Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore for treatment of a minor ailment.

Children Call at Embassy.

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 4 (AP).—A dozen or more little Mexican school children, dressed in their party clothes, went to the American Embassy this afternoon to bid "adios" to their teacher and her father and mother. They were pupils of Miss Elizabeth Morrow and the occasion was the farewell reception at the embassy.

The school where Miss Morrow has been a volunteer instructor has closed for the Winter holidays.

Many of the children were accompanied by their mothers, and there were several hundred Americans at the reception.

Greeted by Washington Official.

BROWNSVILLE, Texas, Dec. 4 (AP).—Señor Ortiz Rubio entered the United States here today en route to Baltimore.

The President-elect and a party of twelve journeyed from Mexico City aboard a special train. They were met by a small group, including Arthur B. Lane of the Mexican Affairs Division of the Department of State in Washington, at Matamoros, Mexico.

The coaches were transferred to an American line and after a brief stop in Brownsville the party departed for Houston and New Orleans. The President-elect was greeted here by Colonel Van Voorhis, the commander of Fort Brown.

Besides his wife and three children other members of Señor Ortiz Rubio's party included Manuel Pérez Treviño, former Governor of Coahuila and former chief of staff under President Obregon, and his wife.

In a statement to newspaper men the President-elect declared one of his chief aims would be to bring about a better understanding between the United States and Mexico.

Discussing affairs of his country, he said he believed the policies of Señors Obregon, Calles and Portes Gil have followed the route which Mexico should take to gain the desired object of the best possible government.

"It will be useless to attempt to solve other problems of the nation before first urgently attempting the necessity of raising the standard of living among the masses of the Mexican people," he said.

Reservations at Johns Hopkins.

BALTIMORE, Dec. 4 (AP).—Senor Ortiz Rubio will enter Johns Hopkins Hospital here sometime in the near future, hospital officials said tonight, although they were unable to explain a delay in his entrance, which originally had been planned for tomorrow or Friday.

The hospital said Señor Ortiz Rubio's arrival is not expected for several days.

General Horatio Vásquez, President of the Dominican Republic, is in Johns Hopkins now. He has been showing improvement since his entrance, a month ago. His wife also is undergoing treatment, the strain of continuous attendance upon her husband having caused a breakdown.

SCORES PORTO RICAN LEASE

Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Dec. 4.—A mistake was made in granting a 999 year lease on the old Spanish fort, of San Geronimo which, as Assistant Secretary of the Navy he signed, Governor Roosevelt said in a statement today.

"Within the last six months the United States Government has turned over the title to this tract, and all rights therein, such as equitable taxation, and so forth, to our insular government. Since I have been here, I have investigated the matter thoroughly, discussing it with various people, who have made it their study.

"Regardless of what may be the legal aspects of this matter, my judgment is that a mistake was made in granting this lease. If the legislature sees fit to provide for the institution of condemnation proceedings I will approve them."

CHACO DISPUTANTS MOVE FOR PEACE

Paraguay and Bolivia Agree to Renew Diplomatic Relations in Near Future.

URUGUAY TO ANNOUNCE IT

Ministers Will Be Exchanged at the Same Time as Forts in the Disputed Territory.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MONTEVIDEO, Dec. 4.—The Uruguayan Foreign Office is making rapid progress toward conciliating Bolivia and Paraguay and expects to be able to announce within a few days the date on which they will formally renew diplomatic relations.

Under the terms of the final decision of the conference of neutrals on the Chaco dispute in Washington it was decided that Uruguay should supervise reconstruction of Fort Vanguardia by Paraguay and evacuation of Fort Bouqueron by Bolivia. The framing of instructions to the two Uruguayan majors who will supervise these operations necessitated conferences between the Uruguayan Foreign Minister and the Ministers of Bolivia and Paraguay.

Rufino T. Dominguez, the Uruguayan Minister of Foreign Affairs, took advantage of these conferences to suggest that Bolivia and Paraguay agree to announce a renewal of relations and the appointment of new Ministers at Asunción and La Paz on the day their Ministers in Montevideo sign the agreement regarding the exchange of Forts Vanguardia and Bouqueron.

The Foreign Minister announces that Bolivia has accepted this suggestion and that Paraguay's acceptance is expected soon.

The Foreign Minister also says that an interchange of notes with the governments of Bolivia and Paraguay has disclosed a sincere desire in both countries to reach an agreement as soon as possible and that negotiations have been unusually cordial.

This announcement would seem to indicate that the negotiations are proceeding more quickly and more satisfactorily under the friendly offices of a fellow Latin government than under the efforts of the United States Government.

The Bolivian Minister in Montevideo, discussing the progress of negotiations, throws new light on the much-discussed Bolivian reserve in accepting the good offices of the neutral governments for arbitrating the Chaco territory. The Minister says Bolivia's suggestion is that a line be drawn which would mark the average between the boundaries suggested in the three treaties of 1879, 1887 and 1894, none of which was ratified.

He says Bolivia considers that these proposed treaties establish valuable antecedents from which to begin arbitral negotiations.

The Paraguayan Minister says he expects to be able to present at next Monday's conference Paraguay's acceptance of Uruguay's suggestion of announcing renewal of diplomatic relations. He says he thinks the renewal will be announced either on Dec. 15 or Dec. 30.

DOG WON'T GET $4,000 FUND

Veteran Left Trust for Pet Only If His Wife Died Before Him.

A $4,000 trust fund established in the will of Laurence Miller, war veteran, for the support of his Pekingese dog Ting-a-Ling will not take effect because the testator's wife, Julia C. Miller, who lives at the Great Northern Hotel, survived him, it became known yesterday when the testament was filed for probate.

Mr. Miller, who died on Sept. 30, left his war medals to a nephew, C. A. Morrell Miller of Paris, and the residue of his estate of more than $10,000 to Mrs. Miller. In the event that his wife predeceased him or died at the same time he directed that the residue go to her cousins, Julia and Gertie Lawrence, who were to establish the fund "for the period of ten years or the period of the life of my dog, whichever shall be the shorter, and to use the income for the support and maintenance of said dog."

PREPARES MOORE CASE.

Harvey Counsel Assembles Data for Charges Against Engineer.

The formal charges to be served upon Clifford B. Moore, assistant engineer in Queens, may be ready within a week. John Holley Clark Jr., personal counsel to Borough President George U. Harvey, completed yesterday compiling a résumé of the information gathered by Commissioner of Public Works John J. Halleran, who made an investigation of Moore's case at President Harvey's direction. This résumé was put in President Harvey's hands yesterday afternoon, and he went over it with Commissioner Halleran. A few minor changes were made and the résumé was returned to Clark. Some time today Clark is expected to have the résumé in shape to forward to the corporation counsel's office.

In response to President Harvey's letter of last week, Corporation Counsel Hilly has assigned Assistant Corporation Counsel William E. C. Mayor to prepare the formal charges. Mr. Clark's résumé will be used by Counsel Mayor in preparing these charges.

President Harvey said that the general charge would be incompetency, and that this charge will be sustained by several specific charges. Some of the charges would have to do with Moore's connection with the preparing and letting of contracts for sewer construction, it was said.

Bowdoin Gets $100,000 From Curtis.

Special to The New York Times.

BRUNSWICK, Me., Dec. 4.—President Sills of Bowdoin College announced a Christmas present of $100,000 from Cyrus H. K. Curtis of Philadelphia this morning. The income is to be used for the payment of annuities and pensions to members of the faculty whose retiring allowances have been affected by cuts in Carnegie Foundation grants.

In Days When Values Count

In days when fundamental values are scrutinized more carefully, a good suit or overcoat is more than ever worth its price. D'Andrea Brothers have always sought to offer genuine quality without extravagant price, the maximum value in every garment and conscientious workmanship before everything else.

A D'Andrea suit at $75, or an overcoat at $100, gives a man, we honestly believe, the best value for his money that he can buy in New York today.

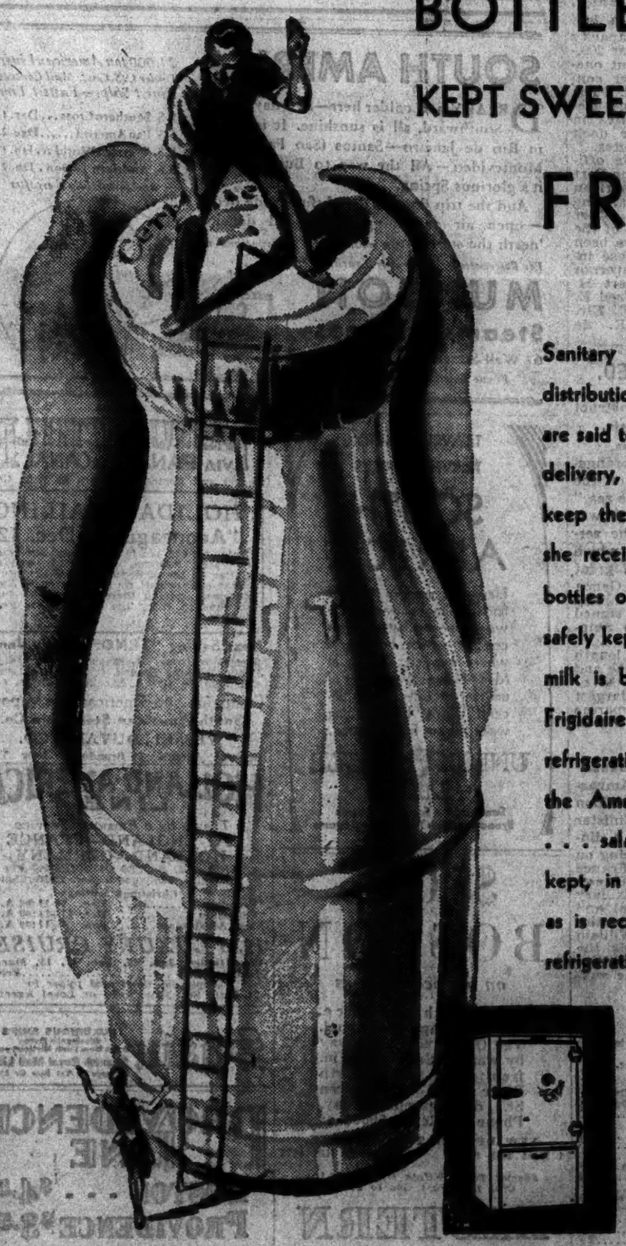
63,000,000 BOTTLES OF MILK KEPT SWEET AND FRESH . . . IN FRIGIDAIRE



Sanitary regulations governing the preparation and distribution of milk in the metropolitan district are said to be the strictest in the world. . . . Upon delivery, however, it is up to the housewife to keep the milk in the same wholesome condition she receives it. Last year more than 63 million bottles of milk in greater New York alone were safely kept fresh and sweet in Frigidaire. . . . And, milk is by no means the only perishable which Frigidaire keeps more palatable through proper refrigeration. Every important article of food on the American menu . . . meat . . . vegetables . . . salads . . . frozen dessert . . . is always kept, in Frigidaire, at a temperature below 50°, as is recommended by health authorities for safe refrigeration. . . . Then too, because the electric current used costs little and by enabling foodstuffs to be bought in larger quantities, Frigidaire practically pays for itself out of savings. . . . Come in to any showroom and learn about our SPECIAL CHRISTMAS OFFER.
